Acknowledgements

My thanks go firstly to my editor, Jessica Roberts, who has worked tirelessly and patiently with me and kept me going through her endless words of encouragement. Thanks also to my commissioning editor, Alison Sharpe, whose encouragement and gentle persuasion have led the project to completion, and to Anna Teevan, who saw me through the initial stages. Many thanks also to all at Cambridge University Press who have contributed along the way, and to the teachers and readers involved in commenting on the material. And of course I would like to thank Pauline Cullen, without whom this book may never have quite reached the final stages and whose contribution has been much appreciated.

Finally, a thank you to my children Laura and Alexander, my partner, Ned Garnett and my mother, for their support, encouragement and help at every stage.

To the student

Who is this book for?

This book is for anyone preparing for IELTS. Although the IELTS test does not include a specific grammar module, it is important to be able to recognize and use grammar appropriately. This book covers the grammar you will need to be successful in the test. You can use it to support an IELTS coursebook, with a general English language course for extra grammar practice, or with practice tests as part of a revision programme. You can use it in class or for self-study.

How do I use this book?

There are two ways to use this book. You can either start at Unit 1 and work through to the end of the book, or you can do the Entry test on page ix to find out which units you need most practice in and begin with those.

What is in this book?

This book contains 25 units. Each unit is in four parts:

A: Context listening This introduces the grammar of the unit in a context that is relevant to the IELTS test. This will help you to understand the grammar more easily when you study section B. It also gives you useful listening practice. Listen to the recording and answer the questions. Then check your answers in the Key before you read the Grammar section.

B: Grammar Read through this section before you do the grammar exercises. For each grammar point there are explanations with examples. You can refer back to this section when you are doing the exercises.

C: Grammar exercises Write your answers to each exercise and then check them in the Key.

D: Test practice Each unit has a test task. These help you practise the different parts of the test. The test task is followed by a grammar focus task, which gives you extra practice in the grammar from the unit.

The Key

The Key contains:

- answers for all the exercises. Check your answers at the end of each exercise. The Key tells you which part of the Grammar section you need to look at again if you have any problems.
- sample answers for exercises where you use your own ideas to help you check your work.
- test tips for each exercise type in the Test practice section.
- sample answers for all the writing tasks in the Test practice section. Read these after you have written your own answer. Study the language used and the way the ideas are organised.

Recording scripts

There are recording scripts for the Context listenings in each unit and for the Test practice listening tasks. Do not look at the script until after you have answered the questions. It is a good idea to listen to the recording again while you read the script.

The Entry test

You can do this test before using the book to help you choose what to study. Answer the questions and then check your answers in the Key. The Key tells you which units are most important for you.

To the teacher

This book offers concise yet comprehensive coverage of the grammar necessary in order to be successful in the IELTS test. It can be used for self-study or with a class. It will be particularly useful for a class where all the students are preparing for IELTS. It will also be useful for revision, and for candidates in classes where some students are not entered for the test, as sections A, B and C are designed to be useful for all students.

The Entry test

The Entry test can be used diagnostically as a means of prioritising the language areas to be covered, either for a class, or for individual students.

A: Context listening This section is suitable for classroom use. Many of the tasks can be done in pairs or small groups if appropriate.

B: Grammar This section is designed for private study, but you may wish to discuss those parts which are particularly relevant to your students' needs.

C: Grammar exercises This section can be done in class or set as homework. Students can be encouraged to check their own work and discuss any difficulties they encounter.

D: Test practice This section can be used to familiarize students with the test task types while offering further practice in the grammar for each unit. Each task is followed by a Grammar focus task, designed to raise students' awareness of a particular language point covered in that unit. The book contains at least one task from each part of the Listening, Academic Reading, General Training Reading, Academic Writing and General Training Writing modules.

In classes where there are students who are not entered for the test, you may prefer to set Section D tasks as extra work for IELTS candidates only. However, they offer all students valuable opportunities to practise the grammar of the unit and provide an effective teaching resource for EAP classes.

Entry test

You can do this test before using the book to help you choose what to study. Choose the correct answer, A, B or C, for each question. When you have finished, check your answers on page 223. The key tells you which units are most important for you.

A Context listening

You are going to hear a woman interviewing a student for a survey about what people do in their free time. Before you listen, look at the pictures. Which activities do you think the student does in his free time?

- 3 Listen again and decide if the following statements are true or false. If a statement is false, write the correction.
 - 1 Peter is waiting for his friends.
 - 2 He isn't studying much this month.
 - 3 His parents own a shop.
 - 4 He practises the guitar most mornings.
 - 5 He frequently uses the Internet.
 - 6 His cousin is living in America at the moment.
 - 7 Peter doesn't support any football teams.
- 4 Look at your answers to Exercise 3 and answer these questions.
 - 1 Which sentences are about a situation that is permanent or a fact?
 - 2 Which sentences are about everyday habits?
 - 3 Which sentence is about an action happening at the moment of speaking?
 - 4 Which sentences are about a temporary situation?

B Grammar

1 Present simple verb/verb + (e)s He plays tennis.

do/does not + verb She doesn't play tennis.
do/does ... + verb? Do vou play tennis?

We use the present simple to talk about regular habits or repeated actions:

 I get up really early and practise for an hour or so most days.
 I use the Internet just about every day.

Words that describe how often or when are often used (e.g. always, generally, normally, usually, often, sometimes, rarely, never, every day, every evening).

to talk about permanent situations:
 My parents own a restaurant.

⚠ We use the present perfect, not the present simple, to say how long something has continued:

I have worked there since I was 15. (not I-work there since I-was 15: see Unit 3) to talk about facts or generally accepted truths: Students don't generally have much money.

 If you heat water to 100°C, it boils. (see Unit 17)

The following words are often used: generally, mainly, normally, usually, traditionally.

to give instructions and directions:
 You go down to the traffic lights, then you turn left.
 To start the programme, first you click on the icon on the desktop.

• to tell stories and talk about films, books and plays:
In the film, the tea lady falls in love with the Prime Minister.

2 Present continuous

+ am/is/are + verb + -ing He's living in Thailand.
- am/is/are not + verb + -ing I'm not living in Thailand.
- am/is/are ... + verb + -ing? Are they living in Thailand?

We use the present continuous

- to talk about temporary situations:
 I'm studying really hard for my exams.
 My cousin is living in Thailand at the moment. (= he doesn't normally live there)
 Words like at the moment, currently, now, this week/month/year are often used.
- to talk about actions happening at the moment of speaking:
 I'm waiting for my friends.

• to talk about trends or changing situations:

The Internet is making it easier for people to stay in touch with each other. The price of petrol is rising dramatically.

• to talk about things that happen more often than expected, often to show envy or to criticise with words like always, constantly, continually, forever:

My mum's always saying I don't help enough! (complaint) He's always visiting exciting places! (envy)

3 State verbs

The present continuous is not normally used with state verbs because the meaning of the verb itself is a general truth rather than something temporary. These verbs describe thoughts, feelings, senses, possession and description.

Here are some examples of state verbs.

 thoughts: agree, assume, believe, disagree, forget, hope, know, regret, remember, suppose, think, understand

I assume you're too busy to play computer games.

- feelings: adore, despise, dislike, enjoy, feel, hate, like, love, mind, prefer, want Do you mind if I ask you a few questions?
 I love music.
- senses: feel, hear, see, smell, taste This pudding smells delicious.

▲ To talk about something happening now we use can:

I can smell something burning.

- possession: have, own, belong My parents own a restaurant.
- description: appear, contain, look, look like, mean, resemble, seem, smell, sound, taste, weigh You look like your mother. (= a permanent situation, not a temporary one)

▲ Some state verbs can be used in the continuous form when the meaning is temporary. Compare:

What are you thinking about? (now)

I think you should tell her exactly what happened. (my opinion, so not temporary)

I'm tasting the sauce to see if it needs any more salt.

The sauce tastes delicious.

She's having a great time. (is having = is experiencing, not possession)
Students don't generally have much money. (have = possession)

 - 4 When her son got older she the door unlocked whenever she was at home.
 - 5 The burglar simply ______ in through the front door.6 The son _____ anything because he _____ to music.

1 A few weeks ago a woman to report a burglary.

- 7 Then the burglar into the front room, all the cupboards and a valuable collection of CDs.
- 4 Look at sentences 1-7 above and answer the following questions.
 - 1 Which two sentences provide a background scene and an action?
 - 2 Which two sentences talk about a single completed action in the past?
 - 3 Which sentence describes a series of completed actions in the past?
 - 4 Which two sentences talk about a repeated action in the past?
 - 5 Which four tenses or structures are used in sentences 1-7?

B Grammar

1 Past simple

- + verb + -ed (or -d) He worked for the police.
- did not + verb She didn't work for the police.
- did ... + verb? Did they work for the police?

▲ Irregular verbs

Many verbs are irregular: went (go), came (come), wrote (write) (see Appendix 1) Note the verb be is irregular: I/he/she/it was; you/we/they were

We use the past simple

• to talk about single past completed actions. Often the time is mentioned:

A few weeks ago a woman called to report a robbery at her house.

But no time reference is necessary if it is already known:

How did the burglar break in without anybody hearing him? (in the story I just told you about)

• to give a series of actions in the order that they happened:

The burglar came in through the front door, picked up the woman's handbag, emptied it out and stole her purse.

We often use words like next or then to indicate the sequence of events:

Then, the burglar went into the front room, opened all the cupboards and took a valuable collection of CDs.

to talk about past repeated actions:

When her son got older he often went out to visit his friends after school.

Notice that used to and would can also be used (see B3).

• to talk about long-term situations in the past which are no longer true: Bill Murphy worked for the police force for over 17 years.

Explorers at that time believed that the world was flat.

Notice that used to can also be used (see B3).

2 Past continuous was/were + verb + -ing

 was/were not + verb + -ing
 was/were ... + verb + -ing?
 She was watching the news.
 They weren't watching the news.
 Were you watching the news?

We use the past continuous

• to provide the background scene to an action or event (usually in the past simple). We often use words like when, while and as:

It happened at five in the afternoon while she was watching the news on TV. He was doing his homework in his bedroom when the burglar came into the house.

the burglar came into the house

It is possible to have more than one background scene happening at the same time: He was listening to music and working on his computer.

• when we want to emphasize the activity without focusing on its completion. Compare: For a while last year I was working at the cinema, studying for my degree and writing a column for the local newspaper. (we don't know if the actions were completed or not, or whether they happened at the same time)

Last year I worked at the cinema, studied for my degree and wrote a column for the local newspaper. (suggests all of the jobs are now complete, and probably happened in that order)

△ State verbs (see Unit 1) do not generally have a continuous form.

3 Used to and would used to / would + infinitive did not + use to + infinitive did ... use to + infinitive?

 She used to / would lock the door.
 I didn't use to lock the door?
 Did they use to lock the door?

We use used to + infinitive or would + infinitive (contracted to 'd in spoken English) to talk about past repeated actions:

She used to keep the front door locked. (but she stopped doing this) She would leave the door unlocked whenever she was at home.

△ Would is unusual in the negative form and in Yes/No questions.

We use used to + infinitive to talk about permanent situations that are usually no longer true: Bill Murphy used to work for the police force. (but he doesn't now: not Bill Murphy would work for the police force.)

We do not use used to if we want to talk about how long the situation lasted:

Bill Murphy worked for the police force for over 17 years. (not Bill Murphy used to work for the police force for over 17 years.)

▲ We do not use would with state verbs.

Academic Reading

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1–13 which are based on the Reading Passage below.

Jumping spiders

Peter Aldhons examines how Portia spiders catch their prey

For a stalking predator, the element of surprise is crucial. And for jumping spiders that sneak onto other spiders' webs to prey on their owners, it can be the difference between having lunch and becoming it. Now zoologists have discovered the secret of these spiders' tactics: creeping forward when their prey's web is vibrating.

B

The fifteen known species of Portia jumping spiders are relatively small, with adults being about two centimetres long (that's smaller than the cap on most pens). They habitually stay in the webs of other spiders, and in an area of these webs that is as out-of-the-way as possible. Portia spiders live mostly in tropical forests, where the climate is hot and humid. They hunt a range of other spiders, some of which could easily turn the tables on them. 'They will attack something about twice their own size if they are really hungry,' says Stimson Wilcox of Binghamton University in New York State. Wilcox and his colleague, Kristen Gentile of the University of Canterbury in Christchurch, New Zealand, wanted to find out how Portia spiders keep the upper hand.

C

All jumping spiders have large eyes that look like binocular lenses, and they function pretty much the same way. Most jumping spiders locate their prey visually, and then jump and capture from one centimetre to over ten centimetres away. Only a few species of jumping spiders invade the webs of other spiders, and the Portia spider is among them. Jumping spiders, including Portia spiders, prey on insects and other arthropods by stalking. Sometimes the spiders lure their victims by vibrating the web to mimic the struggles of a trapped insect. But many web-weaving spiders appear to be wise to these tricks, so stalking is often a better strategy. Sometimes, the researchers found, Portia spiders take advantage of the vibrations created in the web by a gentle breeze. But, if necessary, they will make their own vibrations.

D

The researchers allowed various prey spiders to spin webs in the laboratory and then introduced Portia spiders. To simulate the shaking effect of a breeze the zoologists used either a model aircraft propeller or attached a tiny magnet to the centre of the web which could be vibrated by applying a varying electrical field. The researchers noticed that the stalking Portia spiders moved more when the webs were shaking than when they were still, and they were more likely to capture their prey during tests in which the webs were periodically shaken than in those where the webs were undisturbed. If the spiders were placed onto unoccupied webs, they would make no attempt to change their movements.

E

It is the Portia spider's tactic of making its victims' webs shake that has most intrigued the researchers. They noticed that the spiders would sometimes shake their quarry's web violently, then creep forwards up to five millimetres before the vibrations died down. 'They'd make a big pluck with one of their hind legs,' says Wilcox. These twangs were much more powerful than the gentler vibrations Portia spiders use to mimic a trapped insect, and the researchers were initially surprised that the prey spiders did not respond to them in any way. But they have since discovered that the violent twanging produces a pattern of vibrations that match those caused by a twig falling onto the web.

F

Other predators make use of natural 'smokescreens' or disguises to hide from their prey: lions hunting at night, for example, move in on their prey when clouds obscure the moon. 'But this is the first example of an animal making its own smokescreen that we know of,' says Wilcox. 'Portia spiders are clearly intelligent and they often learn from their prey as they are trying to capture it. They do this by making different signals on the web of their prey until the prey spider makes a movement. In general, Portia spiders adjust their stalking strategy according to their prey and what the prey is doing. Thus, Portia spiders use trial-and-error learning in stalking. Sometimes they will even take an indirect route to reach a prey spider they can see from a distance. This can sometimes take one to two hours following a predetermined route. When it does this, the Portia spider is actually solving problems and thinking ahead about its actions.'

Questions 1-9

The Reading Passage has six paragraphs labelled A-F.

Which paragraph contains the following information?

Write the correct letter A–F next to Questions 1–9.

NB You may use any letter more than once.

- 1 the reaction of the Portia spider's prey to strong web vibrations
- 2 a description of how the researchers set up their experiment
- 3 a comparison between Portia spiders and another animal species
- 4 an explanation of how the researchers mimicked natural conditions
- 5 a comparison between Portia spiders and their prey
- 6 the reason why concealment is important to Portia spiders
- 7 a description of the Portia spider's habitat
- 8 the number of species of Portia spiders
- 9 an example of the Portia spider's cleverness

Questions 10-13

Choose the correct letter, A, B, C or D.

- 10 In their laboratory experiments, the researchers found that the Portia spiders moved most when the web was
 - A vibrating.
 - B motionless.
 - C undisturbed.
 - D unoccupied.
- 11 What discovery did the researchers make about Portia spiders?
 - A They make very strong vibrations with one leg.
 - B They move 5 mm at a time on a still web.
 - C They move slowly when vibrations stop.
 - D They use energetic vibrations to mimic a trapped insect.

- 12 Portia spiders are the only known animal to
 - A use the weather to disguise themselves.
 - B mimic other prey-eating animals.
 - C create their own smokescreen.
 - D stalk using 'trial and error'.
- 13 The Portia spider demonstrates 'thinking ahead' when it
 - A chooses prey that is a short distance away.
 - B takes a longer route to reach its prey.
 - C reaches its prey in a short time.
 - D solves the problem of locating its prey.

A Context listening

- You are going to hear two university students, Carl and Sue, talking about an assignment. Before you listen, look at the list of activities (A-F). Put the activities in the order which you think is best when writing an assignment.
 - A make notes
 - B start to write
 - C do research
 - D make a plan
 - E re-read books
 - F get a book list
- 2 03 Listen to the first part of the conversation. Which five activities does Sue mention? Write the letters A-F in the correct order in boxes 1-5 on the flowchart.

- 3 Q 3 Listen to the second part of the conversation and fill in the gaps.
 - 1 Sue: I _____ plenty of information for the assignment.
 - 2 Sue: When I was in the library last week, I those leaflets.
 - 3 Carl: I _____ tired since I started this course!
 - 4 Carl: I and I'm already tired.
- 4 Look at your answers to Exercise 3 and find examples of each of the following:
 - a something that only happened recently
 - b something that happened at some time before now, but we do not know when
 - c an action + the length of time it has been going on
 - d something that happened at a stated time in the past

Which tense is used in each of the examples a-d above?

B Grammar

We use the present perfect when we want to show a link between the present and the past.

1 Present perfect simple

have/has + past participle have/has not + past participle
 have/has ... + past participle?
 Have you started the assignment?

We use the present perfect simple

• to talk about a time period that is not finished (e.g. today, this week):

I've written a rough plan this morning. (it is still morning)

• to show that something happened at some point in the past before now. We don't state when it happened:

I've collected plenty of information. (at some point before now and I will use it to write my essay)

The following time expressions are often used: ever, never, before, up to now, still, so far. It's the longest I've ever had to write. (at any point before now)

▲ If we state when something happened we must use the simple past: I wasted a lot of time last week. (not I have wasted a lot of time last week)

• to talk about a present situation which started in the past, usually with for/since:

I've worked really hard for the last two weeks. (I've worked hard till now)

We use for with a length of time (e.g. for two hours, for three days, for six months) and since with a point in time (e.g. since 2001, since Monday, since ten o'clock, since I was four, since I started the course).

• to talk about something that happened at an unstated time in the past but is connected to the present:

I've read all the books on the reading list. (I have the notes now)

The following time expressions are often used: recently, just, already, and yet with negatives or questions.

I've just got up.

Have you written your assignment yet?

Compare the use of the present perfect with the past simple:

Present perfect

• links the past with the present:

I've made quite a lot of notes. (at some point before now and I may make more notes) does not talk about a specific time in the past:

Have you read the leaflet? (at some time before now) uses time expressions that show the time period is unfinished:

Î've read six articles this week. (the week isn't finished)

Past simple

only talks about the past:

I made notes on the most important things. (when I did the reading and I've finished making notes) states a specific past time, or the time is understood:

I read the leaflets when I was in the library. (I'm not in the library now and the reading is finished) uses time expressions that show the time is finished:

I read five books last week. (last week has finished)

Note the position of the following time expressions that occur with the present perfect:

• between the auxiliary and main verb (e.g. recently, already, always, ever, just, never)

I've already written the notes.

I've just finished my essay.

Ever is generally used with questions or negatives:

Have you ever been to Buenos Aires?

• after the main verb (e.g. all my life, every day, yet, before, for ages, for two weeks, since 2003, since I was a child etc.)

I've felt tired for weeks.

I haven't flown before.

If there is an object clause, the time expression comes at the end:

I've gone to bed early every night since then.

I've written more than ten assignments since I started this course.

2 Present perfect continuous

+ have/has been + verb + -ing Pve been studying really hard.

have/has not been + verb + -ing He hasn't been studying really hard.

? have/has ... been + verb + -ing? Have you been studying really hard?

We can use either the present perfect simple or the present perfect continuous to say how long a situation or activity has been going on (often with for or since):

I've felt tired for weeks.

I've been feeling tired since I started this course.

I've worked at the restaurant since I moved here.

I've been working at the restaurant for three years.

Compare the different uses of the present perfect simple and the present perfect continuous:

Present perfect continuous

- emphasises how long:
 I've been reading for the past two weeks.
- focuses on the activity itself (it does not show whether the activity is completed or not):
 I've been writing my essay. (we don't know if the essay is finished or not)

What have you been doing? (the boy's mother is interested in the activity that made him so dirty now)

Present perfect simple

- says how many times:

 I've read three articles.
- focuses on the result or completion of the activity:

I've written my essay. (the essay is finished but we don't know when)

What have you done? (the boy's mother is interested in the result of the action: the broken window)

▲ State verbs (see Unit 1) do not generally have a continuous form:

I've known them since I was a child. (not Fve been knowing them since I was a child)

Grammar extra: This is the first time etc.

We use the present perfect tense with the following structures: it/this/that is the first / the second / the best / the only / the worst ...

It's the first time I've ever had to write such a long assignment.

Is this the only time you've travelled abroad?

That's the sixth cup of coffee you've had today.

General Training Writing Task 1

You should spend about 20 minutes on this task.

You have seen an advertisement for a weekend job as a local tour guide showing visitors around your city.

Write a letter of application to the tourism office. In the letter

- · give your reasons for wanting the job
- · explain why you think you can do the job
- · describe any relevant experience you have

Write at least 150 words.

You do NOT need to write any addresses.

Begin your letter as follows:

Dear Sir or Madam,

- 2 a sentence which uses the present perfect continuous to show something which started in the past and is still going on
- 3 a sentence which uses the present perfect simple to show something happened at an unstated time in the past but has a present result

Dear Sir or Madam.

I am writing to apply for the post of tour guide advertised on your website. I believe I fulfil all the necessary criteria, and very much hope that you will consider my application.

I have lived in this town all my life, and therefore know all about the places of interest and their history. I have visited the castle and the cathedral many times and I have read many guide books full of interesting historical facts. I therefore feel that I am in a good position to lead visitors around these sites. I have always been interested in history and over the past few years I have regularly participated in activities at the castle and at other sites.

Recently I have been working as a receptionist at a local hotel in the evenings, so I have experience of dealing with overseas visitors, and I enjoy talking to them.

I do hope you will consider me for this post, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely,

B Grammar

1 Past perfect simple

+ had + past participle

They had listened to his music.

had not + past participle

They hadn't listened to his music.

had ... + past participle?

Had they listened to his music?

We use the past perfect simple

• when we are talking about the past and want to mention something that happened earlier: His father was a composer and his grandfather had also been a musician. (Mozart's grandfather was a musician and then later his father became a composer) Sometimes we use words like just or already. Notice that these adverbs go between the auxiliary and the main verb:

By the time he was 17, Mozart's reputation had already begun to spread through Europe.

⚠ We use the past simple tense if the events are mentioned in chronological order: His grandfather was a musician and his father was also a composer.

with words like when, as soon as, by the time, after to show the order of events:
 When Mozart was born, five of his siblings had already died. (Mozart's siblings died first, then Mozart was born)

▲ Notice the difference in meaning between these two sentences:

When I got home, my husband cooked dinner. (= I got home and then my husband cooked dinner)

I got home my husband cooked dinner

THE PAST

When I got home, my husband had cooked dinner. (= my husband cooked dinner before I got home)

my husband had cooked dinner I got home

• to talk about an indefinite time before a particular point in the past, often with words like always, sometimes, never, before, by + fixed time:

His family were richer than they had ever been before. (= they were not as rich at any time before this point in the past)

By the time he was six, the little boy had written a composition of his own.

• to report past events using reporting verbs (see Unit 15): The man told me he had met my father a long time before.

2 Past perfect continuous

+ had been + verb + -ing She'd been studying for ages.
- had not been + verb + -ing? He hadn't been studying for long?

Had you been studying for long?

We use the past perfect continuous to focus on how long an activity continued or to focus on the activity itself:

Times were hard and the family had been struggling for some time. (to show how long) Mozart's sister was extremely gifted at the keyboard and she had been making excellent progress. (focus on the activity)

▲ We cannot use the past perfect continuous to say how many times something happened: I knew the way as I had visited her several times before. (not I knew the way as I had been visiting her several times before.)

△ State verbs (see Unit 1) do not generally have a continuous form.

Grammar extra: Unfulfilled hopes

We use the past perfect to talk about past disappointments or things that did not happen as expected:

The politician had expected to be re-elected, but in the end she only got ten per cent of the vote. I had been hoping to go with my brother on his trip but I was too sick to go.

Questions 1-12

Read the passage below and answer Questions 1-12.

The history of the biro

Α

One chilly autumn morning in 1945, five thousand shoppers crowded the pavements outside Gimbels Department Store in New York City. The day before, Gimbels had taken out a full-page newspaper advertisement in the New York Times, announcing the sale of the first ballpoint pens in the United States. The new writing instrument was heralded as "fantastic... miraculous... guaranteed to write for two years without refilling!" Within six hours, Gimbels had sold its entire stock of ten thousand ballpoints at $12.50 each – approximately $130 at today's prices.

In fact this 'new' pen was not new after all, and was just the latest development in a long search for the best way to deliver ink to paper. In 1884 Lewis Waterman had patented the fountain pen, giving him the sole rights to manufacture it. This marked a significant leap forward in writing technology, but fountain pens soon became notorious for leaking. In 1888, a leather tanner named John Loud devised and patented the first "rolling-pointed marker pen" for marking leather. Loud's design contained a reservoir of ink in a cartridge and a rotating ball point that was constantly bathed on one side with ink.

Loud's pen was never manufactured, however, and over the next five decades, 350 additional patents were issued for similar ball-type pens, though none advanced beyond the design stage. Each had their own faults, but the major difficulty was the ink: if the ink was thin, the pens leaked, and if it was too thick, they clogged. Depending on the climate or air temperature, sometimes the pens would do both.

Almost fifty years later, Ladislas and Georg Biro, two Hungarian brothers, came up with a solution to this problem. In 1935 Ladislas Biro was working as a journalist, editing a small newspaper. He found himself becoming more and more frustrated by the amount of time he wasted filling fountain pens with ink and cleaning up ink smudges. What's more, the sharp tip of his fountain pen often scratched or tore through the thin newsprint paper. Ladislas and Georg (a chemist) set about making models of new pen designs and creating better inks to use in them. Ladislas had observed that the type of ink used in newspaper printing dried rapidly, leaving the paper dry and smudge-free. He was determined to construct a pen using the same type of ink. However, the thicker ink would not flow from a regular pen nib so he had to develop a new type of point. Biro came up with the idea of fitting his pen with a tiny ball bearing in its tip. As the pen moved along the paper, the ball bearing rotated and picked up ink from the ink cartridge which it delivered to the paper.

The first Biro pen, like the designs that had gone before it, relied on gravity for the ink to flow to the ball bearing at the tip. This meant that the pens only worked when they were held straight up, and even then the ink flow was sometimes too heavy, leaving big smudges of ink on the paper. The Biro brothers had a rethink and eventually devised a new design, which relied on capillary action rather than gravity to feed the ink. This meant that the ink could flow more smoothly to the tip and the pen could be held at an angle rather than straight up. In 1938, as World War II broke out, the Biro brothers fled to Argentina, where they applied for a patent for their pen and established their first factory.

The Biros' pen soon came to the attention of American fighter pilots, who needed a new kind of pen to use at high altitudes. Apparently, it was ideal for pilots as it did not leak like the fountain pen and did not have to be refilled frequently. The United States Department of War contacted several American companies, asking them to manufacture a similar writing instrument in the U.S. Thus fortune smiled on the Biro brothers in May 1945, when the American company 'Eversharp' paid them $500,000 for the exclusive manufacturing and marketing rights of the Biro ballpoint for the North American market. Eversharp were slow to put their pen into production, however, and this delay ultimately cost them their competitive advantage.

F

Meanwhile, in June 1945 an American named Milton Reynolds stumbled upon the Biro pen while on vacation in Buenos Aires. Immediately seeing its commercial potential, he bought several pens and returned to Chicago, where he discovered that Loud's original 1888 patent had long since expired. This meant that the ballpoint was now in the public domain, and he therefore wasted no time making a copy based on the Biro design. Establishing his pen company with just $26,000, Reynolds quickly set up a factory with 300 workers who began production on 6th October 1945, stamping out pens from precious scraps of aluminum that hadn't been used during the war for military equipment or weapons. Just 23 days later, it was Reynolds' ballpoint pen that caused the stampede at Gimbels Department Store. Following the ballpoint's debut in New York City, Eversharp challenged Reynolds in the law courts, but lost the case because the Biro brothers had failed to secure a U.S. patent on their invention.

Questions 7-9

Choose the correct answer, A, B, C or D.

- 7 The problem with the ballpoint pens invented between 1888 and 1935 was that
 - A they cost a great deal of money to manufacture.
 - B the technology to manufacture them did not exist.
 - C they could not write on ordinary paper.
 - D they were affected by weather conditions.
- 8 The design of the Biro brothers' first pen
 - A was similar to previous pens.
 - B was based on capillary action.
 - C worked with heavy or light inks.
 - D worked when slanted slightly.
- 9 Milton Reynolds was able to copy the Biro brothers' design because
 - A the Biro brothers' original patent was out of date.
 - B it was legal to copy other designs at the time.
 - C they did not have a patent for North America.
 - D the Biro brothers gave him permission.

 - 2 Which structure is used in statements 2 and 3 to refer to the future?
 - 3 Which structure is used in statement 4 to refer to the future?
 - 4 Which statements talk about a fixed arrangement?
 - 5 Which statements are predictions?

B Grammar

1 Present continuous

We use the present continuous to talk about plans or definite arrangements for the future: We're staying in a small hotel. (we have made the arrangements)

Notice that time expressions are used or understood from the context in order to show that we are talking about the future (and not the present):

The manager is having a party just after we get back. (time expression given) We're playing four matches there. (future time expression understood)

2 Will

	+	will + verb	We'll enjoy it.
Ì	-	will not (won't) + verb	He won't enjoy it.
١	?	will + verb?	Will they enjoy it?

We use will

- to make predictions, usually based on our opinions or our past experience: I think it'll be extremely hot there.
- to talk about future events we haven't arranged yet:
 We'll probably stay in some sort of mountain lodge there.
- to talk about future events or facts that are not personal:

 The best player on the tour will get a special trophy.

 The prime minister will open the debate in parliament tomorrow.
- to talk about something we decide to do at the time of speaking:

 Tell me all about it and I'll pass on the information to the rest of the team.

We often use will to make offers, promises or suggestions:

Don't worry, I'll let everyone know. (a promise)

3 Going to

Going to often means the same as the present continuous and will.

We use going to

- to talk about events in the future we have already thought about and intend to do:

 We're going to hire a bus. (we intend to go, but we haven't made the arrangements yet)

 We're going to get a boat to a couple of the islands.
- to make predictions when there is present evidence:

 Well, we're certainly going to have a varied trip. (I am judging this from what I know about the plans)

Going to and will can follow words like think, doubt, expect, believe, probably, certainly, definitely, be sure to show that it is an opinion about the future:

I think it's going to be a great trip.
I'm sure we'll enjoy it whatever the weather.
It'll probably rain every day.

We can often choose different future forms to talk about the same future situation. It depends on the speaker's ideas about the situation:

Often there is very little difference between going to and will for predictions.

Grammar extra: Making predictions using words other than will

In formal writing we often use expressions other than will to predict the future (e.g. be likely to, be predicted to, be estimated to, be certain to):

The population is likely to increase to 22 million in 2011.

The average annual rainfall is predicted to be ten per cent lower than today's figures.

General Training Reading

Questions 1-9

Read the passage below and answer Questions 1-9.

How to choose a university course

How do I choose a course?

You've decided you want to do a course. Whether you would like a career change, a better job or simply to learn something new, it's a good idea to think carefully first. Here's a quide to help you.

Qualifications - why do I need them?

Qualifications prove you've acquired knowledge or developed skills. For some careers like medicine and law, it's essential you have specific qualifications. For others, such as journalism, it helps to have a particular qualification.

Most universities set entry requirements for degree courses. Mature entrants don't always need formal qualifications, but need evidence of recent study, relevant work experience or professional qualifications. Professional bodies may grant you membership if you have certain qualifications. It's not always essential to have a qualification. Working knowledge, such as being able to use computer software, can be just as important.

What type of course should I do?

Your motives will help you choose the best course for your aims and goals. If you are career-driven, you'll need a course relevant to your profession. If you are interested in self-development and meeting people, you should find out who else will be on the course.

There are work-related (vocational) and academic courses. Further education colleges offer academic courses and work-related courses. Universities offer higher education qualifications, such as academic first degrees and higher degrees and the more vocational diplomas.

For a career in plumbing, a vocational course is essential. For teaching, you need a degree. However, for many jobs, you have a choice between academic and vocational courses. A vocational course is better if you like doing things with your hands and working manually. You might prefer an academic course if you like researching, analysing and presenting arguments.

Which type of study would suit me best?

Do you prefer on-the-job training, or do you prefer to research and gather facts? Do you like working in a group covering the same topics and working towards the same goal? If you prefer to work on your own, at your own pace, an open or distance learning course might suit you. You study from home, with the help of tuition packs, computers and tutor support via telephone or email. You can speed through the course or take your time. But you do need self-discipline and motivation.

What about my personal circumstances?

You might prefer an open or distance learning course if:

- you're working and you don't know how much time a week you can commit to
- you work irregular hours
- · you're at home looking after pre-school children.

Many colleges and training centres now offer flexible open-learning courses, where you can study at your own pace.

How do I know if it's a good course?

You've decided which subject and type of course you want, and how to study it. You now need to choose between different course titles and providers. There are many courses and they aren't of equal value. The only way to assess the quality and value of a course is by research. Read prospectuses (course guides) carefully and note if a course is accredited or validated by a recognised body (this might be an awarding body or a professional body). This can add extra weight to your qualification.

Don't take everything you read at face value; check out the facts about each course yourself. Ask course tutors as many questions as you want.

How can I be sure I'm making the right choice?

Be clear of your goal. If you've decided on a particular job, get an idea of what the job's about and if you'll like it. Read careers information, buy trade magazines, and speak to people currently working in the job. This research is well worth it. It's better to take your time rather than do a course that leads to a job you might not really want. You'll ensure that you don't waste any time or money.

What am I going to do after the course?

Plan for when you finish. If you're aiming for a particular job, do voluntary work while studying. If you're doing an English course and want to be a journalist, you could write for the student newspaper or work on the radio. Having a plan will help you make the most of the opportunities that come your way when you're on the course.

- 4 Look at the sentences used in Exercise 3 and answer these questions.
 - 1 Which sentences talk about events that will be over before a time in the future?
 - 2 Which sentences talk about events or situations in progress at a particular time in the future?
 - 3 Which sentence talks about a scheduled event?

B Grammar

1 Present simple

We use the present simple with a future meaning to talk about timetables or schedules:

The conference only lasts three days.

The train to the airport leaves in 20 minutes.

• after conjunctions such as when, as soon as, after, before, until, as long as:
I'll be feeling really nervous when I get to Rome. (not when I will get to Rome)

Can you do it before we have the departmental meeting? (not before we will have the meeting)

Note that other present tenses are also possible:

I won't be able to relax until I'm actually giving my talk.

2 Be about to am/is/are about to + verb am/is/are not about to + verb l'm about to go to Rome.

l'm not about to go to Rome.

Are you about to go to Rome?

We use be about to to talk about something likely to happen in the immediate future: I'm about to go to Rome for a conference. (I will be leaving very soon)

A The negative form suggests the speaker has no intention of doing something: I'm not about to cancel my trip. (= I have no intention of cancelling my trip)

3 Future continuous will be + verb + -ing will not (won't) be + verb + -ing will ... be + verb + -ing?

Will you be feeling nervous?

We use the future continuous to describe or predict events or situations continuing at a particular point in the future or over a period of time in the future:

I'll be working on the report all next week.

I'll be working on the report

NOW NEXT WEEK

I'll be thinking of you in Rome.

By the year 2015 it is estimated that well over one billion people will be learning English.

 to talk about events that are planned or already decided (this use is similar to the present continuous for future arrangements):

I'll be seeing Sarah at lunch.

4 Future perfect simple will have + past participle will not (won't) have + past participle will ... + have + past participle?

Will you have done it by then.
Will you have done it by then?

We use the future perfect simple to talk about a future event that will finish before a specified time in the future, often with before, by + fixed time, or in + amount of time:

By the end of the year I will have given the same talk at 6 conferences! I'll have finished it by next Friday.

In a week's time I'll have written the report.

5 Future perfect continuous will have been + verb + -ing will not (won't) have been + verb + -ing will ... + have been + verb + -ing?

I'll have been studying here for three months.

We won't have been studying here for long.

How long will you have been studying here?

We use the future perfect continuous to show how long an activity or situation has been in progress before a specified time in the future. We usually mention the length of time:

By the end of the month I'll have been working here for three years.

Grammar extra: The future in the past

We use was/were going to, was/were planning to, was/were about to + verb to talk something planned which did not or will not happen:

I was going to leave this morning but they cancelled my flight. We were about to leave when the phone rang.

- 8 Next Saturday afternoon I won't
- 9 On Sunday morning
- 10 In a year's time _____

Read the following projections about the future population of Australia.

Population projections

According to the latest available projections (which are based on several combinations of assumptions reflecting past trends in births, deaths and migration), the total population of Australia is likely to have increased to between 22.3 and 23.3 million by 2021.

The projected population will increase at a declining rate. The average annual growth rate is predicted to be between 0.5 and 0.8 during 2011–2021. Without overseas migration, the projected total population should peak at about 23.3 million in 2041, and then start to decline marginally.

Age distribution

The projected population will age progressively due to the increasing proportion of the elderly (aged 65 years or more) and the decreasing proportion of children (aged under 15 years). In brief, the number of persons aged under 15 is projected to be between 3.7 and 4.1 million in 2031; the population of working age (15–64 years) is projected to increase to between 14.4 and 15.0 million in 2031; and the number of persons aged 65 years or more is projected to increase to between 2.94 and 2.98 million in 2031. The projections also show significant increases in the number of persons aged 80 years or more.

Write the verbs in brackets in the future perfect tense. Then choose the correct ending for each sentence.

Academic Writing Task 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

The birth rate in most developed countries is predicted to begin to fall over the next 50 years. By 2030 it is estimated that over one third of the population in most developed countries will be aged 65 and over.

What effects will these predictions have on developed countries if they prove true? What can be done now to deal with this situation?

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

You should write at least 250 words.

B Grammar

1 Countable and uncountable nouns

Countable nouns

generally have a singular and plural form:
 a window, lots of windows
 Some countable nouns only have a plural form: clothes, trousers, jeans, scissors

- take a singular or plural verb form:
 The window is big. The windows are big.
- can be replaced by a singular or plural pronoun:
 I'd like that desk; it's better than mine.
 It's got shelves as well. They're really handy.
- can be measured with weights and measures: two kilos of potatoes or numbers: It's got three drawers.
- can be used with a/an:
 a desk, an apple

Uncountable nouns

- cannot be plural: advice (not advices), furniture (not furnitures), data
 Some uncountable nouns look plural but they are not: news, economics, physics
- take only a singular verb form: The natural light is really nice.
- can be replaced by a singular pronoun: 'What shall we say about the furniture?'

 'Well, it's not luxurious but it is very comfortable.'
- can be measured with weights and measures: two kilos of sugar or with words like a piece of, cup of, bit of, slice of: a piece of information
- cannot be used with a/an: information (not an information)

2 Some and any

Some

- is generally used in positive statements: There are some shelves above the desk.
- can also be used in questions and particularly in requests and offers: Would you like some biscuits?
- means 'an unspecified (not large) amount':

 It would be great to get some money to help with the rent. (we don't know how much money)

⚠ We use some of with other determiners (e.g. my, the, these) to refer to a particular group: Some of my students have part-time jobs.

Any

- is usually used in negatives and questions:
 My desk hasn't got any drawers.
 Has your desk got any drawers?
- can also be used in positive statements to mean 'it doesn't matter who/which/where/when': Call me any time if you need further help. (= it doesn't matter when you call)

▲ We can also use no + noun to mean the same as not ... any:

My desk has got no drawers. (= my desk hasn't got any drawers)

We use no when the noun is a subject:

No applicants had the necessary experience for the job. (not Not any applicants)

Words like something/anything, somebody/anybody, etc. follow the same rules as some and any.

Countable and uncountable nouns

4 Look at the two groups of nouns in the table below. How are they different? Add the nouns from Exercises 2 and 3 into the table in the correct group.

Group 1	Group 2
advertisement newspaper windows	money news accommodation

3 Quantities

We can use the following words to say how many or how much:

	Plural countable nouns	Uncountable nouns everything	all (of)	all (of) large quantities	lots of / plenty of / a lot of many (of) most (of) a large/considerable/substantial number of	lots of / plenty of / a lot of much (of) most (of) a large/considerable/substantial amount of medium quantities	some (of)/a certain number of	some (of)/a certain amount of small quantities	(a) few (of) a small/limited/tiny number of	(a) little (of) a small/limited/tiny amount of nothing	no / not any / none of	no / not any / none of

A few and a little are different from few and little. Compare:

Few rooms have such good natural light. (= not many, so you are lucky)

We have a few rooms available with a sea view. (= a small number)

Little research has been done in this area. (= not enough)

A little research has already been carried out in this area. (= a small amount)

We use a few of with other determiners (e.g. my, the, these) to refer to a particular group: A few of the rooms have a sea view.

Lots of / a lot of are less formal than much/many:

There are lots of advertisements for accommodation in the paper.

Many scientists believe that global warming is having a negative impact on our climate.

⚠ We do not usually use lots of with negative statements:

We don't have a lot of/much time so we'll have to be quick. (not we don't have lots of time)

⚠ We do not usually use much in positive sentences:

I found a lot of information on the Internet. (not much information)

Grammar extra: Nouns that can be both countable and uncountable

Sometimes the same noun can be either countable or uncountable depending on the meaning (e.g. light, room, cake, time). Materials and liquids can also be either (e.g. glass, paper, coffee, wine). Compare:

The natural light is really nice. (uncountable)

Both of the lights in the ceiling are really old. (countable)

There isn't much room for a desk. (uncountable = space)

We have two spare rooms. (countable = rooms in a house)

Do you drink much coffee? (uncountable = in general)

I'd like to order a coffee, please. (countable = a cup of coffee)

A Read the extract from a talk about a holiday destination. Decide if the underlined quantity expressions are correct or not. Tick (/) them if they are right and correct them if they are wrong.

The island is beautiful. Don't be dismayed when you get off the plane and find yourself in a large, rather ugly city with 1 a little sense of the old way of life you have read about. Just a short car ride away is the island you have been promised with its small villages and slow pace of life. And there really is 2 anything for everyone. For those that like sunbathing, it has 3 some of the most beautiful beaches in the world. If you like walking, the paths take you through some breathtaking scenery.

4 Little other places can match the stunning landscape of this island. For water sports enthusiasts, there are 5 any unusual activities such as diving for pearls or turtle spotting, along with 6 few of the more common sports such as waterskiing or windsurfing. If history is your thing, don't worry. There's 7 much history round every corner. Ruins from the ancient civilisations that lived here over 3000 years ago are everywhere, and although 8 a lot of people come here just to see the palace, you can find some lesser remains scattered around the surrounding hills.

Visit it 9 some time of the year and you will not be disappointed. Not 10 many places in the world can offer so much. 11 Not any holiday will ever match this one – our island has got it all!

Academic Reading

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1–14 which are based on the Reading Passage below.

Dressed to dazzle

As high-tech materials invade high-street fashion, prepare for clothes that are cooler than silk and warmer than wool, keep insects at arm's length, and emit many pinpricks of coloured light.

The convergence of fashion and high technology is leading to new kinds of fibres, fabrics and coatings that are imbuing clothing with equally wondrous powers. Corpe Nove, an Italian fashion company, has made a prototype shirt that shortens its sleeves when room temperature rises and can be ironed with a hairdryer. And at Nexia Biotechnologies, a Canadian firm, scientists have caused a stir by manufacturing spider silk from the milk of genetically engineered goats. Not surprisingly, some industry analysts think high-tech materials may soon influence fashion more profoundly than any individual designer.

A big impact is already being made at the molecular level. Nano-Tex, a subsidiary of American textiles maker Burlington, markets a portfolio of nanotechnologies that can make fabrics more durable, comfortable, wrinkle-free and stain-resistant. The notion of this technology posing a threat to the future of the clothing industry clearly does not worry popular fashion outlets such as Gap, Levi Strauss and Lands' End, all of which employ Nano-Tex's products. Meanwhile, Schoeller Textil in Germany, whose clients include famous designers Donna Karan and Polo Ralph Lauren, uses nanotechnology to create fabrics that can store or release heat.

Sensory Perception Technologies (SPT) embodies an entirely different application of nanotechnology. Created in 2003 by Quest International, a flavour and fragrance company, and Woolmark, a wool textile organisation, SPT is a new technique of embedding chemicals into fabric. Though not the first of this type, SPT's durability (evidently the microcapsule containing the chemicals can survive up to 30 washes) suggests an interesting future. Designers could incorporate signature scents into their collections. Sportswear could be impregnated with anti-perspirant. Hayfever sufferers might find relief by pulling on a T-shirt, and so on.

The loudest buzz now surrounds polylactic acid (PLA) fibres – and, in particular, one brand-named Ingeo. Developed by Cargill Dow, it is the first man-made fibre derived from a 100% annually renewable resource. This is currently maize (corn), though in theory any fermentable plant material, even potato peelings, can be used. In performance terms, the attraction for the 30-plus clothes makers signed up to use Ingeo lies in its superiority over polyester (which it was designed to replace).

As Philippa Watkins, a textiles specialist, notes, Ingeo is not a visual trend. Unlike nanotechnology, which promises to transform what clothes can do, Ingeo's impact on fashion will derive instead from its emphasis on using natural sustainable resources. Could wearing synthetic fabrics made from polluting and non-renewable fossil fuels become as uncool as slipping on a coat made from animal fur? Consumers should expect a much wider choice of 'green' fabrics. Alongside PLA fibres, firms are investigating plants such as bamboo, seaweed, nettles and banana stalks as raw materials for textiles. Soya bean fibre is also gaining ground. Harvested in China and spun in Europe, the fabric is a better absorber and ventilator than silk, and retains heat better than wool.

Elsewhere, fashion houses – among them Ermenegildo Zegna, Paul Smith and DKNY – are combining fashion with electronics. Clunky earlier attempts involved attaching electronic components to the fabrics after the normal weaving process. But companies such as SOFTswitch have developed electro-conductive fabrics that behave in similar ways to conventional textiles.

Could electronic garments one day change colour or pattern? A hint of what could be achieved is offered by Luminex, a joint venture between Stabio Textile and Caen. Made of woven optical fibres and powered by a small battery, Luminex fabric emits thousands of pinpricks of light, the colour of which can be varied. Costumes made of the fabric wowed audiences at a production of the opera Aida in Washington, DC, last year.

Yet this ultimate of ambitions has remained elusive in daily fashion, largely because electronic textiles capable of such wizardry are still too fragile to wear. Margaret Orth, whose firm International Fashion Machines makes a colour-changing fabric, believes the capability is a decade or two away. Accessories with this chameleon-like capacity – for instance, a handbag that alters its colour – are more likely to appear first.

Questions 1-6

Look at the following list of companies (1-6) and the list of new materials below.

Match each company with the correct material.

Write the correct letter A-H next to the companies 1-6.

NB You may use any answer more than once.

1 Corpe Nove	•••••	4 Schoeller Textil	•••••
2 Nexia Biotechnologies		5 Quest International and Woolmark
3 Nano-Tex		6 Cargill Dow

New materials

- A material that can make you warmer or cooler
- B clothing with perfume or medication added
- C material that rarely needs washing
- D clothes that can change according to external heat levels
- E material made from banana stalks
- F material that is environmentally-friendly
- G fibres similar to those found in nature
- H clothes that can light up in the dark

Questions 7-14

Complete the summary below.

Write NO MORE THAN TWO WORDS from the Reading Passage for each answer.

Grammar focus task

Which of these nouns from the text are countable (C) and which are uncountable (U)? Which is an example of a noun that can be both countable and uncountable? How is it used in the text?

Now listen to the talk and complete the notes below.

Write no more than two words or a number for each answer.

Envisat satellite

- Envisat was launched 1
- Envisat has 2 instrument systems.

- This is the same as 6 of coffee per person per year.
- een:
- Underline the correct words. 8ad Listen again to check your answers.
 - 1 Envisat is a/the fully equipped observation satellite.
 - 2 A/The satellite was launched in 2002.
 - 3 With its ten instrument systems it is equipped with -/the best eyes possible and offers everything that -/the scientists could wish for.
 - 4 The total cost of the Envisat Programme is 2.3 billion euros over 15 years. Included in that/this sum is development and construction of the instruments.
 - 5 Neither/None of our countries can afford to let down their environmental guard.
- 4 Look at your answers to Exercise 3 and answer these questions.
 - 1 Why do we say a satellite in sentence 1 and the satellite in sentence 2?
 - 2 In sentence 3, why do we use an article before best? Why don't we use an article in front of the word scientists?
 - 3 In sentence 4, what does this sum refer to?
 - 4 In sentence 5, why can't we use neither?

B Grammar

1 Articles

a/an

We use a/an

- to refer to something for the first time:
 I'd like to talk to you today about an exciting development.
- to refer to any one from a group of several:

 Climate protection is a challenge for our entire society. (one of many challenges)
- to classify people or things as belonging to a group:

 Envisat is a fully-equipped observation satellite. (there are different kinds of satellite)
- to say what job somebody does: My brother is an engineer.
- \triangle We can only use a/an with singular countable nouns.

We use the

• when the listener/reader knows which thing we mean (it may have been mentioned before): Envisat is a fully-equipped observation satellite ... The satellite was launched in 2002.

or it is understood which thing we mean:

As part of the conference on environmental awareness ... (we are at the conference now so it is clear which one I mean)

Compare:

I went to a conference on Environmental awareness last week. (the person I am talking to does not know which conference I am talking about)

- when there is only one of this thing:
 - the earth, the sun, the twentieth century, the sixties, the Government, the Prime Minister (there is only one government and one prime minister in each country)
- for superlatives (see Unit 11):

 It is equipped with the best eyes possible.
- to talk about playing a musical instrument:
 He plays the piano and she plays the guitar.
- with certain proper nouns:

nationalities (the British, the Chinese, the Egyptians) rivers (the Thames, the Yangtze, the Nile) island groups (the Maldives, the Philippines, the Seychelles) mountain ranges (the Alps, the Himalayas) seas and oceans (the Black Sea, the Mediterranean, the Pacific) country names that represent a group (the United Kingdom, the United States of America) many famous/historical buildings (the White House) noun phrases with of (the Great Wall of China, the Temple of Heaven)

△ With university names we can say the University of Bath or Bath University.

No article

We use no article

with plural or uncountable nouns to talk generally about things:
 It will deliver information about our changing environment.
 It offers everything that scientists could wish for. (scientists in general not a specific group of scientists)

with certain proper nouns:

continents (Europe, Asia) countries (Australia, China) states or counties (Michigan, Cambridgeshire) towns and cities (Tokyo, Jeddah) mountains (Everest, Kilimanjaro) lakes (Lake Superior) companies (Microsoft, Sony) buildings and places with the name of a town (Heathrow Airport) with mealtimes:

 I have lunch at 12.30.

• in common expressions after prepositions:

to/at school/university; to/in class; in prison/hospital/bed

⚠ We can use the/a if we want to be specific. Compare:

When I was a child I used to walk to school.

When I was a child I went to the school on the other side of town.

However, we cannot use an article with the following expressions:

at home; at/to work; at night; by bus/bicycle/car/train/plane; on foot

2 Demonstratives: this, that, these, those

We use these words to show whether something is near or remote, in terms of time or place:

	near	remote
time	I'd like to talk to you this morning about an exciting development. (today)	My mother called me later that day. (I am telling you this on a different day)
place	I like these pictures. (here)	Oh, I prefer those pictures. (over there)

We can use this/that/these/those to refer back to something previously mentioned in the text: The total cost of the Envisat programme is 2.3 billion euros over 15 years. Included in this sum ... (this sum = 2.3 billion euros)

We can refer back to whole sentences or ideas with this and that:

Seeing the earth from outer space highlights how tiny and fragile our planet is. Envisat helps people to understand that. (= understand how tiny and fragile our planet is)

There is often very little difference between this and that when used in this way, so we could say:

Envisat helps people to understand this.

3 Possessives

We use possessive determiners (my/your/his/her/its/our/their) to tell us what or who something belongs to:

our blue planet; their children

 \triangle We cannot use possessive determiners after other determiners (e.g. a, the). We use determiner + noun + of + possessive pronoun:

this planet of ours (not this our planet)

We use 's with singular nouns and irregular plural nouns. We use s' after regular plural nouns: Europe's technological showpiece; the children's toys; my parents' house

We usually use noun + of instead of 's when the thing we are referring to is not a person or animal:

the price of the hotel (not the hotel's price)

4 Inclusives

each, every

Each and every are used with a singular noun and verb.

Each is used for things or people in a group of two or more, with a focus on the individuals in the group:

Each European citizen has therefore invested seven euros in the environment.

Every is used for three or more things, with a focus on the group. Often the difference in focus between each and every is very small:

Every citizen will have access to precise information about changes in the environment (= Each citizen ...)

We can use each (but not every) + of + noun/pronoun:

Each of the students gave the teacher a present. (not every of the students)

all, most, some

We use all/most/some + plural noun and verb to talk about things in general:

Most children like sweets.

Some people believe space exploration is a waste of money.

We use all/most/some + of + pronoun or determiner + noun or to refer to a specific group: Most of the children at my school play football.

 \triangle We do not need to use all + of before a noun, but we need of before a pronoun:

All the children at my school play a musical instrument.

All of them like music. (not all them)

△When all is followed by a singular noun referring to time the meaning is different. Compare: I worked hard all day. (= I worked hard for one whole day)

I worked hard every day. (= I regularly worked hard)

Both, neither, either, none

Both, neither and either refer to two people or things. We use both + plural noun and either/neither + singular noun:

Both satellites were launched in the 1990s.

Neither person knew very much about Envisat before the conference. (= not one or the other) I don't mind where we go. Either restaurant is fine. (= one or the other is fine)

We use both + of + determiner + plural noun (or pronoun) with a plural verb. We can use either/neither + of + determiner + plural noun (or pronoun) with a singular or a plural verb: Neither of my sisters lives/live in the same town as me.

Both of them are married. (not Both of them is married.)

None means 'not one' (of a group). It can be followed by a singular or plural verb: None of our countries is/are able to ignore the implications of global warming.

B Grammar

1 Personal and possessive pronouns

Subject personal pronouns: I, you, he, she, it, we, they Object personal pronouns: me, you, him, her, it, us, them
Possessive pronouns: mine, yours, his, hers, ours, theirs

We use pronouns to replace nouns and avoid repetition of the noun:

I can introduce you to my friend, Yi Ling. She's a student from Taiwan. (not Yi Ling's a student)

We use subject pronouns before verbs:

I only arrived last month.

and object pronouns after verbs or prepositions:

I have had a lot of students staying with me over the years.

We use possessive pronouns to replace a possessive determiner and a noun:

I don't have a phone here. Can I use yours? (= your phone)

A Its is not used as a possessive pronoun.

2 Reflexive pronouns

Reflexive pronouns: myself, yourself, himself, herself, itself, ourselves, yourselves, themselves

We use reflexive pronouns

- when the subject and the object of the verb are the same: You can prepare yourself a packed lunch if you like.
- to add emphasis to the subject or object:

 I clean the kitchen and the living areas myself. (= I do it, not anybody else)
- with by to mean on my own/on your own etc.:

 I clean the kitchen and the living areas by myself. (= on my own)
- after some set expressions in the imperative with yourself/yourselves: Help yourself. Look after yourself. (= be careful) Enjoy yourselves.

A Notice the use of each other/one another below:

The boys taught themselves English. (= each boy taught himself English)
The boys taught each other/one another some new words. (= each boy taught the other boy some new words)

3 Some special situations

It

We can use it as a subject to start a sentence without carrying any meaning. Often the sentences are about the weather, the time or distance:

It didn't always rain. It's five o'clock. It's 10 km from the sea.

• to start sentences when the real subject is an infinitive or an -ing form:

It won't take long to settle in. (= to settle in won't take long) to refer to phrases, whole sentences or ideas:

I only arrived last month and I am still finding it all a bit strange, actually. (= living in a foreign country)

⚠ We use there + be + noun phrase to show something exists (or doesn't exist), not it:

There's a good coffee shop near here. (not It is a good coffee shop near here.)

You and we

To talk about everybody in general we can use

you:

In Australia you often eat sandwiches for lunch. (= people in Australia)

• we (when we include ourselves in the group):

We often eat lunch in a bit of a hurry. (= Australian people in general, and the speaker is Australian)

They

We can use they

• to mean experts or authorities:

They have changed the law recently. (= the government)
They have discovered a new kind of beetle. (= scientists)

• when we do not know or do not need to say if the person is male or female:

I asked a student if they liked learning English and they said no!

One/ones

We can use one/ones to avoid repetition of a countable noun:

I do have a few rules. The most important one is that I want everyone to feel at home. (= the most important rule)

Dear Liz

I'm sorry I haven't emailed you for a while. I'm really busy with my studies at the moment. My course is going well and I'm enjoying my course is lot. The trouble is that my course takes up all my time. How is your course going?

I hope you will be able to visit me soon. I'd like you to meet my friends. My best friend here is Paul. Paul lives in the flat next to my flat, and I usually eat most of my meals with Paul. At the moment I'm doing most of the cooking though, because Paul had an accident last week. One of the reasons for the accident is connected to some changes at the university recently. The university authorities have decided that students shouldn't be allowed to bring cars up to the campus, so more and more of the students are cycling. Because of this new rule, Paul was riding his bicycle to the university. While he was cycling along a car driver drove into the back of his bike. The car driver didn't stop and check if he was okay. Luckily Paul was not badly hurt and managed to pick up his bike and get to the doctor's surgery. The doctor said his finger was probably broken and strapped his finger up, so he can't hold anything in his right hand at the moment and Paul can't really cook for Paul.

Anyway, he'd like to meet you, so we must arrange a time for you to come here.

Get in touch soon.

Love, Sandy

There are many reasons why $1 \underline{\text{we}}$ / they should recycle household waste. The main reason is to avoid using up valuable resources making new things when 2 it is / we are not necessary. However, I do not think the government should make 3 it / the law compulsory for people to recycle their waste.

If the government makes a law that all households must recycle 4 their / its rubbish, 5 the law / it could lead to more problems. For example, how can 6 you / people check that people are recycling everything?

7 It is not practical to do this. / To do this is not practical. In addition, there is the argument that individuals should be allowed to decide for 8 each other / themselves whether to throw something away or to recycle 9 it / something.

I believe the most sensible approach is for the government to put more money into recycling schemes. The most successful are 10 the ones / them where the government gives each household special boxes to put different kinds of waste in, and 11 the government / they provide a regular collection service.

12 They / There are separate boxes for plastic, metal, glass etc. This makes 13 to recycle easier for people / it easier for people to recycle and 14 they / there are therefore less likely to throw things in the rubbish bin.

Academic Writing Task 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic.

Governments spend millions of dollars each year on their space programmes. Most recently, Mars is the focus of scientists' attention. Some people think this money would be better spent on dealing with problems closer to home.

Do you agree or disagree?

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

You should write at least 250 words.

Grammar focus task

Look at these extracts from a model answer. Match the pronouns (1-5) to the uses (A-E).

- ... However, some people believe this cannot justify the huge amount of money spent on space research when there is a greater need for 1 it here on earth ...
- ... For example, the United States and the USSR raced each other to see who could put a man on the moon first. 2 lt would have been much easier and cheaper if 3 they had pooled resources and information, and made a joint expedition into space ...
- ... 4 It is very difficult to argue against these criticisms ...
- ... In my opinion, 5 we need a balance between how much money is spent on space exploration and how much money is invested into solving problems here on earth. With continued co-operation between nations over space travel more will be achieved for less money. This should leave more money to be spent on problems at home ...

A a subject which doesn't carry a specific meaning

B to refer to the United States and the USSR

C to refer to money

D to refer to people in general

E to replace an infinitive as a subject

		••••••	•••••	••••••

B Grammar

1 Adjectives

Adjectives describe nouns.

How adjectives are used

We can use adjectives

before nouns:

There are so many historical buildings. It was well worth the trip, especially if you like local crafts.

- after the following verbs: be, become, get, seem, appear, look, smell, taste, feel The mosques in particular are very beautiful.

 They always seem pleased to see you.
- after find/make/keep + object:
 Work hard on your research if you want to make your trip enjoyable and rewarding.
 I found the insects rather frightening.
- with other adjectives or with other nouns to describe a noun:
 a long, tiring boat ride (adjective + adjective + noun + noun)

The order of adjectives

When we use adjectives together, we put words which express opinion before words which describe the characteristics or type of what we are talking about:

a beautiful Turkish carpet (beautiful = opinion + Turkish = type: not a Turkish beautiful carpet)

We often use nouns as adjectives to add information about type:

the Gujarati Textile Museum

When we use more than one adjective to describe characteristics or type, they usually follow this order:

 $size \rightarrow temperature \rightarrow age \rightarrow shape \rightarrow colour \rightarrow nationality \rightarrow material \rightarrow type$

Indian silk embroidery small mountain villages hot black coffee a beautiful old round table

When there are two or more adjectives after a verb or noun, we use and between the last two: The people are very welcoming and friendly towards visitors.

We use and between two colours:

vivid blue and green feathers

Adjectives ending in -ed and -ing

Some adjectives connected with feelings are formed from verbs and have two possible forms, usually -ed or -ing e.g. tired/tiring. We use -ed forms to talk about how we feel:

I was fascinated to see the extraordinary range of patterns.

I was amazed at the variety of wonderful animals.

We use -ing forms to describe the things or people that cause the feelings:

It's an absolutely amazing city to visit.

India is a fascinating country.

2 Adverbs

Adverbs give information about verbs, adjectives or other adverbs. Adverbs tell us how (manner), where (place), when (time), how often (frequency), or how much (intensity) something happens or is done. An adverb can be a single word (sometimes) or a phrase (from time to time).

How adverbs are used

Adverbs which tell us about

- manner are often formed by adding -ly to the adjective form:
 careful → carefully happy → happily
 They usually come after the verb (and object, if there is one):
 I plan my trips very carefully. (not I plan very carefully my trips)
- place usually come after the verb:
 It was the first time I had been there.
 Try to stay near the old part of the city.
- time such as today, tomorrow, now, since 2003, for three minutes can go at the beginning or the end of a clause:

I had a very memorable trip last year. (or Last year I had a very memorable trip.)

• frequency usually come before the verb but after be or an auxiliary verb: I often travel for my job. I have always enjoyed my visits there. He's never late.

• intensity affect the strength of adjectives or adverbs:

fairly, quite, very, extremely, absolutely, rather, pretty highly, really completely, totally weaker stronger

The adverbs at the stronger end of the scale (absolutely, completely, totally) can only be used with some adjectives. These tend to be 'extreme' adjectives that suggest a limit in their meaning (e.g. terrifying, excellent, exhausted). Other 'non-extreme' adjectives (e.g. frightened, good, tired) never collocate with these stronger adverbs. Compare:

There are some absolutely stunning examples of Indian silk embroidery. (not fairly stunning)
The people are very friendly. (not absolutely friendly)

Really collocates with most adjectives.

▲ We cannot intensify adjectives or nouns which describe type (not a very Textile Museum).

The order of adverbs

When two or more adverbs are used together at the end of a clause the order is usually manner \rightarrow place \rightarrow time:

I'll meet you outside the station at six o'clock. (outside the station = place, at six o'clock = time)

Irregular adverbs

Some adverbs of manner look the same as the adjective form (e.g. hard, fast, straight, late, early):

Work hard on your research. (adverb) This is a hard exercise. (adjective)

Hard is an adjective and an adverb, and hardly is an adverb meaning very little:

He hardly had time to say hello. (= he had very little time to say hello)

Good is an adjective, and well is the adverb:

He spoke very good English. (describes English) He spoke English very well. (describes how he spoke)

However, well can also be an adjective when talking about health:

She's not well - she's got a cold.

Grammar extra: Adjectives

Some adjectives can be followed by to + infinitive to add to their meaning (e.g. able, likely, right, wrong, lucky) and some adjectives describing feelings (e.g. surprised, afraid, happy, delighted):

I'll he happy to answer questions.

I was fascinated to see the extraordinary range of patterns.

Some adjectives can be followed by a preposition + -ing (see Unit 19):

People are tired of hearing politicians' promises. (not tired to hear)

I am not very good at taking photographs. (not good to take photographs)

Questions 1-8

Look at the information about five museums A-E in Seoul, South Korea.

For which museum are the following statements true?

Write the correct letter A-F next to Questions 1-8.

NB You may write any letter more than once.

1	I his museum also functions as an occasional venue for performing arts
2	You can learn about natural history in this museum
3	This museum is the only one of its kind in Korea
4	This is the most high-tech of the museums
5	A historical building once stood where this museum stands today
6	This museum contains something for the very distant future
7	The exhibits in this museum include objects from the distant past

8 You can take classes one day a week at this museum.

A Namsangol Traditional Folk Village

Located just north of Namsan Park, this recreation of a small village depicts the architecture and gardens of the Chosun Dynasty (1393–1910). There are five restored traditional houses from that era. A large pavilion overlooks a beautiful pond and an outdoor theatre hosts dance and drama performances on weekends. There is also a hall displaying traditional handicrafts and a kiosk selling souvenirs. Recently, a time capsule containing 600 items representing the lifestyle of modern-day people of Seoul was buried to celebrate the city's 600th anniversary. In 2394, it will be opened!

B Eunan Museum

This privately-owned museum displays rare specimens of animals, ores, and species of insects collected from around the world. The building comprises six floors, one under ground and five above. Among the fauna on exhibition are shellfish, insects, butterflies and birds. The collection is housed on the lower floors. On the third floor is a library and the fifth floor has a study room and an ocean exhibition hall. One aim of the museum is to bring animal extinction to the attention of the public.

C National Museum of Korea

This is one of the most extensive museums in Seoul, housing art and archaeological relics from Korean prehistory through to the end of the Chosun Dynasty (1910). Throughout the three-floor museum, there are 4,500 artefacts on display in 18 permanent galleries. Audio guides, touch screens, and video rooms all help to bring the ancient world alive here. In addition to regular exhibitions, the museum offers special educational programs such as public lectures, arts and crafts classes, and special tours.

D Seoul Metropolitan Museum of Art

Established in 1988, this museum is located on the former site of Kyonghee-gung palace. There are four floors with six exhibition halls. The collections include more than 170 Korean paintings, Western paintings and prints. Spend a peaceful and relaxing day amidst beautiful works of art. If you are an art enthusiast and would like to learn, the museum offers art courses every Friday.

E Korea Sports Museum

This is the sole museum in Korea dedicated to sports. It displays about 2,500 items tracing back to 1920, when Korea's first sports organization was founded. You can browse through sports memorabilia such as badges, medals, photographs, trophies, and mascots related to national and international sports events. Make sure not to miss the taekwondo-related exhibits.

Questions 9-14

Read the information below and answer Questions 9-14.

Gear Guide - Buying a Backpack

Most walkers will know the value of a good backpack. Choosing one is a different matter, as any trip to an outdoor shop will reveal. To help, gear expert Peter Hawkins examines the ins and outs of a backpack.

A quick glance through my outdoor trade directory reveals 49 companies that sell or make rucksacks. If they all produce ten backpacks then we have a frightening number for the humble beginner to choose from. So before you set foot in an outdoor shop consider what you want your rucksack for.

The first and most vital consideration is your anticipated load. If your walks are short summer evening strolls then a small sack would be fine, but if your walks are day-long and year-round then your sack will need to be bigger. Mine typically contains a flask, packed lunch, waterproofs, clothing I've peeled off during the day, first aid kit and an emergency shelter. In winter I add a sleeping bag and a torch. I need a sack with a reasonable capacity.

My current backpack is a Craghopper AD30 (30 litres) which is just big enough. Admittedly I do often lead walking parties in remote places so perhaps my added responsibilities cause me to carry more. Compare my list with yours to see if you need as much carrying space.

The second consideration is weight. Choose a light sack, but make sure it can take the weight of what you are carrying and it supports the load comfortably on your back.

The next thing to consider is the rucksack's features. Today you can get quite technically advanced backpacks boasting excellent features: advanced fabrics, a variety of side and lid pockets, loops for walking poles, internal frames, adjustable straps, hip belts and clever ventilation systems to keep your back cool.

You also need to look inside. It may seem obvious, but you should choose a backpack that allows you easy access. Some have narrow necks that make removing bulky items difficult. It's also important to choose a backpack that fits the length of your back. Being six feet I need a long, thin rucksack rather than a short, wider one. If I use the latter, I have a hip belt round my stomach!

Last, and probably least, we have the look of the sack to consider. Obviously you can't see it when it's on your back, but why buy something that won't look good on you? After all, there's no shortage of colours or designs to choose from.

A Context listening

You are going to hear a talk comparing the performance of older and younger athletes. Before you listen look at the phrases from the talk. Which ones would you associate with young athletes and which ones would you associate with older athletes?

breaking records peak fitness Olympics strongest in the world physical improvement complete a marathon greatest increases in speed four minutes quicker each year set record running times

- 2 011 Listen and check if you were right.
- 3 Listen again and say whether these sentences are true or false. Correct the sentences that are false.
 - 1 Older athletes are getting faster and fitter.
 - 2 Runners aged 50+ are speeding up less rapidly than young runners.
 - 3 Women aged 60-68 running the New York marathon run on average two minutes faster each year.
 - 4 Older athletes are less likely to achieve their peak fitness than younger athletes.
 - 5 People grow weaker because they are less active than when they were younger.
- 4 Underline the language used to compare in Exercise 3.
 - 1 Which sentences contain adjectives?
 - 2 Which sentences contain adverbs?
 - 3 Which word is used as both an adjective and an adverb?

B Grammar

1 Comparing adjectives

adjective	comparative	superlative
one syllable: hard	adjective + -er: harder	the + adjective + -est: the hardest one syllable ending in -e: nice	adjective + -r: nicer	the + adjective + -st : the nicest
one syllable ending in vowel + consonant: fat	adjective with last consonant doubled + er: fatter	the + adjective + consonant doubled + -est: the fattest
two syllables ending in -y: happy	adjective -x + ier: happier	the + adjective -x + iest: the happiest
two or more syllables: enjoyable	more + adjective: more enjoyable	the most + adjective: the most enjoyable
Irregular: good, bad, far	better, worse, further/farther	the best, the worst, the furthest/farthest

Comparative adjectives

We use comparative adjectives to compare two or more things, people or places:

Younger runners will always be faster than older runners.

or the same thing, person or place at two different times:

I'm much fitter than I was last year.

We use than after comparative adjectives to say what we are comparing something with. Sometimes we leave out the than-clause if it is clear from the context what we are comparing something with:

Older athletes are getting faster and fitter. (than in the past)

Superlative adjectives

We use superlative adjectives to compare one thing in a group with all the others in that group: The Olympics is probably the most exciting sports event in the sports calendar.

We can modify superlatives with

• one of the / some of the + superlative + plural noun:

It's one of the few chances we get to see some of the best athletes in the world competing against each other.

Tamsin is one of the most generous people I know.

ordinal numbers:

Our team was the third best in the competition.

We can replace the with a possessive:

my best friend his greatest achievement

2 Comparing adverbs

We can compare how things are done by using more/most + adverb:

Runners aged 50 and over are speeding up more rapidly than younger people. Women aged 60 to 68 improved the most markedly.

Adverbs that have the same form as the adjective (e.g. hard, fast, straight, late, early, quick) add -er/-est:

Women aged 60 to 68 run on average four minutes faster each year.

There are some irregular adverbs (e.g. well, better, best; badly, worse, worst; far, further, furthest; little, less, least):

I did worse than I had expected in the exam, so I was disappointed.

3 Other ways of comparing

We use less/the least to mean the opposite of more/the most:

You might imagine that the Masters Games would be less exciting to watch. That was probably the least enjoyable meal I've ever had!

We can add emphasis

- with words like even, far, a great deal, a little, a lot, much + comparative: Older women showed much greater increases in speed than expected.
- in formal English with words like slightly, considerably, significantly + comparative: The figures for 2003 were significantly higher than those for the year 2000. The number of women in higher education was only slightly lower than the number of men.
- ▲ We cannot use very with comparatives (not the number of women was very lower).

We can say two things are the same or similar with as + adjective/adverb + as:

My car is as old as yours. (= the two cars are the same age)
Older athletes are as likely to achieve their peak fitness as younger athletes. (= they have the same chance of achieving this)

We can add to the meaning by using just, almost, nearly, half, twice, three times etc.:

In 2005, our team was almost as successful as in 2003. He can run twice as fast as the others in his team.

We can say two things are different with not as + adjective/adverb + as:

While they may not be as fast as their younger counterparts ...

We can show that a change is happening over time by repeating the comparative:

Each year athletes seem to be getting better and better.

Our atmosphere is gradually becoming more and more polluted.

It seems less and less likely that there will be a general election this year.

We use the + comparative + the + comparative to show that two things vary or change at the same time:

It would seem that the longer athletes keep competing the greater their chances of setting new records are.

The sooner the better.

4 Comparing quantities

quantifier	comparative	superlative a lot / much / many	more	the most a few	fewer (+ plural countable noun)	the fewest (+ plural countable noun)
a little	less (+ uncountable noun)	the least (+ uncountable noun)

For plural or uncountable nouns we can compare quantities with more or most:

Today's top sportspeople receive a lot more money than in the past.

We can use fewer or the fewest with plural countable nouns, and less or the least with uncountable nouns:

25 years ago few 60-year-old men and even fewer women would have considered running a marathon.

There used to be less information available about fitness.

We can add emphasis

- with a lot / many + more / fewer + plural countable noun:
 Increased sponsorship has given today's athletes many more opportunities to succeed.
- with a lot / much + more / less + uncountable noun:
 Today's athletes need to do much more training than in the past.
- by repeating more/less/fewer:
 So much in our society is about making more and more money.

We can say something is the same or different using (not) as many/much + plural/uncountable noun (+ as):

There aren't as many people doing sports at school (as there used to be).

We can add more specific information about quantity by using half, twice, three times etc. with as many/much ... as:

In 2004 China won nearly twice as many silver medals as the US. The US won more than three times as many medals as Great Britain.

Grammar extra: Comparing nouns

We can compare how similar things are using like, the same (as), similar to:

Older athletes can achieve the same degree of physical improvement as those in their twenties and thirties.

He swims like a fish.

This film is similar to this director's last one.

8	Italy	10	11	11	32
9	South Korea	9	12	9	30
10	Great Britain	9	9	12	30

The table shows the number of medals won by the top ten countries in the 2004 Olympic Games. The USA won 1 greatest number of medals overall with a total of 103. They won 2 more silver medals as gold and 3 more medals than any other country in both categories. China had 4 the second high number of medals at 63, but unlike the USA, China won 5 less silver medals than gold medals. While Russia's silver medal total was 6 more good than China's, they did not do 7 well as China in the gold medals, winning just 27. In fact China had a 8 more lower overall medal total than Russia but, as the table is based on the number of gold medals won, they were placed second. Similarly, Germany was 9 significantly successful at winning medals than Japan, with a total of 48 compared to Japan's 37, but because Japan won 10 two more gold medals that Germany they were ranked 11 higher. Great Britain gave 12 the worse performance in this group, winning only nine gold and nine silver medals.

Academic Writing Task 1

You should spend about 20 minutes on this task.

The chart below shows the average hours worked per day by married men and women in paid employment.

Summarise the information by selecting and reporting the main features, and make comparisons where relevant.

You should write at least 150 words. .

Grammar focus task

Fill in the gaps in the following sentences using the correct form of the words in brackets and any other words you need.

- 4 Women in the 25 to 44 age group work almost (many) hours inside the home as outside, and there is only a slight difference in the 45 to 64 age group.
- 5 However, men work on average (three/long) outside the home than inside.

A Context listening

You are going to hear a woman giving a talk about a project she is involved in. Before you listen look at the pictures and the words below. What do you think the purpose of the project is?

abundance analyze calculate car tyres conservation debris diver habitat harbour reef rope rubble seahorses species submerged

- Listen and see if you were right. What did the study show? What did the woman's team decide to do?
- Listen again and match the beginnings (1-8) and endings (a-h) of these phrases. Stop the recording when you need to.

1 this horrible rubbish

a with bright red bodies

2 the idea

b of the past

3 the areas

c of putting rubbish into the harbour

4 other debris

d with submerged rubbish

5 sea tulips

e to expand our study

6 a decision

f lying on the sea floor

7 the rubble

g cleared of rubbish

8 other possible sites

h lying at the bottom of the harbour

4 Add the phrases from Exercise 3 to the table below.

noun + preposition	noun + past participle	noun + -ing	noun + to-infinitive
the idea of putting rubbish into the harbour		this horrible rubbish lying at the bottom of the harbour

B Grammar

The noun phrase

A noun phrase is a group of words with a noun as its main part. Information about the noun can be before the noun and/or after the noun.

Information that comes before the noun in a noun phrase is usually expressed through

- determiners (see Unit 8):
 this horrible rubbish
- adjectives and adverbs (see Unit 10):
 a rich habitat

Information that comes after the noun is usually expressed through

- prepositional phrases:
 an abundance of creatures
- past participle clauses:
 the rubbish contained in the harbour
- present participle (-ing) clauses:
 the rubbish lying at the bottom of the harbour
- to-infinitive clauses:
 a decision to expand

1 Noun + prepositional phrase

We can add information after a noun by using a prepositional phrase. Common prepositions in these phrases are of, in, for, on, to, with:

possible sites with submerged rubbish a rich habitat for an abundance of creatures

Of is the most common preposition used in prepositional noun phrases. It is used after nouns of quantity or containers:

the number of fish an abundance of creatures (quantities) a bottle of water a packet of biscuits (containers)

We also use of to show belonging or possession (see Unit 8): the rubble of the past (not the past's rubble) particular areas of the harbour

We often use at, in and on to talk about physical location:

this rubbish lying at the bottom of the harbour different species living in Sydney Harbour

Prepositional phrases containing with often express the same information as a relative clause with the main verb have:

harbour sites with submerged rubbish (= harbour sites which have submerged rubbish) sea tulips with bright red bodies (= sea tulips which have bright red bodies)

2 Noun + past participle clause

A past participle clause gives the same information as a relative clause (see Unit 20) with a passive verb:

all of the rubbish contained in the harbour (= rubbish which is contained in the harbour) areas cleared of rubbish (= areas which have been cleared of rubbish) the data collected from the sites (= the data which is collected from the sites)

In both spoken and written English using a noun + past participle clause is more common than the equivalent relative clause because it can express the same information in fewer words.

3 Noun + present participle (-ing) clause

A present participle clause can give the same information as a relative clause with an active verb, often in the present or past continuous:

the other debris lying on the sea floor (= the other debris which is lying on the sea floor)

As in section 2 above, the noun + present participle clause is more common than the equivalent relative clause.

4 Noun + to-infinitive clause

To-infinitive clauses are used to show a purpose or intention and usually follow nouns of time, place, manner and quantity:

time to go
the place to visit a way to look at it a lot to look at

Nouns followed by the to-infinitive are related to verbs also followed by the to-infinitive (e.g. decide/decision; plan/plan):

a decision to expand (decide to) our plan to build a new hospital (plan to)

Academic Reading

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1–12 which are based on the Reading Passage below.

Practical intelligence lends a hand

Dr Rajendra Persaud explains how practical intelligence is linked to success.

This year, record numbers of high school students obtained top grades in their final exams, yet employers complain that young people still lack the basic skills to succeed at work. The only explanation offered is that exams must be getting easier. But the real answer could lie in a study just published by Professor Robert Sternberg, an eminent psychologist at Yale University in the USA and the world's leading expert on intelligence. His research reveals the existence of a totally new variety: practical intelligence.

Professor Sternberg's astonishing finding is that practical intelligence, which predicts success in real life, has an inverse relationship with academic intelligence. In other words, the more practically intelligent you are, the less likely you are to succeed at school or university. Similarly, the more paper qualifications you hold and the higher your grades, the less able you are to cope with problems of everyday life and the lower your score in practical intelligence.

Many people who are clearly successful in their place of work do badly in standard IQ (academic intelligence) tests. Entrepreneurs and those who have built large businesses from scratch are frequently discovered to be high school or college drop-outs. IQ as a concept is more than 100 years old. It was supposed to explain why some people excelled at a wide variety of intellectual tasks. But IQ ran into trouble when it became apparent that some high scorers failed to achieve in real life what was predicted by their tests.

Emotional intelligence (EQ), which emerged a decade ago, was supposed to explain this deficit. It suggested that to succeed in real life, people needed both emotional as well as intellectual skills. EQ includes the abilities to motivate yourself and persist in the face of frustrations; to control impulses and delay gratification; to regulate moods and keep distress from swamping the ability to think; and to understand and empathize with others. While social or emotional intelligence was a useful concept in explaining many of the real-world deficiencies of super intelligent people, it did not go any further than the IQ test in measuring success in real life. Again, some of the most successful people in the business world were obviously lacking in social charm.

Not all the real-life difficulties we face are solvable with just good social skills – and good social acumen in one situation may not translate to another. The crucial problem with academic and emotional intelligence scores is that they are both poor predictors of success in real life. For example, research has shown that IQ tests predict only between 4% and 25% of success in life, such as job performance.

Professor Sternberg's group at Yale began from a very different position to traditional researchers into intelligence. Instead of asking what intelligence was and investigating whether it predicted success in life, Professor Sternberg asked what distinguished people who were thriving from those that were not. Instead of measuring this form of intelligence with mathematical or verbal tests, practical intelligence is scored by answers to real-life dilemmas such as: 'If you were travelling by car and got stranded on a motorway during a blizzard, what would you do?' An important contrast between these questions is that in academic tests there is usually only one answer, whereas in practical intelligence tests - as in real life - there are several different solutions to the problem.

The Yale group found that most of the really useful knowledge which successful people have acquired is gained during everyday activities – but typically without conscious awareness. Although successful people's behaviour reflects the fact that they have this knowledge, high achievers are often unable to articulate or define what they know. This partly explains why practical intelligence has been so difficult to identify.

Professor Sternberg found that the best way to reach practical intelligence is to ask successful people to relate examples of crucial incidents at work where they solved problems demonstrating skills they had learnt while doing their jobs. It would appear that one of the best ways of improving your practical intelligence is to observe master practitioners at work and, in particular, to focus on the skills they have acquired while doing the job. Oddly enough, this is the basis of traditional apprentice training. Historically, the junior doctor learnt by observing the consultant surgeon at work and the junior lawyer by assisting the senior barrister.

Another area where practical intelligence appears to resolve a previously unexplained paradox is that performance in academic tests usually declines after formal education ends. Yet most older adults contend that their ability to solve practical problems increases over the years. The key implication for organizations and companies is that practical intelligence may not be detectable by conventional auditing and performance measuring procedures. Training new or less capable employees to become more practically intelligent will involve learning from the genuinely practically intelligent rather than from training manuals or courses.

Perhaps the biggest challenge is in recruitment, as these new studies strongly suggest that paper qualifications are unlikely to be helpful in predicting who will be best at solving your company's problems. Professor Sternberg's research suggests that we should start looking at companies in a completely different way – and see them as places where a huge number of problems are being solved all the time but where it may take new eyes to see the practical intelligence in action.

Questions 1-5

Choose the correct answer, A, B, C or D.

- 1 Professor Sternberg's study showed that
 - A qualifications are a good indicator of success at work.
 - B education can help people cope with real-life problems.
 - C intelligent people do not always achieve well at school.
 - D high grades can indicate a lack of practical intelligence.
- 2 What is the 'deficit' referred to in the fourth paragraph?
 - A People with high IQ scores could not score well in EQ tests.
 - B EQ tests were unable to predict success at work.
 - C High IQ scores did not always lead to personal success.
 - D People with high EQ scores could not cope with real life.
- 3 Professor Sternberg's research differed from previous studies because
 - A he used verbal testing instead of mathematics.
 - B he began by establishing a definition of intelligence.
 - C he analyzed whether intelligence could predict success in real life.
 - D he wanted to find out what was different about successful people.
- 4 Part of the reason why practical intelligence had not been identified before Professor Sternberg's study is that
 - A the behaviour of successful people had never been studied.
 - B successful people are too busy with their everyday lives.
 - C successful people cannot put their knowledge into words.
 - D successful people are unaware of their own abilities.
- 5 In order to increase the practical intelligence of employees, companies need to
 - A adopt an apprentice-style system.
 - B organise special courses.
 - C devise better training manuals.
 - D carry out an audit on all employees.

Questions 6-12

Classify the following characteristics as belonging to

- A academic intelligence (IQ) tests
- B emotional intelligence (EQ) tests
- C practical intelligence tests

Write the correct letter A, B or C, next to Questions 6-12 below.

- 6 measures skills which are likely to improve with age
- 7 assesses people's social skills
- 8 measures the ability to deal with real-life difficulties
- 9 the oldest of the three tests
- 10 high scorers learn from their actions
- 11 high scorers are more likely to stay calm in difficult situations
- 12 questions have more than one possible answer could couldn't might be able to must can't will

- 1 Which words refer to ability?
- 2 Which words refer to certainty or impossibility?
- 3 Which words refer to possibility?

B Grammar

Modal verbs (can, could, may, might, must, will, would, shall, should, ought to, need) are auxiliary verbs that give information about ability, possibility or necessity.

Modal verbs are followed by the infinitive without to and their form doesn't change:

He could speak French and Italian. (not He coulds speak)
Could you speak French before you lived there? (not Did you could speak)

1 Ability

We use the following verbs to talk about ability:

Present	can, can't, be able to, manage to	I can't swim.
Past	could, couldn't, be able to, manage to	They weren't able to find out his name.
Perfect	be able to, manage to	Have you managed to finish the report yet?
Future	be able to, manage to	I won't be able to meet you later.

It is more common to use can/could to talk about general ability in the present and past than be able to:

Can you remember much about it? (= Are you able to remember?)
He could speak French and Italian, but he couldn't remember his name.

To talk about ability on one specific occasion in the past we use couldn't, was(n't)/were(n't) able to, but not could:

The police were able to find out that he could speak French and Italian. (not The police could find out)

He couldn't remember who he was.

We sometimes use manage to to show that something is difficult to achieve:

I've finally managed to give up smoking after all these years!

We use be able to or manage to with perfect or future forms:

Apparently he's been able to find his family.

Within a year he'll probably be able to remember quite a lot. (not Within a year he can probably remember quite a lot.)

2 Other uses of can

We use can to mean sometimes:

People can do funny things when they've experienced something terrible. (= people sometimes do funny things)

We also use can to ask for and give permission:

Can I borrow the car this afternoon?

You can horrow it, but I need it later this evening.

3 Possibility

We use must, may, might, could, couldn't and can't when there is some evidence, information or belief that something is probably or possibly true (or not true). The modal verb we choose depends on the strength of the evidence we have to support our ideas.

very likely	must possible	might, may, could, may not, might not very unlikely	can't, couldn't

Could, may and might express the same degree of possibility:

He may/might/could remember some things already.

Couldn't expresses the same probability as can't. It is usually used to talk about the past: The police realised he couldn't be Canadian. (= it was very unlikely that he was Canadian)

A May not and might not do not express the same probability as couldn't:

The supermarket may/might not be open today because it's a Bank Holiday. (not the supermarket couldn't be open)

Present

We use may (not), might (not), could(n't), must, can't + infinitive without to to talk about possibility in the present:

He may remember some things already. (= it is possible he remembers some things now) It can't be very easy living with someone who doesn't remember any of the past. (= it is very unlikely that it is easy)

We use may (not), might (not), could(n't), must, can't + be + -ing to talk about things (possibly) happening or in progress at the time of speaking:

They must be having a difficult time adjusting to it all.

The phone is engaged. She might be talking to her sister on the phone.

Past

We can use may(not), might(not), could(n't), must, can't + have + past participle to talk about possibility in the past:

In the attack he must have hit his head. (= there is strong evidence that he hit his head)
He could have had a wife and children. (this is a possible situation)
He can't have been married. (= there is strong evidence that he wasn't married)

We can use may (not), might (not), could(n't), must, can't + have been + -ing to talk about things possibly happening or in progress in the past:

He might have been trying to run away from his past.

Future

We can use may (not), might (not), and could (not) + infinitive without to to talk about possibility or uncertainty in the future:

He could make a total recovery one day.

We can use may (not), might (not), could (not), must, can't + be + -ing to talk about things possibly happening at a time in the future:

I might be meeting John later.

4 Expressing possibility and opinions in written texts

Modals are very important in written texts because they 'soften' the message and help to show that the author is expressing an opinion rather than a proven fact. May is very common in these kinds of texts as well as can used to mean 'sometimes'. (see B3)

Compare these sentences and the teacher's comments:

Student's work	Teacher's comment
People are unkind about their colleagues but it is simply because they are feeling insecure at work.	How do you know this?
People can be unkind about their colleagues but it may simply be because they are feeling insecure at work.	Good sentence.
Banning cars with high fuel consumption is a good idea, as it will result in less pollution.	This is a very strong opinion.
Banning cars with high fuel consumption may be a good idea, as it could result in a less pollution.	Good sentence. You are making your opinion 'softer'.

5 Alternatives to modals

Adverbs like certainly, probably, possibly, perhaps and maybe can be used to express similar ideas to modal verbs:

He had probably been attacked and robbed. (= he must have been attacked)

We can use it + be + certain/likely/probable/possible/impossible to express ability, probability and possibility:

It is possible to program your computer to translate texts automatically. (= you can program your computer)

It is possible that the train will be late. (= the train might be late)

3 Replace the underlined phrases with a suitable past modal phrase.

The mummy of Djedmaatesankh, a young woman from the ninth century BC, lies behind a glass display in the Royal Ontario Museum. 2,800 years ago she lived in Thebes with her husband on the east bank of the river Nile. They were well-off, although as a double-income couple without children 1 it-is-likely-they-were rather unusual. Djedmaatesankh was a musician at the great Temple of Amun-Re at nearby Karnak, where her husband was a temple doorkeeper. 2 It is possible that their jobs at the temple provided the couple with a small wage and other benefits to supplement their main income from a piece of fertile Nile land on which 3 it is possible that they grew crops of barley, sesame, or dates.

We can only guess at what Djedmaatesankh's life would have been like, and try to imagine what her problems were. 4 It is possible she was anxious about her inability to have children and certainly, as she approached her thirties, 5 it is highly likely that she worried about her health.

Looking upon a face from so long ago, a face not unlike that of any other young woman in Egypt today, ties us more personally to history. In a way that 6 was impossible for her to imagine, Djedmaatesankh has achieved a degree of fame in our 21st century, appearing in dozens of newspapers and magazines.

Almost every family has a television these days, and many children watch a whole range of programmes every day. Some people believe that television is $_{\wedge}$ harmful to children, saying that it influences behaviour in a negative way.	can be
There are a lot of programmes on television that are not educational and that contain violence and bad language. However, watching violence on television encourages violent behaviour in children. This is true in cases of children who have already exhibited violent tendencies, but it isn't true of all children, otherwise we would have an epidemic of child crime. It is also argued that bad language on television encourages the same in children.
Nevertheless, overall I believe that restricting children's television viewing to mainly educational programmes shown at a time of day when there is no violence or bad language will overcome any risks of television being a bad influence.

advice or suggestions	no obligation or necessity advice or suggestions

B Grammar

We use expressions of obligation and necessity when there is a need to do something. This need can be internal (the speaker feels it is necessary) or external (rules or the situation make it necessary).

1 Obligation and necessity

The verbs must (mustn't), have to, have got to, and need to express obligation and necessity:

You'll need to allow a bit of extra time to get over jet lag.

You have to get a work permit before you go.

You mustn't dress too casually for work.

Must is a modal verb and its form doesn't change:

He must try a bit harder. (not he musts)

We use must when the obligation comes from the speaker:

You must invite me to visit you. (the speaker wants this)

When there is an institutional rule or a law have to or need to are more common than must: You have to get a work permit before you go. (this is a rule)

Have to is more common in spoken English than must, but in written English either is used. Have got to is more common in spoken English than written English:

I've got to find somewhere to live quite quickly.

Must is usually used on signs, notices and printed information:

All employees must hold a valid work permit.

To talk about obligation and necessity in the present we can use must(n't), have to, have got to or need to. We use have to or need to with past and future tenses:

You will have to learn some Cantonese. (not You will must learn)
He had to get up really early to catch the ferry to work. (not He must got up early)

△ We do not usually make questions with must and ought to:

What sort of things do you need to know? (not What sort of things must you / ought you to know?)

2 No obligation

We use not have to, not need to and needn't to suggest that there is no obligation or necessity to do something:

You needn't buy lots of guide books before you go. (= it is not necessary to buy guide books before you go)

Mustn't does not mean the same as don't have to, don't need to and needn't:

You don't have to wait for ages. (= it is not necessary to wait)
You mustn't wait here. (= it is not allowed to wait here)

To talk about lack of obligation in the past we can use needn't have + past participle, didn't need to or didn't have to:

We didn't have to worry about work permits when I was there.

I needn't have bothered to get a work permit. (= it wasn't necessary)

There is a difference between didn't need to and needn't have:

John picked me up from the station so I didn't need to get a taxi home. (= it wasn't necessary so I didn't get a taxi)

I needn't have got a taxi because John's flat wasn't far from the station. (= I got a taxi but it wasn't necessary)

To talk about the future we use not have to or not need to:

I hope I won't have to work late tonight. He's not going to need to come to the meeting after all.

3 Suggestions and advice

We can use modal verbs should(n't) and ought (not) to to make suggestions or give advice:

You should try and use it whenever you can. (= I think it is a good idea)
You ought to take lots of passport photos with you.
You shouldn't dress casually for work.

We can use must to give strong advice:

You must phone me when you get there.

4 Adverbs

Adverbs like also, always, never, sometimes, just and only come after modal verbs:

You should always carry plenty of loose change. You must never do that again.

To add extra emphasis we can use really before the verb:

You really have to see it to believe it.

5 Formal written English

Verbs of obligation, necessity and suggestion are common in formal and academic writing when giving opinions:

Governments should take advice from the experts before making new laws. Companies need to consider cultural differences when engaging in business with overseas organisations.

Questions 1-13

Read the passage below and answer Questions 1-6.

School rules

- A Pupils are required to be in their classrooms by 8.30 a.m. each morning for registration. Pupils coming late will be punished accordingly. Pupils may not leave the school grounds during the normal working day without permission. During study periods and recreation students in the sixth form may leave the school grounds provided that parents have given written authorization at the beginning of the year.
- B Students must come to school in proper attire. If this basic rule is not observed, the school reserves the right to refuse entry to any student.
- C The school strongly disapproves of pupils taking paid employment. It should certainly never interfere with school activities, and will not be accepted as an excuse for missing any school commitment.
- In the case of a pupil being absent from school, please telephone on the first day in all instances. Messages can be left on the answering machine before 7.30 a.m. or you can send an email to the school address to reach us by 8.30 a.m. at the latest.
- Except in the case of illness, students are expected to be present for the entire school year. Routine medical and dental appointments should be arranged so as not to conflict with school commitments, as should family travel.
- The school regards the completion of careful and regular work at home as an indispensable part of the curriculum. Every pupil has a study plan outlining his/her evening obligations day by day and parents are asked to ensure that their child has a suitable place and time in which to do the work prescribed. If a pupil appears to be doing too little work, parents should contact the form teacher at once.
- G Homework can be excused only after the receipt and approval by the teacher concerned of a letter from a parent setting out the reasons. Social engagements are not acceptable as an excuse. It is essential that pupils endeavour to catch up on any missed work as soon as possible.
- H During the holidays the school and its grounds are out-of-bounds for all pupils, unless accompanied by a teacher. Pupils visiting the school's sports hall or any of the school's grounds or taking part in a school visit of any kind, whether in term or in the holidays, are subject to school rules.
- No pupil may drive a car or motorbike within the school grounds without permission from the headmaster. Permission to come by bicycle should be obtained from the form teacher. Bikes must be walked onto the school grounds. Cycle helmets must be worn and lights used after dark. Rollerblades, roller skates and skateboards are not permitted within the school grounds at any time.
- J Bicycles must not be chained to the school railings. Any bicycles brought onto school grounds should be clearly labelled with the owner's name and must be left locked in the bicycle sheds provided.
- K Parents are strongly advised to put name tags on their children's belongings. The school cannot be held responsible for any loss or theft of students' property. Students must keep track of their belongings and not leave them lying around unattended.

Questions 1-6

The reading passage has eleven rules labelled A-K.

Which rule contains the following information?

Write the correct letter A-K next to Questions 1-6 below.

NB You may use any letter more than once.

- 1 information about what to do if your child cannot attend school
- 2 the person to contact about how much homework your child should be doing
- 3 advice about how students can keep their bicycles secure
- 4 the school's opinion about schoolchildren working to earn money
- 5 details of what parents should do if their child cannot complete their homework
- 6 rules about visiting the school property outside of school time

School of Independent Study

The University's Independent Study online and correspondence courses offer you the flexibility to reach your educational goals without giving up your life. The study materials you use in your course have been developed by the university faculty so the material you cover is the same as in the courses offered on campus. The only difference is that you can study and take tests when it's convenient for you!

Tuition and fees

The Independent Study tuition fee is $115 per course. Students may take as many courses as they want. There is a shipping and handling fee of $30 for each course. All Independent Study students must purchase a Study Guide at a cost of $30. The university also charges a connectivity fee of $12 per course. Students enrolling for the first time will be charged a $9 per course Academic Excellence fee; for returning students this fee is just $3 per course. A $15 Academic Records fee is charged once each term, regardless of the number of courses taken. This fee entitles a student to free replacement copies of end-of-course documentation for life. Tuition and fees for out-of-state students are the same as those of local residents.

Time limits

A course can be finished in a minimum of two weeks per module and must be finished in a maximum of four weeks. For example, if your course has three modules you must remain in it for a minimum of six weeks and a maximum of twelve weeks. If you need to meet a deadline, you should take these minimum and maximum periods into account. These periods are calculated from the date you receive your first lesson from the Independent Study office. Modules cannot always be completed in the minimum amount of time. You need to make sure that you know whether your instructors are on vacation at any stage during your enrolment, as this could affect the return of assignments, exams and final grades. Your enrolment is valid for nine months, which begins on the day we post your enrolment application.

B Grammar

We can use reported speech to report in writing or speech what someone has said.

1 Tense changes

When we report what someone has said we sometimes change the tense of the main verb: we move tenses 'back' one tense.

Original tense of main verb	Tense in reported speech present simple I live in Italy.	past simple She said she lived in Italy.
present continuous I'm living in Italy.	past continuous She said she was living in Italy.
past simple I lived in Italy.	→ past perfect She said she had lived in Italy.
past continuous I was living in Italy.	past perfect continuous She said she had been living in Italy.
present perfect I've lived in Italy.	past perfect She said she had lived in Italy.
past perfect I'd lived in Italy.	→ past perfect She said she'd lived in Italy.
be going to I'm going to live in Italy.	was/were going to She said she was going to live in Italy.
will I'll live in Italy.	would She said she would live in Italy.
may / might I may/might live in Italy next year.	might She said she might live in Italy next year.
can I can live in Italy.	She said she could live in Italy.
must I must live in Italy.	had to She said she had to live in Italy.

However, we often choose not to change the tense. This may be because

- what we are talking about remains true:
 - 'This has nothing to do with the figures.'
 - → He said that the job losses have nothing to do with the figures. (at the time of reporting this fact is still true)
- the original tense was past simple or past continuous:
 - 'We decided to change the way we operate our business two years ago.'
 - → West claimed that they decided to make changes two years ago.

2 Reporting verbs

When we report what someone has said, we are unlikely to use exactly the same words as in the original speech. We can choose from many different reporting verbs to help us convey the general idea using fewer words than in the original speech. Here are some common reporting verbs:

reporting verb (+ that) agree, admit, announce, argue, believe, claim, complain, deny, explain, insist, promise, propose, reply, request, say, state, suggest, think, warn:

The director claimed (that) they decided to make the changes two years ago.

reporting verb + someone + that assure, inform, persuade, remind, tell:

He assured the interviewer that the company would continue to operate in the future.

reporting verb + to-infinitive agree, ask, claim, offer, promise, propose, refuse:

He promised to do his best for the employees.

reporting verb + someone + to-infinitive advise, ask, encourage, invite, persuade, remind, tell, urge, warn:

They urged the employees to stay calm.

reporting verb + preposition + -ing / noun argue about, complain about: He complained about the terrible food.

apologise for: The company apologised for causing redundancies.

insist on: The manager insisted on seeing the staff. complain to: He complained to the manager.

reporting verb + someone + preposition + -ing / noun accuse of: They accused the company of planning badly.

advise about, remind about: They reminded her about the meeting.

advise on, congratulate on: He advised me on the deal. blame for, thank for: They thanked her for coming.

reporting verb + -ing / noun accept, admit, deny, suggest:

The director denied having financial problems.

The employees accepted the offer of early redundancy.

reporting verb + someone (+ noun)

offer, promise, refuse:

He offered her a job.

A Some of the same verbs can be used in different ways (e.g. admit, claim, offer, persuade): West claimed that they decided to make the changes two years ago.

West claimed to have decided to make the changes two years ago.

3 Time references etc.

We sometimes need to change other words or phrases in reported speech if they are reported at a different time from the original words:

 $today \rightarrow that \ day$ $tomorrow \rightarrow the \ following \ day \ / \ the \ next \ day$ yesterday \rightarrow the day before $next week \rightarrow$ the following week

 $now \rightarrow then / straight away$ this $\rightarrow that$

 $here \rightarrow there$

He said he would see me tomorrow. (reported on the same day) He said he would see me the next day. (reported at a later date)

Sometimes the context requires pronouns to change:

I like you.' \rightarrow He said he liked her. I like you.' \rightarrow I said I liked her.

4 Reporting questions

We use statement word order when reporting questions:

I asked Mr West how he was going to deal with the problem. (not I asked Mr West how was he going to deal with the problem.)

To report questions with question words (who, what, where, why, when, how) we keep the question word:

'What has led to this situation?'

- The interviewer asked what had led to this situation.

We can use if or whether to report yes/no questions:

'Are these cuts a result of Angleside's poor performance over the past five years?'

→ I asked if/whether these cuts were the result of Angleside's poor performance over the past five years.

▲ We do not use a question mark for reported questions.

Grammar extra: Other ways of reporting

We can use other expressions to report speech e.g. according to (common in spoken and written English), apparently, supposedly, seemingly (more common in spoken English):

According to the radio programme, they are cutting 150 jobs.

B Grammar

When you use two verbs together the form of the second verb depends on the first verb. The second verb can be the to-infinitive, the infinitive without to, or -ing.

△ Many verbs can also be followed by a that-clause e.g. recommend, suggest, tell (see Unit 15).

1 Verb + to-infinitive

Some verbs are followed directly by the to-infinitive and do not need an object:

agree aim appear arrange attempt be able be likely claim decide deserve fail hope learn manage offer plan promise refuse seem tend try

Was animal care something you always hoped to do?

I decided to do an animal management course during my last year at school.

Some verbs are always followed by an object + to-infinitive:

advise allow encourage force get persuade remind teach tell warn

This course has taught me to respect all animals and overcome my fears. (not This course has taught to respect all animals)

I just told him to be quiet.

Get is used with an object + to-infinitive when it means persuade or make:

If you want to get your teachers to notice your work you should make sure you hand it in on time.

Some verbs can be used with or without an object + to-infinitive:

ask choose dare expect help intend need prefer prepare want

I didn't want to touch the snakes. They wanted us to touch the snakes.

2 Verb (+ preposition) + -ing

Some verbs are followed by -ing:

avoid approve of can't help can't stand carry on consider deny don't mind enjoy feel like finish give up imagine include insist on involve keep mention mind practise put off recommend resist suggest think of/about

I prefer dealing with the customers but I don't mind cleaning out the animals and feeding them. We've practised handling animals.

When a verb is followed by a preposition (except to) then the following verb is always -ing: I was thinking about doing another course.

3 Verb + to-infinitive or -ing

Some verbs are followed by either to-infinitive or -ing with little difference in meaning:

attempt begin bother continue hate like love prefer start

I've started working at a pet shop. (= I've started to work at a pet shop.) I like feeding the animals. (= I like to feed the animals.)

▲ Would like / would love / would prefer are followed by the to-infinitive: I'd really like to work in either a zoo or a safari park.

I'd prefer to stop studying for a while.

Some verbs mean something different when they are followed by the to-infinitive or -ing:

forget go on need remember stop try verb	+ to-infinitive	+-ing

go on	• one action follows another: After university she went on to get a job as a vet. (= she finished university and then she got a job as a vet)	• an action is repeated or continued: She went on talking even though the film had started. (= she continued talking)
remember	you remember before you do the action: As long as you remember to do what you've been told, it's fine. (= 1 remember 2 do what you've been told)	 you remember after doing the action: I remember feeling really scared. (= 1 I felt scared 2 I remembered that feeling) forget	 the action did not happen: I forgot to post my application form. (= I didn't post it) 	 the action happened: I'll never forget meeting you that cold winter's day. (= we did meet) This form is usually in the negative.
stop	 there are two actions and the first stops so that the second can begin: I stopped to ask the way. (= I stopped and then I asked) 	there is one action which stops: I'm going to stop studying for a while.
try	 make an effort to do something. You may not always be successful: I try to find out why he's barking. 	 experiment with doing something: She tried adding a bit more sugar but it still tasted horrible.
need	• the subject of the sentence will do the action: I need to mend my jeans. (= I will mend them)	 there is a passive meaning: My jeans need mending. (= we don't know who will mend them)

4 Verb + object + infinitive without to feel hear help let make notice see watch

Make and let are always followed by an object + infinitive without to:

They made us handle all kinds of animals including spiders and snakes. They let us take it slowly.

A When make is used in the passive we use the to-infinitive:

I was made to handle all kinds of animals including spiders and snakes.

Help can be followed by an infinitive with or without to:

The course helped me understand my own dog better. (= The course helped me to understand my own dog better.)

5 Negatives

If we want to make the second verb negative we use not:

I chose not to study at this college. I enjoy not working late.

Academic Reading

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1–13 which are based on the Reading Passage below.

How consumers decide

Professor John Maule from the University of Leeds describes new research into the way that consumers choose a product.

Understanding consumers

Consumers are creatures of habit: they buy the same products time and time again, and such is their familiarity with big brands, and the colours and logos that represent them, that they can register a brand they like with barely any conscious thought process. The packaging of consumer products is therefore a crucial vehicle for delivering the brand and the product into our shopping baskets.

Having said this, understanding how consumers make decisions, and the crucial role of packaging in this process, has been a neglected area of research so far. This is surprising given that organisations invest huge amounts of money in developing packaging that they believe is effective – especially at the retail level. Our Centre for Decision Research at Leeds University's Business School, in collaboration with Faraday Packaging, is now undertaking work in this area. It has already led to some important findings that challenge the ways in which organisations think about consumer choice.

The research has focused on two fundamental types of thinking. On the one hand, there's 'heuristic processing', which involves very shallow thought and is based on very simple rules: 1) buy what you recognize, 2) choose what you did last time, or 3) choose what a trusted source suggests. This requires comparatively little effort, and involves looking at – and thinking about – only a small amount of the product information and packaging. One can do this with little or no conscious thought.

On the other hand, 'systematic processing' involves much deeper levels of thought. When people choose goods in this way, they engage in quite detailed analytical thinking – taking account of the product information, including its price, its perceived quality and so on. This form of thinking, which is both analytical and conscious, involves much more mental effort.

The role of packaging is likely to be very different for each of these types of decision making. Under heuristic processing, for example, consumers may simply need to be able to distinguish the pack from those of competitors since they are choosing on the basis of what they usually do. Under these circumstances, the simple perceptual features of the pack may be critical – so that we can quickly discriminate what we choose from the other products on offer. Under systematic processing, however, product-related information may be more important, so the pack has to provide this in an easily identifiable form.

Comparing competition

Consumers will want to be able to compare the product with its competitors, so that they can determine which option is better for them. A crucial role of packaging in this situation is to communicate the characteristics of the product, highlighting its advantages over possible competitors.

So, when are people likely to use a particular type of thinking? First, we know that people are cognitive misers; in other words they are economical with their thinking because it requires some effort from them. Essentially, people only engage in effort-demanding systematic processing when the situation justifies it, for example when they are not tired or distracted and when the purchase is important to them.

Second, people have an upper limit to the amount of information they can absorb. If we present too much, therefore, they will become confused. This, in turn, is likely to lead them to disengage and choose something else.

Third, people often lack the knowledge or experience needed, so will not be able to deal with things they do not already understand, such as the ingredients of food products, for example.

And fourth, people vary in the extent to which they enjoy thinking. Our research has differentiated between people with a high need for thinking – who routinely engage in analytical thinking – and those low in the need for cognition, who prefer to use very simple forms of thinking.

Effectiveness varies

This work has an important impact on packaging in that what makes packaging effective is likely to vary according to the type of processing strategy that consumers use when choosing between products. You need to understand how consumers are selecting your products if you are to develop packaging that is relevant. Furthermore, testing the effectiveness of your packaging can be ineffective if the methods you are employing concern one form of thinking (e.g. a focus group involving analytical thinking) but your consumers are purchasing in the other mode (i.e. the heuristic, shallow form of thinking).

For the packaging industry it is important that retailers identify their key goals. Sustaining a consumer's commitment to a product may involve packaging that is distinctive at the heuristic level (if the consumers can recognize the product they will buy it) but without encouraging consumers to engage in systematic processing (prompting deeper level thinking that would include making comparisons with other products).

Conversely, getting consumers to change brands may involve developing packaging that includes information that does stimulate systematic processing and thus encourages consumers to challenge their usual choice of product. Our work is investigating these issues, and the implications they have for developing effective packaging.

Questions 1-6

Do the following statements agree with the information given in the Reading Passage? Next to Questions 1–6 write

TRUE if the statement agrees with the information FALSE if the statement contradicts the information

NOT GIVEN if there is no information on this

- 1 Little research has been done on the link between packaging and consumers choosing a product.
- 2 A person who buys what another person recommends is using heuristic thinking.
- 3 Heuristic processing requires more energy than systematic processing.
- 4 The concept of heuristic processing was thought up by Dr Maule's team.
- 5 A consumer who considers how much a product costs is using systematic processing.
- 6 For heuristic processing, packaging must be similar to other products.

Questions 7-8

Choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

- 7 When trying to determine how effective packaging is, testing can be made 'ineffective' if
 - A you rely upon a very narrow focus group.
 - B your consumers use only heuristic thinking.
 - C the chosen consumers use only shallow thinking.
 - D your tests do not match the consumers' thinking type.
- 8 If a retailer wants consumers to change brands their packaging needs to be
 - A informative.
 - B distinctive.
 - C familiar.

 D colourful.

 - a you'd probably need an awful lot more money than this!
 - b if I could drive to work instead of travelling on the bus.
 - c you won't earn much interest.
 - d provided that you think of it as a long-term investment.
 - e you should still be able to invest some money as well.
 - f I'd lose a year of study.
 - g you also have to pay for insurance and road tax every year.
 - h I won't be able to access the money quickly.
- 4 Look at the sentences in Exercise 3 above. Which words or phrases have a similar meaning to if? Do any of the sentences talk about events in the past?

B Grammar

Conditional sentences talk about a condition (usually introduced by if) and a possible result or consequence. The if-clause can be before or after the result clause. We use a comma between clauses when the if-clause comes first. Either clause can be positive or negative.

1 Zero conditional

if + present tense, + present tense

If you heat water to 100 °C, it boils.

Present tense + if + present tense

Water boils if you heat it to 100 °C.

We use the zero conditional to talk about something that is a general truth or fact (if has a similar meaning to every time):

If you own a car, you also have to pay for insurance and registration every year.

If it is no longer a fact we use the past tense:

When I was a child, if I helped my mother, she gave me extra pocket money.

2 First conditional

if + present tense, + will/won't (might/could/going to) + verb will/won't (might/could/going to) + verb + if + present tense

My money will grow if I invest it.

We use the first conditional to talk about something we feel is a probable future result: If you leave your money in the bank, you won't earn any interest and it may lose value over time.

We can use might, could, or may instead of will to suggest something is less probable: If I invest it, I might lose it all.

or can to mean sometimes:

If you travel at rush hour, the trains can be very crowded. (this sometimes happens)

3 Second conditional

We use the second conditional to talk about imaginary, impossible or unlikely situations in the present or future. The past tense does not refer to past time:

If I went travelling, I wouldn't have any money left over.

△ With the verb be we can use was or were with I/he/she/it:

That's what I would do if I were/was you.

We can use was/were + to-infinitive to refer to unlikely actions in the future:

If you were to spend a year travelling around the world, you'd probably need an awful lot more money than this!

4 Other words to introduce a condition

We can use other words such as when, provided that, in case, so/as long as and unless instead of if in zero, first and second conditional sentences.

when; as soon as

We use when and as soon as instead of if to show that something is more likely:

I'll give you a lift into town if I finish my work in time. (= I am not sure if I will be able to give you a lift)

I'll give you a lift into town when/as soon as I finish this work. (= I will give you a lift)

unless

We use unless to show a negative condition, with a similar meaning to if ... not:

You won't earn much interest unless you invest it properly. (= if you don't invest it properly) provided/providing that; so/as long as

These phrases can be used instead of if for emphasis. Provided/providing that are more common in written than spoken English:

You won't lose any money provided that you think of it as a long-term investment. (= if you think) As long as you get a second-hand car, you should still be able to invest some money. (= if you get) in case

We use in case to talk about precautions. Compare:

You should keep this reference number in case there are any problems. (= keep the reference number because there might be problems later)

You should quote this reference number if there are any problems. (= quote this reference number at the time of any problems)

▲ We don't usually start a sentence with in case.

Academic Reading

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1–13 which are based on the Reading Passage below.

Endangered chocolate

A The cacao tree, once native to the equatorial American forest, has some exotic traits for a plant. Slender and shrubby, the cacao has adapted to life close to the leaf-littered forest floor. Its large leaves droop down, away from the sun. Cacao doesn't flower, as most plants do, at the tips of its outer and uppermost branches. Instead, its sweet white buds hang from the trunk and along a few fat branches which form where leaves drop off. These tiny flowers transform into pulp-filled pods almost the size of rugby balls. The low-hanging pods contain the bitter-tasting, magical seeds.

- B Somehow, more than 2,000 years ago, ancient humans in Mesoamerica discovered the secret of these beans. If you scoop them from the pod with their pulp, let them ferment and dry in the sun, then roast them over a gentle fire, something extraordinary happens: they become chocolatey. And if you then grind and press the beans, which are half cocoa butter or more, you will obtain a rich, crumbly, chestnut brown paste chocolate at its most pure and simple.
- The Maya and Aztecs revered this chocolate, which they frothed up with water and spices to make bracing concoctions. It was edible treasure, offered up to their gods, used as money and hoarded like gold. Long after Spanish explorers introduced the beverage to Europe in the sixteenth century, chocolate retained an aura of aristocratic luxury. In 1753, the Swedish botanist Carolus Linnaeus gave the cacao tree genus the name Theobroma, which means 'food of the gods'.
- In the last 200 years the bean has been thoroughly democratized transformed from an elite drink into ubiquitous candy bars, cocoa powders and confections. Today chocolate is becoming more popular worldwide, with new markets opening up in Eastern Europe and Asia. This is both good news and bad because, although farmers are producing record numbers of cacao bean, this is not enough, some researchers worry, to keep pace with global demand. Cacao is also facing some alarming problems.
- E Philippe Petithuguenin, head of the cacao program at the Centre for International Cooperation in Development-Oriented Agricultural Research (CIRAD) in France, recently addressed a seminar in the Dominican Republic. He displayed a map of the world revealing a narrow band within 18° north and south of the equator, where cacao grows. In the four centuries since the Spanish first happened upon cacao, it has been planted all around this hot humid tropical belt – from South America and the Caribbean to West Africa, east Asia, and New Guinea and Vanuatu in the Pacific.

- F Today 70% of all chocolate beans come from West Africa and Central Africa. In many parts, growers practise so-called pioneer farming. They strip patches of forest of all but the tallest canopy trees and then they put in cacao, using temporary plantings of banana to shade the cacao while it's young. With luck, groves like this may produce annual yields of 50 to 60 pods per tree for 25 to 30 years. But eventually pests, pathogens and soil exhaustion take their toll and yields diminish. Then the growers move on and clear a new forest patch unless farmers of other crops get there first. 'You cannot keep cutting tropical forest, because the forest itself is endangered,' said Petithuguenin. 'World demand for chocolate increases by 3% a year on average. With a lack of land for new plantings in tropical forests, how do you meet that?'
- Many farmers have a more imminent worry: outrunning disease. Cacao, especially when grown in plantations, is at the mercy of many afflictions, mostly rotting diseases caused by various species of fungi, which cover the pods in fungus or kill the trees. These fungi and other diseases spoil more than a quarter of the world's yearly harvest and can devastate entire cacao-growing regions.
- H One such disease, witches broom, devastated the cacao plantations in the Bahia region of Brazil. Brazil was the third largest producer of cacao beans but in the 1980s the yields fell by 75%. According to Petithuguenin, 'if a truly devastating disease like witches broom reached West Africa (the world's largest producer), it could be catastrophic.' If another producer had the misfortune to falter now, the ripples would be felt the world over. In the United States, for example, imported cacao is the linchpin of an $8.6 billion domestic chocolate industry that in turn supports the nation's dairy and nut industries; 20% of all dairy products in the US go into confectionery.
- Today research is being carried out to try to address this problem by establishing disease resistant plants. However, even the best plants are useless if there isn't anywhere to grow them. Typically, farmers who grow cacao get a pittance for their beans compared with the profits reaped by the rest of the chocolate business. Most are at the mercy of local middlemen who buy the beans then sell them for a much higher price to the chocolate manufacturers. If the situation is to improve for farmers, these people need to be removed from the process. But the economics of cacao is rapidly changing because of the diminishing supply of beans. Some companies have realised that they need to work more closely with the farmers to ensure that sustainable farming practices are used. They need to replant areas and create a buffer for the forest, to have ground cover, shrubs and small trees as well as the canopy trees. Then the soil will be more robust and more productive. They also need to empower the farmers by guaranteeing them a higher price for their beans so that they will be encouraged to grow cacao and can maintain their way of life.

Questions 1-3

Choose the correct letter, A, B, C or D.

Write your answers next to Questions 1-3 below.

- 1 The flowers of the cacao plant appear
 - A at the end of its top branches.
 - B along all of its branches.
 - C mainly on its trunk.
 - D close to its leaves.
- 2 In Africa, banana trees are planted with the cacao plants in order to
 - A replace the largest trees.
 - B protect the new plants.
 - C provide an extra crop.
 - D help improve soil quality.
- 3 In paragraph H, what is the writer referring to when he says 'the ripples would be felt the world over'?
 - A the impact a collapse in chocolate production could have on other industries
 - B the possibility of disease spreading to other crops
 - C the effects of the economy on world chocolate growers
 - D the link between Brazilian growers and African growers

Questions 4-9

The Reading Passage has nine paragraphs labelled A-I.

Which paragraph contains the following information?

Write the correct letter A-I next to Questions 4-9 below.

- 4 a list of the cacao growing areas
- 5 an example of how disease has affected one cacao growing region
- 6 details of an ancient chocolate drink
- 7 a brief summary of how the chocolate industry has changed in modern times
- 8 the typical lifespan and crop size of a cacao plantation
- 9 a reference to the scientific identification of the cacao plant

Likelihood based on conditions 2 third conditional; mixed conditionals; wishes and regrets; should(n't) have

A Context listening

You are going to hear Simon Brown talking to his friend, Anna, about his car. Look at the pictures below. Why do you think he regrets buying it?

- 2 Misten and decide if the following statements are true or false.
 - 1 Simon bought a second-hand car.
 - 2 The price of petrol nearly doubled last month.
 - 3 Simon has saved very little money from his job.
 - 4 Simon took his father's advice about the car.
 - 5 Simon has a lot of money.
- 3 Listen again and complete these sentences.
 - 1 If I a second-hand car, I to take out this big bank loan.
 - 2 It probably so bad if the price of petrol last month.
 - 3 If I a bit before buying the car, I to save quite a bit by now.
 - 4 If only I to him, none of this
 - 5 If I his advice, I a small fortune now.
- Look at your answers to Exercise 4 and answer these questions.

B Grammar

1 Third conditional

if + past perfect, would(n't) have + past participle

Would(n't) have + past participle + if + past perfect

If you'd asked me, I'd have done it would(n't) have + past participle + if + past perfect

I'd have done it if you'd asked me.

The third conditional describes hypothetical situations in the past. We use the third conditional to imagine the result of something that did not happen:

If I'd bought a second-hand car, I wouldn't have taken out this big bank loan. (= he bought a new car so he did take out a bank loan)

We can use might or could instead of would to say that something was less certain:

If I'd saved more money, I might have gone on that college trip last week.

2 Mixed conditionals

if + past perfect, would(n't) + verb

if + past simple, would(n't) have + past participle if + past perfect, would(n't) be + ing if + past continuous, would(n't) + verb if + past simple, would(n't) + verb
if + past simple, would(n't) be + ing
if + past simple, would(n't) be + ing
if + past simple, would(n't) be + ing
if | didn't have suvings. | wouldn't be going on holicar

We use mixed conditionals when the time in the if clause is different from the time in the result clause.

We can mix past time and present time to imagine

• the present result of a hypothetical past situation or action:

past situation present result

If I'd taken his advice, I'd own a small fortune now instead of a big debt! (= I didn't take his advice so now I don't own a small fortune)

It wouldn't be so had if the price of petrol hadn't almost doubled last month.

the past result of a hypothetical situation in the present:
 present situation
 past result

If you got on better with him, you might have listened to his suggestions. (= you don't get on with your father so you didn't listen to his suggestions)

If he had more qualifications, he would have got the job.

We can mix past time and future time to imagine the future result of a hypothetical past situation or action:

If I hadn't broken my wrist, I'd be playing tennis later. (= I did break my wrist so I am not playing tennis later)

If I'd bothered to get tickets, I'd be going to the concert tonight. (= I didn't bother to get tickets future result

so I am not going to the concert)

past situation

We can mix future time and present time to imagine

• the present result of a hypothetical future situation or action:

future situation

present result

If I wasn't meeting my manager later, I'd be at the conference now. (= I am meeting my manager later, so I'm not at the conference now)

• the future result of a hypothetical situation in the present:

present situation

future result

If I was at home in America, I'd be seeing my mother tomorrow because it's her birthday. (= I am not at home in America, so I won't be seeing my mother tomorrow)

3 Wishes and regrets

We use wish + past verb to talk about situations that we would like to be different:

I wish I could help you. (= I can't help you and I am sorry about that)
I wish my father wasn't always right! (= he is always right and I find that annoying)

We use wish + something/someone + would + infinitive without to to show that we want something to happen or someone to change their behaviour. We do not use this with state verbs: I wish they would stop talking so loudly! (= they are talking loudly and I want them to stop) I wish this holiday would go on forever.

We use wish + past perfect to talk about past situations that we regret:

I wish I'd thought about the other costs before I bought it. (= I didn't think about the other costs and I regret it now)

We can use never for emphasis with a negative verb:

I wish I'd never bought the car. (= I did buy it and I really regret it now)

△ We can use if only in place of wish with the same meaning. It is a little more formal: If only I had listened to my father!

4 Should(n't) have

We use should(n't) have + past participle to say that what did or did not happen was a mistake or a bad thing:

I should have listened to him. (= but I didn't)

We can use never for emphasis with a negative verb:

I should never have bought it! (= I did buy it and now I regret it)

Grammar extra: If It wasn't for ...

We can use if it wasn't/weren't for + noun phrase to say that a situation is dependent on another situation, person or thing:

If it wasn't/weren't for the car, I'd have no money worries now. (the car is the reason for my worries)

We can use if it hadn't been for to talk about a past situation:

If it hadn't been for your advice, I would have made the wrong decision.

Alexander Fleming's most famous discovery happened entirely by accident. One day he was cleaning the culture dishes in his lab when he saw mould growing on one of the plates. There weren't any germs growing around the mould, so Fleming decided to grow more of it for experiments. He discovered that the mould acted against bacterial infections. However, Fleming's initial publication about his discovery was largely ignored by the medical community so he abandoned his research in 1932. Harold Ridley, an ophthalmologist, developed a revolutionary way of helping people with poor eyesight as a result of cataracts¹. During World War II, Ridley worked with RAF pilots with eye injuries. He noticed that their eyes did not become infected when they had eye injuries caused by bits of Perspex from the windows of their planes. As a result of this observation he decided to implant plastic lenses in the eyes of people with cataracts. Surgeons had earlier tried replacing the lens in the eye with a glass one, but the operations always failed because the body rejected the glass lens. Ridley's operations with plastic lenses were successful. However, the medical community opposed Ridley's discoveries and it took many years for the technique to be accepted. Today over 200 million people have their sight because of Harold Ridley.

Academic Reading

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1–13 which are based on the Reading Passage below.

The Giant Panda

For more than 100 years, scientists have argued over exactly what a panda is. Now, finally, with the help of DNA testing, the panda has been admitted to the ursidae (bear) family, and the spectacled bear of South America has been confirmed as its closest living relative.

In 1869, French Jesuit missionary Pere David first described the giant panda to western science. With just a pelt and reported sighting to go on, he classified it as a bear. However, the following year, zoologist Alphonse Milne Edwards dissected the first specimen and concluded that it had more in common with the red panda, a member of the raccoon family. For more than a century, scientists quarrelled over whether the giant panda belonged to the bear family, the raccoon family or a separate family of its own.

They had good reason to be confused. The giant panda shares many physical characteristics with the red panda. Both have evolved to feed on bamboo, grasping and eating it in the same way, with similar teeth, skulls and forepaws. They also both have a distinctive cry which they use to communicate with others in their group.

In the mid-1980s there were several studies involving DNA comparisons between the species. The first investigations linked the giant panda with bears, but in 1991 further tests contradicted these findings and placed it in the raccoon family with the red panda. By the year 2000, approximately twelve studies had been completed, and all except two placed the panda in the bear family. The data from these two studies was reanalysed by other researchers, who finally concluded that the giant panda was indeed a bear.

Today, there are eight species of bear. Along with dogs, their closest relatives, cats, raccoons and weasels, they belong to the order Carnivora, a group of meat-eating predators that evolved some 57 million years ago. The ancestors of modern bears split from this group about 34 million years ago, and today the panda is our oldest living bear, followed by the spectacled bear. Both are survivors of an ancient lineage dating back 18 million years. The rest - the brown, black, polar, Asiatic black, sloth and sun bears - are relatively modern, dating back four to five million years.

Researchers have found that the spectacled bear and the panda have several physical features in common. The spectacled bear's muzzle is comparatively short and it has blunt molar teeth and large jaw muscles, which are good for grinding fibrous vegetation - vegetation such as bamboo. Indeed, scientists in Venezuela have found that bamboo makes up 70% of the diet of some spectacled bear populations. For most spectacled bears, however, the bromeliad, a tropical plant with fleshy leaves, is their main food source. Most species of bromeliad grow in trees, and spectacled bears therefore have to be adept tree climbers because they spend their lives foraging for these plants, as well as fruits, in the cloud forest of the Andes.

The giant panda's diet is famously dull, with bamboo representing 99% of its intake. This is rather strange given that its physiology is typical of a carnivore and it has no special adaptation for digesting cellulose, the main constituent of plant cell walls. A panda manages to digest only about 17% of the bamboo it eats (a deer living on grass achieves 80% efficiency). It typically feeds for 14 hours a day, consuming 20 kg or more of bamboo. Unable to store fat effectively, it continues eating in the bitterly cold winter, at a time when many other bears hibernate.

With such a specialised diet, the giant panda has evolved a sixth digit, a prehensile elongated wrist bone called the radial sesamoid. They use this 'false thumb' to roll bamboo leaves into fat, cigarshaped wads which they then sever using their powerful jaws. They feed mainly on the ground but are capable of climbing trees as well. The spectacled bear is a more frequent climber and will even climb spiky cacti plants to reach fruit at the top. They also construct tree nests to act as a bed as well as a platform to feed from fruit-laden branches.

Very occasionally, the giant panda supplements its diet with meat which it scavenges. Spectacled bears eat carrion, too, and some have been known to kill small calves. Spectacled bears are highly adaptable and are found in a wide range of habitats including rainforest, dry forest and coastal scrub desert. In contrast, the giant pandas live at an altitude of between 1,200 and 3,500 metres in mountain forests that are characterised by dense strands of bamboo.

There have been many theories as to why the panda has such a distinctive coat. but the most convincing argument is that of George Schaller, one of the first western scientists to study wild pandas. He believes the contrasting coat may help prevent close encounters with other pandas, 'In pandas, a stare is a threat,' Schaller says. 'The eye patches enlarge the panda's small, dark eyes tenfold, making the stare more powerful. A staring panda will hold its head low, so presenting the eye patches. To show lack of aggressive intent, a panda will avert its head, cover its eye patches with its paws or hide its face.' Interestingly, the spectacled bear is the only other bear with comparably obvious markings around the eye.

B Grammar

The choice of preposition in a clause often depends on the adjective, verb or noun which comes before it.

1 Verb + preposition

Verb	Preposition
care, complain, hear, know, learn, say something, talk, think, warn, wonder, worry, write	about

△ We do not use a preposition with marry:

She married him last year. (not She married with him)

Verbs of saying or thinking (e.g. complain, know, learn, say something, talk, think, warn somebody, wonder, write) are often followed by about when we want to indicate the topic: That way you can learn about teaching before being asked to do it.

△ Some other verbs of saying or thinking (e.g. discuss, debate, consider, mention) do not need a preposition:

We need to discuss the problem. (not discuss about)

Some verbs of saying (e.g. apologise, explain, present, speak, talk, write) are often followed by to + person to show who the speech is directed at:

Have you talked to anyone who has done this course?

We use at + person/thing after some verbs (e.g. aim, fire, laugh, look, point, shout, yell) to show who or what is the focus of the verb:

If they shout at me in class, I'm not sure what I'll do.

We often use for after verbs that show desire (e.g. aim, hope, long, wish) to introduce the thing we want:

I'm aiming for a good mark in my next assignment.

We use to after aim, hope and long if they are followed by a verb: I'm hoping to get a better mark than last year.

Adjectives talking about ability (e.g. awful, bad, clever, good, skilled, terrible, useless) are often followed by at:

I'm not very good at maths.

Some adjectives describing fear (e.g. frightened, scared, terrified) can be followed by of: There are some aspects of the course that I am a bit scared of.

Most people are frightened of being in front of a class for the first time.

Adjectives describing behaviour (e.g. clever, generous, good, kind, nice, selfish) in a clause starting with it, that or this are often followed by of:

Would you like a cup of tea of coffee? That's very kind of you.

Adjectives describing behaviour directed towards others (e.g. cruel, good, kind, mean, nasty, nice, polite, rude, unkind) are often followed by to:

I'm worried about the pupils being rude to me.

3 Noun + preposition

Noun	Preposition
anything, information, nothing, something	about excuse, explanation, ideas, in return, need, reasons, reputation, responsibility	for change, decrease, drop, experience, fall, increase, rise	in experience, knowledge, understanding	of 4 Prepositional phrases: by, in, at, on, of

We use by

- to talk about who in a passive clause:

 But you will be taught how to deal with those things by the tutors on the course.
- to explain how something is done:
 You can remove any dirty marks by wiping it with a wet cloth.
- to talk about transport and communications e.g. by plane, by email: We'll be in touch by email soon if that's okay.
- to talk about chance (e.g. by chance, by accident, by mistake):

 I saw the advertisement for the job by chance and decided to apply for it.

We use in for the following expressions: in love, in pain, in private, in touch, in debt, in danger, in a rush, in fashion, in luck, in the end.

Don't forget to keep in touch while you're away!

We use at for the following expressions

- at first, at large, at peace:
 At first I was impressed by the reputation of the university but I also like the course you offer.
- at work, at home, at school, at the airport, at university:
 I've just finished my first degree at Stamford University.

We use on to say why you are somewhere (e.g. on holiday, on business, on duty). We use of with expressions of quantity (e.g. all, any, both, either, neither).

Grammar extra: Prepositions

We can use nouns, pronouns, or -ing after a preposition:

I was really impressed with the description of the course in your prospectus. If they shout at me in class, I'm not sure what I'll do. Well, I've always been interested in teaching.

In negatives not comes between the preposition and -ing:

I'm worried about not being able to control a class.

7 You'll need to talk the police.

A Context listening

You are going to hear part of a radio programme about making sure your home is safe when you are away. Before you listen, look at the picture. What do you think the radio programme will mention?

- Listen again and complete the advice below using no more than three words from the recording.

How to protect your home

Outdoors

- If you live in an area 1 a lot of tall trees, cut off overhanging or dead branches.
- Put away objects 2 damaging missiles.

Indoors

- If you are away for a long time then find someone 3 on your home for you.
- Install lights 4 a timer so that it looks as though you are home.
- Find someone 5 ______ your mail regularly.
- Look at your answers and underline all of the relative pronouns (where, which, who, that).

 Which relative pronouns are used to refer to people?

 Which relative pronouns are used to refer to things?

B Grammar

Relative clauses give information about a noun (or noun phrase). They are linked to the noun (or noun phrase) by a relative pronoun (e.g. who, which). The relative pronoun can be either the subject or the object of the clause, and we do not use another pronoun in the clause to refer to the noun:

Why not install lights which have a timer? (not Why not install lights which they have a timer?)

△ We sometimes use a participle clause instead of a relative clause (see Unit 12):

the man sitting heside me (= the man who is sitting beside me) the food kept in the fridge (= the food which is kept in the fridge)

1 Relative pronouns

We use

who to refer to people:
 Please welcome Mike Bowers, who is going to talk to us about how to look after your home.

which to refer to things:
 These are dangerous if you live in a flat which is in a large high-rise building.

• that to refer to people or things:

Find someone that can check on your home while you're away. Store away any objects that could become damaging missiles.

That is an alternative to who and which and is more common in spoken English.

A That is not used in non-defining relative clauses (see below).

where to refer to places:

This is your home, the place where you keep your most treasured possessions.

when to refer to times:

Programme them to come on at times when you would normally be home.

• whose to show possession:

You're a person whose job involves a lot of travel. He lives in an old house, whose roof needs repairing.

why after the reason or reasons:

There are often very good reasons why one house is burgled and another is not.

2 Defining relative clauses

Defining relative clauses give information after a noun to identify the noun more clearly:

Find someone who can collect your mail for you.

Store away any objects that could become damaging missiles if it gets windy. (the relative clause identifies the type of objects)

Without these relative clauses, it is unclear which person, place or thing we are referring to: Store away any objects if it gets windy. (we do not know which objects)

We can leave out the relative pronoun when it refers back to the object of the defining relative clause. Compare:

Maybe there's a neighbour (that) you can ask. (neighbour is the object of the verb)
In the evening, a house that's very dark can really stand out. (house is the subject of the verb: not a house is very dark can really stand out)

3 Non-defining relative clauses

Non-defining relative clauses add extra, non-essential information about something. Compare:

I applied to the university, which is located in the centre of the city. (there is only one university, so its location is extra information: non-defining)

I applied to the university which is located in the centre of the city. (there is another university which is not in the centre of the city: defining)

Non-defining relative clauses are more common in written language than in spoken language.

With non-defining relative clauses

- we do not use the relative pronoun that:
 The burglars got in through the kitchen window, which the owners had forgotten to shut.
 (not the kitchen window, that the owners)
- we separate the relative clause from the main clause with commas. There may be two commas or one comma depending on whether the relative clause comes in the middle of a sentence or at the end:
 - A letterbox can become full of uncollected letters, which is a great help to a burglar. Mr Smith, who was my primary school teacher, got married last week.
- we cannot leave out the relative pronoun:
 My new house, which I have just redecorated, is much larger than my old house. (not My newhouse, I have just redecorated)
- the relative pronoun can refer to a single noun phrase or to a whole clause:

 My neighbour, who lives upstairs, often looks after my flat. (who refers to my neighbour)

 Some people seem to think it's just a matter of locking all the doors, which is fine as long as there are no nasty storms while you are away. (which refers to the whole of the first phrase)

Compare the key differences between defining and non-defining relative clauses:

Defining relative clauses:

- identify the thing that you are talking about
- that can replace who or which
- the relative pronoun can be left out if it refers to the object
- no commas

Non-defining relative clauses:

- give additional, non-essential information
- that cannot be used
- the relative pronoun cannot be left out
- must have commas

20

4 Prepositions

When prepositions are used with relative clauses they usually come at the end of the clause in spoken English:

You may have a neighbour that you can rely on. (informal)

In formal style the preposition can be placed before the relative pronouns which or whom:

I was unsuccessful in obtaining a place at any of the universities to which I applied. My boss, for whom I have worked for over 30 years, has decided to retire.

Grammar extra: Common collocations with relative pronouns

We often use the expression the one with defining relative clauses:

He's the one who suggested I became a teacher. My father is the one that taught me to play the piano. That house is the one where I grew up.

Where can be used after expressions such as the situation, the stage or the point:

We were in a situation where there were no easy solutions.

I'm almost at the stage where I'm ready to quit my job and go into business for myself.

I've reached the point where I feel I should just give up.

Academic Reading

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1–12 which are based on the Reading Passage below.

Robotic approach to crop breeding

Jennifer Manyweathers takes a look at a robot that is being used to identify drought-tolerant crop varieties

- A The Australian sunflower industry is the major source of polyunsaturated fatty acids found in margarines and spreads. Recognised as the type of fatty acid most able to protect against heart disease, it is in everybody's best interest that Australia has a competitive and healthy sunflower industry, but in Australia there is a constant struggle with the harsh climate. However, thanks to one special robot, farmers may be able to win the battle against drought.
- B Dr Chris Lambrides, a research fellow at the University of Queensland, is nearing the end of a project that aims to develop more drought-tolerant sunflowers by selecting flowers that use water more efficiently. He's done this with the help of a robot developed by the Australian National University's Research School of Biological Sciences.
- C Plants undergo photosynthesis to produce energy in the form of sugar. This involves allowing carbon dioxide to enter the leaves through pores called stomata. Transpiration is the mechanism by which plants lose water through their leaves. This system is thought to facilitate the passage of minerals through the plant and is vital for healthy plants.
- D However, in conditions of drought, the plants that can use the available water efficiently and lose less to the environment will be more likely to thrive and, in a commercial sense become more profitable. These plants are classified as having a high transpiration efficiency. When plants transpire, the leaves become cooler due to evaporation. Therefore, by measuring the temperature of the leaves, scientists can determine how much water is being lost through transpiration.

- E When the project first began, the researchers used hand-held infrared thermometers to measure the temperature difference between leaves of different varieties of sunflowers in an experimental plot. Wind can affect leaf temperature, and the research team discovered that its initial approach did not cater for changes in wind speed, which could not be controlled as an experimental variable. The team therefore needed a technique to measure temperature continuously that would allow it to examine the effects of other variables such as humidity. They needed a robot.
- F They designed a robot with two infrared thermometers set at 180° to each other. The robot runs on an oblong track around the experimental plot and the thermometers operate on each side of the track. In order to minimize any variables from the two thermometers, they are rotated 180° at the beginning of each run and the results are averaged. The infrared thermometers can be rotated on an angle to examine different parts of the foliage.
- G The robot is also able to detect light intensity. It has a garage on the track, where it waits until the light intensity is high enough to give useful results. If the skies darken due to rain, heavy cloud cover or sunset, the robot makes its way back to the garage to wait.
- H The main difficulty faced by the research group was to find an agronomist who could grow the perfect crop of sunflowers. The sunflower canopy had to be complete, with no visible soil, so that the thermometers would only measure the temperature of the plants and not the surrounding environment. Eight varieties of sunflower were examined. The data collected by the robot has been used by the research team to determine which variety has the highest transpiration efficiency.
- I This is not the first time such methods have been used to determine drought-resistance in plants. The team and their robot have already made a major breakthrough in the Australian wheat industry with Drysdale Wheat, which signalled the arrival of a new technique for selecting drought-resistant species.

3 The name of the process which is believed to help keep plants in good condition is 4 The research team had to rethink their initial approach when they realised they needed to measure the impact of external conditions such as ______ and _____ and ______.

Questions 5-12

The reading passage has nine paragraphs labelled A–I. Which paragraph contains the following information?

Write the correct letter A–I next to Questions 5–12.

- 5 the precise growing conditions required to allow the experiment to work
- 6 a description of the how the robot operates
- 7 an explanation of two important processes used by plants
- 8 a reference to a previous study using a different crop
- 9 details of what the robot does when conditions are poor
- 10 the name of the group responsible for making the robot
- 11 the number of different types of sunflower tested
- 12 the purpose of taking the temperature of the plants

Ways of organising texts

subject choice; introductory it; ellipsis; organising information; it- and what-clauses

A Context listening

You are going to listen to a student interviewing a woman for a survey on shopping habits. Look at these questions. How would you answer them?

- 2 221 Listen and compare your answers with the woman in the interview.
- 3 21 Listen again and fill in the gaps. Underline the subject of each verb.
 - 1 'No, with my family my husband and three children.'
 - 2 'And how many times a week the food shopping?'
 - 3 'Oh, it on my own. If with the others, too many things in the trolley and me a fortune!'
 - 4 '...... Monday to Wednesday and fewer people in the supermarket on Thursday than on Friday.'
 - 5 'Well, it once but it.'
 - 'And you why not?"
 - 'Well, what I like is being able to see the products and walking around the shop and maybe buying things that aren't on my shopping list, you know. _____ do that on your computer, can you?'
- Now read part of the student's written report. What is the difference between the kinds of words that are used as subjects in the spoken text in Exercise 3 and the underlined words that are used as subjects in the written report?

Nowadays people appear to do their shopping on a weekly basis at large supermarkets. These supermarkets seem to have largely replaced the smaller, individual shops. Most people tend to go to the same store on the same day of the week and, according to my survey results, it is still the women who do most of the shopping. In general, the people who were interviewed were not positive about online shopping. However, it is important to note that the respondents were interviewed at the supermarket and were not a random sample of the general public.

B Grammar

Ways of organising texts

1 The subject

We use different kinds of words as subjects depending on the context.

In informal contexts (e.g. conversation) subjects are very often personal pronouns such as I, you, we:

'First I need to ask about your household. Do you live alone?"

'No, I live with my family.'

In formal contexts (e.g. academic writing) subjects are often nouns or noun phrases, which makes the message sound factual rather than personal:

Most people tend to go to the same store on the same day of the week each time.

The introductory it

We often use expressions beginning with it when the pronoun does not refer to any noun (e.g. it is important, it is clear, it is useful, it is possible, it is difficult, it is likely, it seems, it appears). We use this introductory it when the subject of the sentence is an infinitive, -ing or that-clause. This structure is more common in written English than in spoken:

It is important to note that these respondents were interviewed at the supermarket. (not To note that these respondents were interviewed at the supermarket is important.)

It is clear that women do most of the shopping. (not That women do most of the shopping is clear.)

2 Ellipsis: leaving words out

We can leave out the subject of a verb to avoid repetition, as well as any other repeated words such as auxiliaries or other verbs:

The respondents were interviewed at the supermarket and (they) were not a random sample of the general public.

The students were researching and (they were) planning their seminar presentations.

3 Organising information in a text

In formal writing we often start clauses or sentences with information that has been mentioned before. We usually place new information at the end of the clause or sentence. To develop our texts in an organised and logical way we can use the information at the end of one clause as the start of the next. This 'zigzag pattern' is common in academic writing where new ideas are taken up and developed:

People appear to do their shopping on a weekly basis at large supermarkets.

These supermarkets, seem to have largely replaced the smaller, individual shops.

mentioned before

new information

The new information in the first sentence becomes known information in the second sentence.

4 Adding emphasis or contrast in a text

We can use it-clauses and what-clauses to emphasize or highlight the information that directly follows them.

It-clauses

It + be + main focus + relative clause It is still the women who do most of the shopping.

Compare these sentences:

The women still do most of the household shopping at local supermarkets. (no emphasis)

It is still the women who do most of the household shopping at local supermarkets. (emphasizes the women)

▲ We cannot say: They are still the women who do most of the shopping.

What-clauses

What + secondary focus + be + main focus What I like is heing able to see the products.

Compare these sentences:

I like seeing the products.

What I like is seeing the products. (highlights being able to see products in contrast with online shopping where you can't see products)

We normally use a singular verb after a what-clause.

5 Repeating ideas in a text

We can link ideas in a text by using related words. These related words can be

- pronouns:
 - Most people tend to go to the same store on the same day of the week each time, and they spend between £100 and £200 a week on their household shopping. (they = most people)
- synonyms or rewording:

These supermarkets seem to have largely replaced the smaller, individual shops. Most people tend to go to the same store on the same day of the week each time. (supermarket = store)

(See Unit 9 for more information about avoiding repetition in texts.)

The Future of Energy

A look at the challenge of providing the world with energy without damaging the environment.

1 Global energy consumption is predicted to rise nearly sixty per cent in the next twenty years. 2 _______ is due to factors such as population growth, urbanization, and economic and industrial expansion.

3 _____ have set themselves renewable energy targets, hoping to be able to generate a proportion of the electricity by such renewable means as wind or solar power. On a cloudy day in Britain 4 can generate enough electricity for the household to play 140 hours of TV and make 35 cups of tea. 5 ____ saves up to a ton of CO2 emissions each year. 6 all help to provide alternative sources of energy for private homes and 7 are no longer prohibitively expensive. 8 ____ can make savings for householders in the long run, and in Britain 9 _____is providing financial help with the cost of installing them.

Read the test task and the model answer. A teacher has underlined the problem areas and written comments. Write the corrections below.

Many health problems in adults such as obesity and heart disease can be linked to poor diet. Research shows that it is important to encourage healthy eating patterns at an early age in order to avoid ill-health as an adult.

What action can be taken to encourage children to eat more healthily?

1 grammar problem 1 To educate our children about healthy eating and physical exercise is important. Children need to learn what to eat and 2 children need to experience eating a wider variety of foods. 2 avoid repetition Packed lunches which are produced by the same person every day tend to contain the same food items every day too and also 3 these foods tend not to be the healthy option. Very 3 avoid repetition often the contents of children's lunch boxes are crisps, sweets and biscuits. In order to prevent the problems associated with poor diet, such as obesity and heart disease in adulthood, parents need to encourage their children to eat a greater variety of healthier foods. 4 The lack of experience of eating different 4 add emphasis kinds of foods often leads to poor diet in adults. Experiencing a wider variety of foods can lead to a more rounded and nutritious diet and 5 experiencing a wider variety of foods can 5 avoid repetition therefore lead to better health. 6 To provide support and help to parents is important. One 6 grammar problem way to do this is to implement a system whereby all children 7 try starting with get the same food. 7 No child would feel ashamed or embarrassed by the contents of their lunch boxes with this 'This system ...' system. Although difficult to achieve, this would control the foods that all children ate, thereby ensuring a healthy diet. 8 avoid repetition 8 Eating a healthy diet as a child undoubtedly has a huge influence on how healthy we are as adults.

B Grammar

1 The passive: form

The active voice shows what something does. The passive voice shows what happens to something. We make the passive with a form of the verb be + past participle.

Tense		Passive form: be + past participle (+ by + agent) present simple	\rightarrow	The union is run by 7 executive officers.
present continuous	\rightarrow	The union is being run by 7 executive officers.
past simple	\rightarrow	The union was run by 7 executive officers.
past continuous	\rightarrow	The union was being run by 7 executive officers.
present perfect	\rightarrow	The union has been run by 7 executive officers.
past perfect	\rightarrow	The union had been run by 7 executive officers.
going to	\rightarrow	The union is going to be run by 7 executive officers.
will	\rightarrow	The union will be run by 7 executive officers.
Other forms
infinitive	\rightarrow	The union is to be run by 7 executive officers.
-ing form	\rightarrow	The university insists on the union being run by 7 executive officers.
used to	\rightarrow	The university used to be run by 7 executive officers.
modals	\rightarrow	The university should be run by 7 executive officers.
need to / have to	\rightarrow	The university needs to/has to be run by 7 executive officers.
need + -ing	\rightarrow	The university needs running by 7 executive officers.

⚠ We do not use the passive with intransitive verbs (verbs which cannot have an object): he arrived (not he was arrived)

2 The passive: use

We use the passive

• when the object is more important than the subject and the agent is either obvious, not important, or unknown:

All applications are processed on the spot. (it is obvious that it is the library staff who process the cards) in formal writing to make it less personal:

You are advised to return the application form within three days. (impersonal)

The active voice is more direct and personal:

I advise you to return the application form within three days.

• when we describe a process:

The union is run by seven executive officers who are elected by students.

△ We do not generally use the passive for natural (or biological) processes, where people are not involved (e.g. the carbon cycle):

Plants take up carbon dioxide from the air as part of photosynthesis.

Notice how if we want to repeat the ending of the previous clause or sentence at the beginning of the next, we may need to use the passive:

Does the university run the union?

No, the union is run by seven executive officers who are elected by students each year.

The executive officers are held accountable by the union council.

The council is also elected by the student population.

This pattern is typical of academic writing.

3 Reporting with passive verbs

With reporting verbs and verbs of thinking or feeling we can use

- it + passive verb + that (e.g. agree, announce, argue, believe, claim, decide, disclose, expect, feel, hope, know, predict, recognize, report, say, suggest, think, understand):

 It was felt that the facilities were in need of renovation.
- subject + passive verb + to-infinitive (e.g. ask, believe, consider, estimate, expect, feel, know, mean, report, say, see, suppose, think, understand):
 Our sports facilities are said to be among the best in the country. (= people say our sports facilities are among the best in the country)
 This building is believed to be the oldest in the town.

4 Have something done

To show that someone performs a paid service for us we use have + object + past participle: You'll need to have your photo taken. (= someone else will take your photograph)

In informal English get + past participle can be used in the same way: I got my photo taken yesterday.

5 Need + -ing

We can sometimes use need + -ing as an alternative to the passive to say that it is necessary to do something without stating who will do it:

Some facilities need improving around the campus. (= it is necessary to improve some facilities)

Teacher: People are said that the increase in travel will lead to a loss of different cultures around the world. Do you agree?

Student: Well, yes, I suppose that is a possibility. I'm sure the way of life of many people around the world has changed by contact with tourists. But the change might have been happened anyway, I suppose.

Teacher: Yes, maybe. So, do you think we should try to stop the disappearance of native cultures?

Student: Oh, yes. I think it will be very sad if we lose different cultures. They enrich our world, don't they? But it is also argued that many people from poor countries have given opportunities that they wouldn't have had if there wasn't any tourism. Their cultures may have changed, but they have been benefited from improvements in education and health as well as their standard of living.

Teacher: So do you think that improvements like this inevitably bring about a loss of culture, as some people have been suggested?

Student: I suppose I do think that, yes. As we are continued to be provided with better and better education and we have more and more contact with the world outside our own countries, we are being become more and more the same!

Teacher: Can you give some examples of what you mean?

Student: Well, in my country we now have American restaurants and we watch American movies on TV. American culture feels to be too dominant by many people in my country. And English words have been come into my language too.

Teacher: Oh, that's interesting. And do you think that there will one day be only one language in the world?

Student: Well, the way we live has affected in a big way by things like the Internet, email and cheap travel. All countries are using English for these things, and so we all know a little bit of English already. But I am not sure it will use by all countries instead of their own language. That seems unlikely to me.

Teacher: You've made some very interesting points. Thank you.

B Grammar

1 Ways of linking ideas

We use conjunctions (e.g. but, because) to join two clauses in one sentence:

clause 1 clause

Fish has long been a staple food in many cultures, but there has been some controversy recently about the benefits and risks of fish consumption.

ause 1 clause

Fish is known as a brain food because it is beneficial to the development of the brain.

We can use adverbial expressions (e.g. consequently, however) to connect ideas in separate sentences. These usually go at the beginning of the sentence or clause:

Fish is known as a 'brain food' because of the benefits it has for brain development. However, recent studies have shown that fish can also contain mercury.

Some adverbial expressions (e.g. therefore, however, also) can be used in a variety of positions:

People therefore are unsure of whether to eat fish.

People are therefore unsure of whether to eat fish.

People are unsure therefore of whether to eat fish.

We can use prepositions (e.g. in spite of, because of) before a noun phrase or an -ing form:

The match was cancelled because of the snow. (not because of it snowed)

In spite of losing the first game, the team went on to win the tournament.

2 Linking expressions

Adding information

conjunctions: and, as well as adverbials: also, anyway, besides, furthermore, in addition, likewise, moreover, similarly

We use these expressions to give additional information:

Fish supplies us with substances that might protect against heart disease. Moreover, in many cultures fish is known as a 'brain food'.

Sequencing

adverbials: first, next, after that, then; firstly, secondly, finally

Firstly, secondly and finally are used to order points in an argument:

Firstly, in terms of heart disease, it has been shown that consuming even small quantities of fish can lower your risk of heart disease by 17%. Secondly, consuming fish is known to have a beneficial effect on brain development. Finally, ...

First, next, after that and then describe the order of activities in a process:

First the fruit is picked by hand. Then it is transported to the factory.

Cause, reason, result conjunctions: because, so adverbials: therefore, consequently, so, thus, as a result prepositions: because of, due to, on account of, owing to Because introduces the reason for something, and so introduces the result:

reason

I eat fish three times a week because it protects against heart disease.

result

Fish protects against heart disease so I eat it three times a week.

Therefore, consequently, so, thus, and as a result introduce the result of a situation or action: As a result, people are unsure whether to increase or decrease the amount of fish they eat.

We use because of, due to, on account of and owing to to introduce the reason for something: The match was cancelled because of the snow. (not because of it was snowing)

The buses were all running late owing to the bad weather.

△ We can use due to, on account of and owing to + the fact that with a clause:

The match was cancelled due to the fact that it was snowing.

Contrasting

conjunctions: but, although, though adverbials: alternatively, however, in contrast, nevertheless, on the contrary, on the other hand, yet prepositions: in spite of, despite

We use but between two contrasting ideas:

Fish has long been a staple food in many cultures, but there has been some controversy recently about the benefits and risks of fish consumption.

Although can come at the beginning or in the middle of two contrasting ideas. We use a comma between the two clauses:

Although the work was supported by grants from the Fisheries Scholarship Fund, this did not affect the research findings.

The work was supported by grants from the Fisheries Scholarship Fund, although this did not affect the research findings.

We use in spite of and despite + noun/-ing at the beginning or in the middle of two contrasting ideas:

In spite of the considerable amount of literature on the risks and benefits of fish consumption, there are still important gaps in this information. (not in spite of there is a considerable amount) I eat fish regularly for health reasons despite not liking it much. (not despite I don't like it)

△ We can use despite and in spite of + the fact that with a clause:

I eat fish regularly for health reasons despite the fact that I don't like it much.

Giving examples

adverbials: that is to say, in other words, that is (i.e.), for example

We use these expressions to link two clauses that give the same information in a different way or to give examples:

There has been some controversy recently about the benefits and risks of fish consumption. For example, we know that fish supplies us with polyunsaturated fatty acids, substances that might protect against heart disease.

Grammar extra: Written and spoken English

Some linking expressions are more common in either written (formal) or spoken English:

Written: thus, therefore, finally, furthermore, hence, moreover, nevertheless, in addition, firstly, secondly, finally Regular comsumption of fish can lower your risk of heart disease by 17%. Furthermore, it can have a beneficial effect on brain development.

Spoken: so, then, anyway

Eating fish is good for you so I try to eat it regularly.

Academic Reading

You should spend about 20 minutes on Questions 1–12 which are based on the Reading Passage below.

Experience versus speed

Certain mental functions slow down with age, but the brain compensates in ways that can keep seniors as sharp as youngsters.

Jake, aged 16, has a terrific relationship with his grandmother Rita, who is 70. They live close by, and they even take a Spanish class together twice a week at a local college. After class they sometimes stop at a café for a snack. On one occasion Rita tells Jake, 'I think it's great how fast you pick up new grammar. It takes me a lot longer.' Jake replies, 'Yeah, but you don't seem to make as many silly mistakes on the quizzes as I do. How do you do that?'

In that moment, Rita and Jake stumbled across an interesting set of differences between older and younger minds. Popular psychology says that as people age their brains 'slow down'. The implication, of course, is that elderly men and women are not as mentally agile as middle-aged adults or even teenagers. However, although certain brain functions such as perception and reaction time do indeed take longer, that slowing down does not necessarily undermine mental sharpness. Indeed, evidence shows that older people are just as mentally fit as younger people because their brains compensate for some kinds of declines in creative ways that young minds do not exploit.

Just as people's bodies age at different rates, so do their minds. As adults advance in age, the perception of sights, sounds and smells takes a bit longer, and laying down new information into memory becomes more difficult. The ability to retrieve memories also quickly slides and it is sometimes harder to concentrate and maintain attention.

On the other hand, the ageing brain can create significant benefits by tapping into its extensive hoard of accumulated knowledge and experience. The biggest trick that older brains employ is to use both hemispheres simultaneously to handle tasks for which younger brains rely predominantly on one side. Electronic images taken by cognitive scientists at the University of Michigan, for example, have demonstrated that even when doing basic recognition or memorization exercises, seniors exploit the left and right side of the brain more extensively than men and women who are decades younger. Drawing on both sides of the brain gives them a tactical edge, even if the speed of each hemisphere's process is slower.

In another experiment, Michael Falkenstein of the University of Dortmund in Germany found that when elders were presented with new computer exercises they paused longer before reacting and took longer to complete the tasks, yet they made 50% fewer errors, probably because of their more deliberate pace.

One analogy for these results might be the question of who can type a paragraph 'better': a 16-year-old who glides along at 60 words per minute but has to double back to correct a number of mistakes or a 70-year-old who strikes keys at only 40 words per minute but spends less time fixing errors? In the end, if 'better' is defined as completing a clean paragraph, both people may end up taking the same amount of time.

Computerized tests support the notion that accuracy can offset speed. In one so-called distraction exercise, subjects were told to look at a screen, wait for an arrow that pointed in a certain direction to appear, and then use a mouse to click on the arrow as soon as it appeared on the screen. Just before the correct symbol appeared, however, the computer displayed numerous other arrows aimed in various other directions. Although younger subjects cut through the confusion faster when the correct arrow suddenly popped up, they more frequently clicked on incorrect arrows in their haste.

Older test takers are equally capable of other tasks that do not depend on speed, such as language comprehension and processing. In these cases, however, the elders utilize the brain's available resources in a different way. Neurologists at Northwest University came to this conclusion after analyzing 50 people ranging from age 23 to 78. The subjects had to lie down in a magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) machine and concentrate on two different lists of printed words posted side by side in front of them. By looking at the lists, they were to find pairs of words that were similar in either meaning or spelling.

The eldest participants did just as well on the tests as the youngest did, and yet the MRI scans indicated that in the elders' brains, the areas which are responsible for language recognition and interpretation were much less active. The researchers did find that the older people had more activity in brain regions responsible for attentiveness. Darren Gleitman, who headed the study, concluded that older brains solved the problems just as effectively but by different means.

Questions 1-3

Choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

- 1 The conversation between Jake and Rita is used to give an example of
 - A the way we learn languages.

B Grammar

When speaking or writing we can choose language to indicate our feelings, attitudes, judgments and beliefs. Task 2 in the Writing section of the IELTS test generally asks you to discuss a topic. We have to decide where to position ourselves on the topic and demonstrate this through the language we use.

1 Pronouns

In formal writing, first person pronouns (e.g. I, you, we) are not very common, but we can use them to

- give our opinion of the topic being discussed with I or we: I would argue that all children should attend school.
- show we are part of the group and identify with the reader, usually with we or us. Compare: Is it better for us to educate our children at home rather than send them to school? Is it better for parents to educate their children at home rather than send them to school? The use of us in the first sentence changes the text from objective comment to a more subjective one.

To show our attitude, feelings or assessment of something we can use

• single adverbs (e.g. actually, frankly, fortunately, unfortunately, personally, luckily, interestingly, naturally, surprisingly):

Frankly, I'd be totally bored staying at home all day.

But, unfortunately, schools do seem to be more overcrowded and less well-funded these days.

In speech we often use actually to correct someone or to show that we disagree with something that has been said:

Actually, she believes that she received a better education as a result.

- adverbial phrases that express the speaker's view of a generalization (e.g. broadly speaking, by and large, in general, overall, on the whole, to a great extent):
 But, in general, I don't think it is a good idea.
- adverbial phrases of opinion (e.g. in my/our view, in my opinion):
 In my opinion that's a disadvantage.

To soften the tone of an argument we can use adverbs of possibility (e.g. certainly, definitely, maybe, perhaps, possibly, presumably, probably):

Well, that's certainly the way my friend felt.

Perhaps she had enough of them as a child!

So, maybe that's a result of her education experience.

To show that the information has come from somewhere/someone else, we can use adverbial phrases that report the views of other people (e.g. apparently, according to (somebody), evidently):

According to my friend they did fun things like going out for walks.

Apparently there is a network of parents who teach at home. (someone else told me this)

Position of adverbs

Comment adverbs often come at the beginning or the end of a clause (e.g. according to, fortunately, interestingly, luckily, surprisingly, unfortunately):

Interestingly, she doesn't have a great relationship with her parents these days. She doesn't have a great relationship with her parents these days, interestingly.

Many adverbs can also come before the main verb or after be:

It is probably best.

He would possibly feel quite differently.

△ Definitely is not usually used at the beginning of a clause:

I am definitely coming to the party. (not Definitely I am coming to the party.)

3 Verbs

To show our opinion or feelings we can use verbs such as think, suppose, believe, feel, guess, see: I think that's a good point.

I can see that being educated at home would be good for some children. (= I can understand)

When the subject is I, it is sometimes preceded by personally:

Personally, I feel the teachers did a really good job.

To show that we are expressing our ideas rather than facts or to sound more cautious we can use modal verbs of possibility (e.g. may, might, could, must, can) and verbs like seem or appear:

I think he must look back at his school days and feel really bad. Schools seem to be more overcrowded and less well-funded these days.

4 Adjectives

We can use adjectives

- to show our feelings (e.g. glad, delighted, overwhelmed):

 Anyway, I'm glad that my parents didn't educate me at home.
- with it + be + adjective + that to show possibility and opinion (e.g. clear, possible, probable, likely):

Yes, but it is likely that those people will be very similar.

Many people have changed from a mainly meat-based diet to a vegetarian one in recent years. What are the possible reasons for this and to what extent do you consider it a sensible option?

they believe that

There are many reasons why people follow a vegetarian diet. Firstly, it is because Λ it is wrong to kill may be animals. This Λ is due to religious beliefs or it is their own personal philosophy. (they believe that; may be; could be)

Another motivation for stopping eating meat is health. The high fibre content of a vegetarian diet reduces the likelihood of suffering from some bowel problems and heart disease. In addition, fewer vegetarians than meat-eaters are overweight. A further advantage is that a vegetarian diet is cheaper than eating meat. (it is possible that; according to research; seems to; can be)

Nevertheless, there are some disadvantages. Vegetarians lack a lot of the vitamins and minerals that are present in meat, such as iron or vitamin B12, or calcium if you do not include dairy products in your diet. There is also the social problem of not being able to eat food available at parties and restaurants. However, in terms of health a vegetarian is more likely to be healthy than a non-vegetarian and the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. (it is clear that; can; overall; personally I feel that)

	1 What was unusual about what happened when Julie was stung by a bee?
	2 Where did she get stung?
	3 How did it feel?
	4 What happened to her foot?
	5 What other effects were there?
4	Read this written scientific account of the effects of bee stings.
	Following a bee sting the normal reaction is burning pain, redness, irritation and itching. After a person has been stung by a bee once, they may become allergic to the bee's venom. There is a 60% risk of a serious reaction upon re-sting. In this situation there may be swelling in the area around the bite, it may become red and sore, the victim may have breathing difficulties, a dry cough, abdominal pain and vomiting. In extremely serious cases, the throat may swell, blocking the airway and the heart may stop.
	Look at the underlined words in the extracts from what Julie said. How are these word expressed in the written text?
	1 I was really surprised by how much it hurt.
	2 It itched a bit too
	3 My foot began to go red and swell up.
	4 Then I began to find it difficult to breathe and kept coughing.

B Grammar

When we choose to give the main information in a clause as a noun phrase rather than as a verb this is called 'nominalisation'.

1 Nominalisation in written English

In spoken English we usually use a subject + verb to describe an event:

subject + verb

I reacted hadly.

subject + verb + verb

Then really quickly my foot began to go red and swell up.

In formal written language we use language that is less personal, so we often use a noun form instead of a verb. The written scientific account describes the same reaction like this:

Following a hee sting the normal reaction is redness, irritation and itching.

noun

In this situation there may be swelling in the area around the bite.

In the spoken example the events are expressed by verbs (go red, swell up). In the written examples the events have been changed into nouns (redness, swelling). Notice that the only verb in the written examples is the non-action verb be.

We can also change some adjectives to nouns. Compare:

The cathedral is tall and can be seen from all over the town. The cathedral's height makes it visible all over town.

The common differences between spoken and written English are:

Spoken

- action or events are expressed as verbs: swell up
- events happen to people or are carried out by people:
 I reacted badly, my foot began to go red
- personal pronouns are used as subjects:
 I. she
- verbs are often action or event verbs: reacted, trod, itched

Written

- actions or events may be expressed as nouns or noun phrases: swelling
- events are expressed impersonally: the normal reaction is ...
- nouns used as subjects:
 a person, the throat
- verbs are often not action or event verbs:
 be, have
- sentences have a lot of vocabulary words

2 Reasons for using nominalisation

Making texts impersonal and authoritative

By turning actions into nouns we make the text sound less personal and more authoritative. We don't use personal pronouns (e.g. I, you, he) as much.

Compare:

Following a bee sting the normal reaction is burning pain, redness, irritation and itching. In this situation there may be swelling in the area around the bite.

Then really quickly my foot began to go red and swell up. It just got bigger and bigger. It itched a bit too. I was really surprised by how much it hurt.

The nominalisations have been underlined. The spoken account is much more personal and uses active verbs.

Adding information

Nominalisation is particularly useful for Academic Writing Task 1 because we can do several things to add information to nouns in English:

• count: the two charts

• describe: the two coloured charts

• classify: the two coloured bar charts

We cannot do the same with verbs. It is only by changing verbs into nouns that we can add information words to a text in such a concise way.

Avoiding repetition

We can use nominalisation to avoid repetition when we want to refer back to a previously mentioned idea (see Unit 21):

The number of unemployed increased by 5% last month. The reason for this increase is still unclear.

Nominalisation can also be used to paraphrase what has been said. In the IELTS Listening and Reading tests different words are used in the texts and the questions. Compare:

Listening text:

Then I began to find it difficult to breathe and kept coughing, although I didn't have a cold.

Question:

Which TWO of the following symptoms did Julie experience?

A breathing problems

B shaking

C a cough

D a high temperature

E chills

Options A and C are nominalisations of the verbs used in the listening text.

Questions 1-9: locating information

Test tip: Scan the passage for relevant information, and then check that it matches the question exactly (e.g. for question 2 the experiment is mentioned several times but only paragraph D describes how it was done). Remember that the words in the passage may paraphrase the words in the questions.

1 E (prey spiders did not respond to them in any way) 2 D (The researchers allowed various prey spiders to spin webs in the laboratory and then introduced Portia spiders.) 3 F (lions hunting at night, for example) 4 D (To simulate the shaking effect of a breeze the zoologists used either a model aircraft propeller or attached a tiny magnet to the centre of the web) 5 B (They will attack something about twice their own size) 6 A (for jumping spiders that sneak onto other spiders' webs to prey on their owners, it can be the difference between having lunch and becoming it) 7 B (Portia spiders live mostly in tropical forests, where the climate is hot and humid.) 8 B (The fifteen known species of Portia jumping spiders) 9 F (Portia spiders are clearly intelligent and they often learn from their prey as they are trying to capture it. If you cannot find an answer, just move on to the next one and come back to this one later. 10 A (Portia spiders moved more when the webs were shaking (vibrating) than when they were still (motionless) so B is incorrect; C is incorrect: they were more likely to capture their prey during tests in which the webs were periodically shaken than in those where the webs were undisturbed; D is incorrect: If the spiders were placed onto unoccupied webs, they would make no attempt to change their movements) 11 A (They'd make a big pluck with one of their hind legs = make strong vibrations with one leg; B and C are incorrect: the spiders would ... then creep forwards up to five millimetres before the vibrations died down; D is incorrect: the violent twanging produces a pattern of vibrations that match those caused by a twig falling onto the web) 12 C (this is the first example of an animal making its own smokescreen that we know of: A is incorrect: lions also do this; B is incorrect: Portia spiders mimic trapped insects not other prey-eating animals; D is incorrect; we are not told that spiders are the only animal that uses 'trial and error') 13 B (Sometimes they will even take an indirect route to reach a prey spider ... When it does this, the Portia spider is actually solving problems and thinking ahead about its actions.)

Reading

Questions 1-6: choosing paragraph headings

Test tip: Try to get the general idea of what each paragraph is about. Make sure that the heading you choose reflects the overall message in the paragraph and not just one fact.

1 vii (Paragraph A tells us about an advertisement for pens that brought 5,000 people into a shop.) 2 ix (Paragraph B tells us about earlier pens and their problems; there were 350 patents for pens in fifty years. A patent is a formal application to manufacture something so that no one else can copy it.) 3 vi (Paragraph C tells us that one of the Biro brothers was annoved at problems he had with fountain pens, so he decided to invent a new one.) 4 iv (Paragraph D tells us about the problem with the first design and how this was solved with a second design which worked better. We also learn that the brothers moved to Argentina.) 5 viii (Paragraph E tells us that the United States Department of War requested the pens be made in the U.S., so an American company bought the rights from the Biro brothers.) 6 iii (Paragraph F tells us that an American man on holiday in Argentina saw the pens and copied them back in the U.S.) The following headings are incorrect: i (Although fountain pens are mentioned in the text none of the paragraphs tells us that they are no longer used = are history.) ii (The Biro brothers were never very famous.) v (Paragraph E tells us that the United States Department of War actually helped the progress of the Biro pen.)

Questions 7-9: multiple choice

Test tip: Read all the questions and options and underline or highlight any important information or key words that you need to find in the passage. Use the questions to locate the relevant part of the reading passage. If you cannot find an answer, just move on to the next one and come back to this one later.

7 D (Depending on the climate or air temperature, sometimes the pens would do both i.e. leak and clog. A is incorrect: the pens were never manufactured; B is incorrect: there is no mention of the manufacturing technology; C is incorrect: the first pen was designed for use on leather - we are not told that it could not write on paper.) 8 A (The first Biro pen, like the designs that had gone before it, relied on gravity for the ink to flow to the ball bearing at the tip. B is incorrect: the second pen was based on capillary action, not the first; C is incorrect: the pen did not work with heavy ink; D is incorrect: the pen only worked when held upright.) 9 C (The Biro brothers had failed to secure a U.S. patent on their invention. A is incorrect: it was Loud's patent that had expired, not the Biro brothers' patent; B is incorrect: we know that a patent gave the sole rights to manufacture; D is incorrect: there is no mention of Reynolds having any contact with the Biro brothers, and they sold the permission to Eversharp.)

Questions 10-12: short-answer questions

Test tip: Scan the text for the information you need. It is important to write only the key words and take note of the word limit (here you are told to write no more than two words and/or a number).

Questions 1-5: sentence completion

Test tip: Sentence completion with a box of possible answers is similar to matching questions. Scan the passage for the key words in the questions and underline or highlight them. Then carefully read the information close to those words and try to match it to the ideas in the options (A-F). Remember there are more options than you need to use. Some of the extra options may not be mentioned at all, or may be the opposite of the information in the passage.

Questions 6-9: classification

Test tip: Underline or highlight the key words in the reading passage (e.g. academic, vocational). Carefully read the information nearby and try to match the information in the passage to the facts in the questions (6–9). Remember the words in the questions will not always match the words in the passage exactly. Here you need to decide whether these questions apply to only one type of course or to both.

6 C (Further education colleges offer academic courses and work-related courses) 7 B (For a career in plumbing, a vocational course is essential.) 8 A (You might prefer an academic course if you like researching, analysing and presenting arguments.) 9 B (A vocational course is better if you like doing things with your hands and working manually.)

Model answer

Nowadays, most people worry about over-population and living in crowded cities. However, it is predicted that we will have the opposite problem by the year 2030 when one third of the population will be aged 65 or over and birth rates are predicted to decline. What effect will this have on our society?

By 2030 the percentage of the population aged 65 or older will have risen significantly, to more than 30%. This means that fewer people will be working, and therefore fewer people will be paying income tax. In the future it may be necessary for governments to increase the official retirement age to 70 or even older. When today's 30-year-olds are in their sixties it is unlikely that they will enjoy the relaxed lifestyle that today's older generation can expect when they give up work. Governments will therefore need to make sure that this older generation is healthy and fit enough to continue working.

However, I believe the biggest impact will be on the younger generation. In 2030 the younger generation will need to work much harder to support the large number of older people. If this trend continues then it is possible that our entire culture will change. For example, most marketing companies today try to target the younger generation with their products and advertisements. If the majority of the population is older then this will change and companies will begin to target the older generation instead.

So, what can be done now to prevent these problems? Firstly, I believe that governments of developed countries should find ways to encourage people to have larger families and increase the birth rate. Secondly, I believe that they should encourage migration from developing countries so that the problems of over-crowding can be solved.

Reading

Questions 1-6: matching

Test tip: Underline or highlight each of the company names listed (1-6) in the passage. Then read the relevant information for each company carefully and match it to one of the ideas in the box. Remember there will be more ideas in the box than you need and that the words in the box will not match the words in the passage exactly.

1 D (Corpe Nove ... has made a prototype shirt that shortens its sleeves when room temperature rises) 2 G (Nexia Biotechnologies ... scientists have caused a stir by manufacturing spider silk from the milk of genetically engineered goats) 3 C (Nano-Tex ... can make fabrics more durable, comfortable, wrinkle-free and stain-resistant) 4 A (Schoeller Textil ... uses nanotechnology to create fabrics that can store or release heat) 5 B (Created in 2003 by Quest International ... and Woolmark ... SPT is a new technique of embedding chemicals into fabric...Designers could incorporate signature scents into their collections ... Hay fever sufferers might find relief by pulling on a T-shirt = hay fever sufferers would find relief if their medication was put into the material) 6 F (Developed by Cargill Dow, it is the first man-made fibre derived from a 100% annually renewable resource = environmentally-friendly)

Options E and H are not used; E refers to a material that no one has made yet (see paragraph 6) and H refers to materials made by companies not on this list (see paragraphs 7-9).

Questions 7-14: summary completion

Test tip: Read through the summary carefully and try to predict what type of information you need to find in the passage (e.g. for question 7 you will need to find the name of a company). Pay careful attention to the word limit you are given and make sure you copy the words correctly.

7 Ingeo (Ingeo's impact on fashion will derive instead from its emphasis on using natural sustainable resources.) 8 soya bean (Soya bean fibre ... is a better absorber and ventilator than silk, and retains heat better than wool.) 9 weaving (Clunky earlier attempts involved attaching electronic components after the normal weaving process.) 10 electronic components 11 battery (powered by a small battery, Luminex ...) 12 costumes (Costumes made of the fabric wowed audiences at Verdi's Aida in Washington, DC, last year.) 13 fragile (this ultimate of ambitions has remained elusive in daily fashion, largely because electronic textiles capable of such wizardry are still too fragile to wear) 14 accessories / handbags (Accessories with this chameleon-like capacity – for instance, a handbag that alters its colour)

Questions 6-10: classification

Test tip: Listen carefully for the key words (e.g. treadmill, elliptical trainer, running/road) and match what you hear to the ideas in the questions. Remember the words in the questions will not match the words in the recording exactly.

6 C (Running on a treadmill results in forces that are roughly two and a half times the subject's body weight) 7 A (But using an elliptical machine gives forces that are roughly equal to the subject's weight) 8 A (This is much kinder on the body and makes the impact comparable to that of walking) 9 B (when reaching speeds above 14 kilometres per hour or so, running on firm ground uses up substantially more calories, and therefore leads to a greater reduction in weight, than running on a treadmill – or using an elliptical machine.) 10 B (running on firm ground creates a greater force on the body's joints than using machines)

Model answer

There is always going to be a discussion about the amount of money that is spent on space exploration. Scientific studies of the moon and the planets may provide information that is useful for us on earth. However, some people believe this cannot justify the huge amount of money spent on space research when there is a greater need for it here.

In the past, different countries used space exploration to compete with each other. For example, the US and the USSR raced each other to see who could put a man on the moon first. It would have been much easier and cheaper if they had pooled resources and information, and made a joint expedition into space. Fortunately, nowadays this is happening more and more, and thus less money overall is being wasted.

Nevertheless, some critics believe that all money given to space exploration is wasted. They argue that if the millions of dollars spent on space research were put into health and education programmes around the world, many lives would be significantly improved. It is certainly likely that if this money were invested in crop development in different parts of the world, we could save many more lives in countries where people do not have enough food. It is very difficult to argue against these criticisms.

In my opinion, we need a balance between how much money is spent on space exploration and how much money is invested into solving problems here on earth. With continued co-operation between nations over space travel more will be achieved for less money. This should leave more money to be spent on problems at home.

Reading

Questions 1-8: multiple matching

Test tip: Read the questions (1-8) carefully to identify the kind of information you need to find; simply scanning the text for a key word is not enough. Remember the words in the questions will not always match the words in the passage exactly.

1 A (and an outdoor theatre hosts dance and drama performances on weekends) 2 B (displays rare specimens of animals, ores, and species of insects ... shellfish, insects, butterflies and birds) 3 E (This is the sole museum in Korea dedicated to sports = the only one) 4 C (Audio guides, touch screens, and video rooms all help to bring the ancient world alive here) 5 D (this museum is located on the former site of Kyonghee-gung palace) 6 A (Recently, a time capsule containing 600 items representing the lifestyle of modern-day people of Seoul was buried to celebrate the city's 600th anniversary. In 2394, it will be opened!) 7 C (housing art and archaeological relics from Korean prehistory) 8 D (the museum offers art courses every Friday)

Question 9-14: identification of writer's views (Yes / No / Not Given)

Test tip: Yes means the ideas or opinions in the statement match the ideas or opinions in the passage. No means that the ideas or opinions in the statement are incorrect and do not match the ideas or opinions in the passage. Not Given means that these ideas are not mentioned in the passage.

9 No (... 49 companies that sell or make rucksacks; few has a negative meaning) 10 Yes (consider what you want your rucksack for) 11 Not given (We are only told that the writer has a backpack and that it is big enough: My current backpack is a Craghopper AD30 (30 litres) which is just big enough. There is no information about how comfortable it is.) 12 No (Today you can get quite technically advanced backpacks boasting excellent features: ... clever ventilation systems to keep your back cool) 13 Yes (choose a backpack that fits the length of your back. Being six feet I need a long, thin rucksack rather than a short, wider one.) 14 Yes (Last, and probably least, we have the look of the sack to consider)

Academic Writing Task 1

Test tip: Make sure you read all of the information provided very carefully. Look at the statistical information you are given and choose the most important features. Look for data which is the same or similar and features which show important differences or changes.

Model answer

The chart provides a summary of the average number of hours married men and women work every day both inside and outside of the home. In both age groups shown, the total number of hours worked by married women is greater than the total number of hours worked by men. Whilst women aged 45 to 64 may work fewer hours inside the home, they work the greatest number of hours per day due to the extra hours of paid work that they do. Men aged 25 to 44 spend only slightly more time working outside of the home than men aged 45 to 64, but this figure is significantly higher than the number of hours of paid work that women of the same age do.

Women in the 25 to 44 age group work almost as many hours inside the home as outside, and there is only a slight difference in the 45 to 64 age group. However, men work on average three times longer outside of the home than inside.

The location was also very good with lots to do nearby. There are lots of Minoan sites to visit. It's a lovely island with beautiful beaches. We spent our time sightseeing, lying on the beach and walking. Actually, it was the walking that I liked best. We did one amazing walk through the Samarian Gorge. It took all day, but was well worth it. We saw a snake curled up on a rock. And lots of lizards and birds. We got really hot and were very tired when we arrived at the beach at the end of the long walk. It was great to see the sea sparkling in the sun. We ran into the water to cool down. It was the best holiday ever. (> B1-B3)

Reading

Questions 1-5: multiple choice

Test tip: Read all the questions and options and underline or highlight any important information or key words that you need to find in the passage. Use the questions to locate the relevant part of the reading passage. If you cannot find an answer, just move on to the next one and come back to this one later.

1 D (the more paper qualifications you hold and the higher your grades, the less able you are to cope with problems of everyday life and the lower your score in practical intelligence) 2 C (Deficit refers back to the final idea mentioned in paragraph 3: some high scorers failed to achieve in real life what was predicted by their tests)

3 D (Instead of asking what intelligence was and investigating whether it predicted success in life, Professor Sternberg asked what distinguished people who were thriving from those that were not.)

4 C (high achievers are often unable to articulate or define what they know)

5 A (Training new or less capable employees to hecome more practically intelligent will involve learning from the genuinely practically intelligent rather than from training manuals or courses)

Questions 6-12: classification

Test tip: Underline or highlight the key words in the reading passage (e.g. IQ, EQ, practical intelligence). Carefully read the information nearby and try to match the information in the passage to the facts in the questions (6-12). Remember the words in the questions will not always match the words in the passage exactly. 6 C (most older adults contend that their ability to solve practical problems increases over the years) 7 B (EQ includes the abilities to ... understand and empathize with others) 8 C (practical intelligence is scored by answers to real-life dilemmas) 9 A (IQ as a concept is more than 100 years old; the text also tells us that the EQ and practical intelligence tests were devised after the IQ test) 10 C (the best way to reach practical intelligence is to ask successful people to relate examples of crucial incidents at work where they solved problems demonstrating skills they had learnt while doing their jobs) 11 B (EQ includes the abilities to ... regulate moods and keep distress from swamping the ability to think) 12 C (in practical intelligence tests - as in real life - there are several different solutions to the problem)

- 4 Almost every family has a television these days, and many children watch a whole range of programmes every day. Some people believe that television is can be harmful to children, saying that it influences may/can influence behaviour in a negative way.

There are a lot of programmes on television that are not educational and that contain violence and bad language. However, watching violence on television encourages can/may encourage violent behaviour in children. This is may be true in cases of children who have already exhibited violent tendencies, but it isn't can't be true of all children, otherwise we would have an epidemic of child crime. It is also argued that bad language on television encourages can/may encourage the same in children.

However, overall I believe that restricting the viewing of children to mainly educational programmes shown at a time of day when there is no violence or bad language will overcome may overcome any risks of television being a bad influence. (> B1-B4)

Reading

Questions 1-6: multiple matching

Test tip: Read the questions (1-6) carefully to identify the kind of information you need to find; simply scanning the text for a key word is not enough (e.g. bicycles are mentioned several times in the passage but question 3 asks you to find information about keeping a bicycle secure). Remember the words in the questions will not always match the words in the passage exactly.

1 D (In the case of a pupil being absent from school, please telephone on the first day in all instances) 2 F (If a pupil appears to be doing too little work, parents should contact the form teacher at once.) 3 J (Any bicycles brought onto school grounds should be clearly labelled with the owner's name and must be left locked in the bicycle sheds provided.) 4 C (The school stongly disapproves of pupils taking paid employment.) 5 G (Homework can be excused only after the receipt and approval by the teacher concerned of a letter from a parent setting out the reasons.) 6 H (During the holidays the school and its grounds are out-of-bounds for all pupils, unless accompanied by a teacher.)

Questions 7-13: identification of information in the text (True / False / Not Given)

Test tip: True means the ideas or opinions in the statement match the ideas or opinions in the passage. False means that the ideas or opinions in the statement are incorrect and do not match the ideas or opinions in the passage. Not Given means that these ideas are not mentioned in the passage.

7 False (the material you cover is the same as in the courses offered on campus) 8 Not given (There is no information about how study materials will be delivered. Although there is a shipping and handling fee, we do not know if this relates to posting course materials, and some materials may be delivered online.) 9 False (All Independent Study students must purchase a Study Guide) 10 False (This fee entitles a student to free replacement copies of end-of-course documentation for life.) 11 False (A course can be finished in a minimum of two weeks per module) 12 True (... and must be finished in a maximum of four weeks) 13 True (Modules cannot always be completed in the minimum amount of time.)

Questions 4-8: flowchart completion

Test tip: Completing a flowchart is similar to completing notes. Read through the flowchart carefully before you listen and try to predict what type of information you need to hear (e.g. for questions 4 and 5 you need to listen for a type of material). Pay careful attention to the word limit and check your spelling at the end.

Reading

Questions 1-6: identification of information in the text (True / False / Not Given)

Test tip: True means the ideas or opinions in the statement match the ideas or opinions in the passage. False means that the ideas or opinions in the statement are incorrect and do not match the ideas or opinions in the passage. Not Given means that these ideas are not mentioned in the passage.

1 True (understanding how consumers make decisions and the crucial role of packaging in this process, has been a neglected area of research so far) 2 True ('heuristic processing' ... is based on very simple rules: ... choose what a trusted source suggests) 3 False ('heuristic processing' ... requires comparatively little effort ... 'systematic processing' involves much deeper levels of thought ... This form of thinking, which is both analytical and conscious, involves much more mental effort.) 4 Not given (the text does not give us any information about who developed this concept) 5 True ('systematic processing' involves ... taking account of the product information, including its price, its perceived quality and so on) 6 False (Under heuristic processing, for example, consumers may simply need to be able to distinguish the pack from those of competitors.)

Questions 7-8: multiple choice

Test tip: Read all the questions and options and underline or highlight any important information or key words that you need to find in the passage. Use the questions to locate the relevant part of the reading passage. If you cannot find an answer, just move on to the next one and come back to this one later.

7 D (testing the effectiveness of your packaging can be ineffective if the methods you are employing concern one form of thinking ... but your consumers are purchasing in the other mode) 8 A (getting consumers to change brands may involve developing packaging that includes information that does stimulate systematic processing)

Questions 9-13: summary completion

Test tip: Notice that the summary has a title; this helps you to locate the part of the text being summarized. Read through the information in the summary carefully and try to predict what type of information you need to find in the passage. Pay careful attention to the word limit and make sure you copy the words correctly.

9 advantages / characteristics (A crucial role of packaging in this situation is to communicate the characteristics of the product, highlighting its advantages over possible competitors.) 10 situation (people only engage in effort-demanding systematic processing when the situation justifies it) 11 information (people have an upper limit to the amount of information they can absorb. If we present too much, therefore, they will become confused. This, in turn, is likely to lead them to disengage and choose something else.) 12 ingredients (will not be able to deal with things they do not already understand, the ingredients of food products, for example) 13 simple (Our research has differentiated between people with a high need for thinking – who routinely engage in analytical thinking – and those low in the need for cognition, who prefer to use very simple forms of thinking.)

Reading

Questions 1-3: multiple choice

Test tip: Read all the questions and options and underline or highlight any important information or key words that you need to find in the passage. Use the questions to locate the relevant part of the reading passage. If you cannot find an answer, just move on to the next one and come back to this one later.

1 C (its sweet white buds hang from the trunk and along a few fat branches) 2 B (using temporary plantings of banana to shade the cacao while it's young) 3 A (In the United States, for example, imported cacao is the linchpin of an $8.6 billion domestic chocolate industry that in turn supports the nation's dairy and nut industries.)

Questions 4-9: locating information

Test tip: Scan the passage for relevant information, and then check that it matches the question exactly (e.g. for question 4 you need to find a list of countries or places, not just one). Remember that the words in the passage may paraphrase the words in the questions.

4 E (from South America and the Caribbean to West Africa, east Asia, and New Guinea and Vanuatu in the Pacific) 5 H (One such disease, witches broom, devastated the cacao plantations in the Bahia region of Brazil) 6 C (which they frothed up with water and spices to make bracing concoctions) 7 D (In the last 200 years the bean has been thoroughly democratized – transformed from an elite drink into ubiquitous candy bars, cocoa powders and confections. Today chocolate is becoming popular with new markets opening up in Eastern Europe and Asia.) 8 F (groves like this may produce annual yields of 50 to 60 pods per tree for 25 to 30 years) 9 C (In 1753, the Swedish botanist Carolus Linnaeus gave the cacao tree genus the name Theobroma)

Questions 10-13: notes completion

Test tip: Read through the notes carefully and try to predict what type of information you need to find in the passage (e.g. for question 12 you need to identify a farming method). Pay careful attention to the word limit and make sure you copy the words correctly.

10 disease (try to address this problem by establishing disease resistant plants) 11 (local) middlemen (Most are at the mercy of local middlemen who buy the beans then sell them for a much higher price to the chocolate manufacturers. If the situation is to improve for farmers, these people need to be removed from the process.)

12 sustainable (ensure that sustainable farming practices are used)

13 profits (Typically, farmers who grow cacao get a pittance for their beans compared with the profits reaped by the rest of the chocolate business ... They also need to empower the farmers by guaranteeing them a higher price for their beans so that they will be encouraged to grow beans and can maintain their way of life.)

Reading

Questions 1-8: classification

Test tip: Underline or highlight the key words in the reading passage (e.g. giant panda, spectacled bear). Carefully read the information nearby and try to match the information in the passage to the facts in the questions (1–8). Remember the words in the questions will not always match the words in the passage exactly. Here you need to decide whether these facts apply to only one animal or to both.

1 A (the giant panda has evolved a sixth digit) 2 B (The spectacled bear is a more frequent climber ... They also construct tree nests to act as a bed.) 3 C (Both are survivors of an ancient lineage dating back 18 million years) 4 B (Spectacled bears are highly adaptable and are found in a wide range of habitats including rainforest, dry forest and coastal scrub desert.) 5 A (They (giant pandas) also both have a distinctive cry which they use to communicate with others in their group. Here the giant panda is being compared to the red panda.) 6 C (They (giant pandas) feed mainly on the ground but are capable of climbing trees as well. The spectacled bear is a more frequent climber) 7 C (the giant panda supplements its diet with meat which it scavenges. Spectacled bears eat carrion, too, and some have been known to kill small calves) 8 A (the red panda, a member of the raccoon family ... The giant panda shares many physical characteristics with the red panda)

Questions 9-13: sentence completion

Test tip: First identify the type of information you need to find (e.g. for question 1 you need to find out why a giant panda cats constantly). It may help to turn the sentences into questions (e.g. what do spectacled bears build to help them reach their food?) Make sure you stick to the word limit.

9 carnivore (This is rather strange given that its physiology is typical of a carnivore) 10 digest (A panda manages to digest only about 17% of the bumboo it eats) 11 hibernate (Unable to store fat effectively, it continues eating in the bitterly cold winter, at a time when many other bears hibernate.) 12 (tree) nests / platforms / a (tree) nest / a platform (They also construct tree nests to act as a bed as well as a platform to feed from fruit-laden branches.) 13 eye patches ('In pandas, a stare is a threat,' Schaller says. The eye patches enlarge the panda's small, dark eyes tenfold, making the stare more powerful.')

Listening

Questions 1-2: multiple choice

Test tip: Read all the questions carefully before you listen.

Underline or highlight any key information or words that you need to listen for (e.g. How far away is the nearest big town to Greenville?)

Use the questions to help you find your way through the listening text. If you miss an answer, just move on to the next one.

1 C (but emergency services have to drive 500 kilometres to reach us from the closest large town) 2 B (thanks to the arrival of Doctor Jones earlier this year, we no longer have to drive so far if anyone gets sick)

Questions 3-10: notes completion

Test tip: Read through the notes carefully before you listen and try to predict what type of information you need to hear (e.g. for question 6 you will need to listen for a measurement, or for question 10 you will need to listen for a month or date). Pay careful attention to the word limit and check your spelling at the end. 3 contact / call / telephone (Well, immediately after the storm has passed, the first thing you need to do is call the national weather station.) 4 report card (After that you simply have to complete what they call a report card) 5 (local) (news)paper (keep an eye out for any reports in the local newspaper of storms or storm damage. Reading

Questions 1-4: sentence completion

Test tip: First identify the type of information you need to find (e.g. for question 1 you need to find a disease or health problem). It may help to turn the sentences into questions (e.g. what is the name of the process that helps keep plants in good condition?) Make sure you stick to the word limit.

1 heart disease (Recognised as the type of fatty acid most able to protect against heart disease) 2 drought (a project that aims to develop more drought-tolerant sunflowers) 3 transpiration (Transpiration is the mechanism by which plants lose water through their leaves. This system is thought to facilitate the passage of minerals through the plant and is vital for healthy plants.) 4 wind (speed), humidity (the research team discovered that its initial approach did not cater for changes in wind speed ... The team therefore needed a technique to measure temperature continuously that would allow it to examine the effects of other variables such as humidity)

Questions 5-12: locating information

Test tip: Scan the passage for relevant information, and then check that it matches the question exactly (e.g. for question 7 you need to find a mention of two processes used by plants, or for question 11 you need to look for a number). Remember that the words in the passage may paraphrase the words in the questions.

5 H (The sunflower canopy had to be complete, with no visible soil, so that the thermometers would only measure the temperature of the plants and not the surrounding environment.)

6 F (The robot runs on an oblong track around the experimental plot and the thermometers operate on euch side of the track.)

7 C (Plants undergo photosynthesis to produce energy in the form of sugar. This involves allowing carbon dioxide to enter the leaves through pores called stomata. Transpiration is the mechanism by which plants lose water through their leaves.)

8 I (The team and their robot have already made a major breakthrough in the Australian wheat industry with Drysdale Wheat) 9 G (If the skies darken due to rain, heavy cloud cover or sunset, the robot makes its way back to the garage to wait.) 10 B (a robot developed by the Australian National University's Research School of Biological Sciences) 11 H (Eight varieties of sunflower were examined.) 12 D (by measuring the temperature of the leaves, scientists can determine how much water is being lost through transpiration.)

Academic Writing Task 2

Test tip: Make sure that you read all parts of the question carefully and address each point made. Organize your thoughts and ideas well. Do not try to memorize essays. Make sure you have at least 40 minutes to spend on this task and try to leave time at the end to check your spelling.

Model answer

Nowadays most children regularly play games on a computer or on their television. These games have become more violent over the past few years. In fact, many parents worry about this and the effect these games are having on their children. Some are concerned that playing violent games might encourage them to become aggressive in real life. What we need to establish is whether or not this is actually true.

First, it may help to look back at the games that children used to play many years ago before the invention of computers. In those days children would probably have played popular board games such as Monopoly or chess, or they may have played card games or some type of outdoor sport. These sports or games would probably only have encouraged children to become more competitive rather than violent.

However, throughout history children have always played fighting games with toy or pretend weapons. Even now many parents will buy a toy gun or sword for their child. Why do we never read reports in the media about the impact plastic weapons could have on children? Perhaps this is because the link between play fighting and actual fighting is not very strong.

In conclusion, the way children play games has changed with the times but the ideas behind those games have actually changed very little. Just as playing at soldiers did not increase violence in the past, I believe that playing computer games will not lead to an increase in violence in the future. I think that if we looked more closely at life in our major cities then we would find there are many other possible causes for the increase in crime and violence.

Academic Writing Task 1

Test tip: Study the diagram carefully to identify all of the key stages and make sure that you don't miss any important information out of your description. You may need to change the words on the diagram (e.g. to change verbs to nouns) to make them fit grammatically into your sentences.

Model answer

The diagram shows how fresh fruit is canned. First the fruit is picked from trees by hand. It is then transported to the cannery by large trucks. At the cannery the fruit is washed and quality checked, and any poor quality fruit is rejected. The good quality fruit is put into cold storage. When it is ready for canning the fruit is weighed and graded. The grading ensures that fruit of a similar size is kept together. After this the fruit is peeled and the cores are removed. It is then sliced into the required sizes and put into cans. Juice or syrup is also added to the cans. Once the cans have been filled they are sealed and cooked over heat to ensure that the cans are sterilized. When the cans are cool, a label is attached and they are placed into storage. The canned fruit is now ready to be despatched to supermarkets and sold.

Reading

Questions 1-3: multiple choice

Test tip: Read all the questions and options and underline or highlight any important information or key words that you need to find in the passage. Use the questions to locate the relevant part of the reading passage. If you cannot find an answer, just move on to the next one and come back to this one later.

1 B (In that moment, Rita and Jake stumbled across an interesting set of differences between older and younger minds.) 2 D (In the end, if 'better' is defined as completing a clean paragraph, both people may end up taking the same amount of time.) 3 A (subjects were told to look at a screen, wait for an arrow that pointed in a certain direction to appear, and then use a mouse to click on the arrow as soon as it appeared on the screen. The other arrows were used to distract the subjects.)

Questions 4-7: sentence completion

Test tip: Sentence completion with a box of possible answers is similar to matching questions. Scan the passage for the key names or words in the questions and underline or highlight them. Then carefully read the information close to those words and try to match it to the ideas in the options (A-F). Remember there are more options than you need to use. Some of the extra options may not be mentioned at all, or may be the opposite of the information in the passage.

4 E (Popular psychology says that as people age their brains 'slow down'.) 5 C (scientists at the University of Michigan for example, have shown that ... seniors exploit the left and right side of the brain more extensively than men and women who are decades younger) 6 B (Michael Falkenstein ... found that when elders were presented with new computer exercises they paused longer before reacting and took longer to complete the tasks, yet they made 50% fewer errors)

7 D (Neurologists at Northwest University came to this conclusion after analyzing 50 people ... Darren Gleitman, who headed the study, concluded that older brains solved the problems just as effectively but by different means.)

Questions 8-12: summary completion

Test tip: Read through the information in the summary carefully and try to predict what type of information you need to find in the passage. Pay careful attention to the word limit and make sure you copy the words correctly.

8 minds (Just as people's bodies age at different rates, so do their minds.) 9 memories (As adults advance in age, the perception of sights, sounds and smells takes a bit longer, and ... 4 There are many reasons why people follow a vegetarian diet. Firstly, it is because they believe that it is wrong to kill animals. This may be is due to religious beliefs, or it could be is their own personal philosophy.

It is possible that another motivation for stopping eating meat is health. According to research, the high fibre content of a vegetarian diet seems to reduces the likelihood of suffering from some bowel problems and heart disease. In addition, fewer vegetarians than meat-eaters are overweight. A further advantage is that a vegetarian diet can be is cheaper than eating meat.

Nevertheless, it is clear that there are some disadvantages. Vegetarians can lack a lot of the vitamins and minerals that are present in meat, such as iron or vitamin B12, or calcium if you do not include dairy products in your diet. There is also the social problem of not being able to eat food available at parties and restaurants.

Overall, however in terms of health a vegetarian is more likely to be healthy than a non-vegetarian and personally I feel that the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. (> B1-B4)

Model answer

Nowadays, modern technology has totally changed our approach to study. In many countries students no longer have to copy notes by hand from the blackboard; instead the teacher gives them a photocopy. Rather than messy ink and pen, students present a typed-up copy of their assignments. Their computer even checks their spelling as they go. In fact, some people believe that modern technology does a lot of our thinking for us and, as a result, we are losing our ability to think for ourselves.

In my opinion, spelling skills have definitely deteriorated in recent years. So many young people use mobile phones to send text messages where speed and conciseness are more important than spelling or grammar. Some teachers complain that these students take the same attitude towards their written assignments.

On the other hand, typed assignments are much easier to read and are much neater. Frankly, I find some notes or texts which are handwritten almost impossible to read. Doctors, for example, have often had a reputation for illegible handwriting, which could lead to disastrous medical mistakes. Perhaps it is time we focused not on handwriting but on presenting information as accurately as possible. One advantage of computers is that access to the Internet has opened up a world of learning to us. We no longer have to wait for a book that has already been borrowed from the library before we can do our research. In fact, the Internet can clearly be used to research information in the same way as a library but more conveniently. On the whole, rather than holding students back, I believe modern technology has actually improved standards of education considerably.

Test tip: Spend time studying the information first. The title given may help you with your first sentence, but try to use different words and don't just copy words from the question paper. Try to identify key areas in the data (e.g. where the data changes considerably or where there is no change over a period of time). Do not miss out any important details in your description and make sure you stick to the time limit so that you leave enough time to answer Task 2.

Model answer

The total number of all species of wild birds in the UK has been relatively stable over the last two decades, although there were significant drops in numbers between 1977 and 1979 and again in 1982 and 1986. Since 1994 there has been an improvement in numbers of all species, although the graph shows a slight decrease in 2000.

In contrast, the population of farmland birds has suffered a severe decline, particularly in 1978 when numbers fell dramatically. The rate of decline in the population appears to have slowed and it has remained relatively stable since 2000.

There was also a fall in the number of woodland birds of around 30% between 1974 and 1992. The population increased slightly in 2000 but it had dropped again by 2004.

It is only coastal species that have seen a steady increase in population over this period. Their numbers dropped slightly in 1995 and again in 2003 but the overall trend has been a positive one.

Interviewer: Excuse me. I'm conducting a survey on how people spend their free time. Do you mind if I ask you a few questions?

Pete: Oh, er, OK. I'm just waiting for my friends they're always late, so I should have a few minutes!

Interviewer: Right, now, can I have your name?

Pete: It's Peter, Peter Harley - H A R I. E Y.

Interviewer: And do you work or are you a student, Peter?

Pete: Well, both actually. I'm studying really hard for my exams this month – I'm doing maths at university – but I also help my parents out. They own a restaurant and I work there as a waiter in the evenings, so I don't get a lot of free time during the week.

Interviewer: It sounds as if you're very busy.

Pete: Yes, I am, and my mum's always saying I don't help enough in the restaurant! But I do manage to find some free time most days.

Interviewer: Great. Now, can you have a look at this list and tell me whether you do any of these things and if so, how often?

Pete: Sure. OK, well, I love music and I'm learning to play the piano. I get up really early and practise for an hour or so just about every day. I also play the guitar in a band with some other friends. We used to practise together at least three times a week but these days we only manage to meet about once every two weeks.

Interviewer: What about the next thing on the list:

computer games? I assume you're too busy to play them.

Pete: Well, I used to play them all the time but now

I'm too busy studying and I don't miss them at all!

Interviewer: And do you use a computer for other things?

Pete: Luse the Internet just about every day for my e: I use the Internet just about every day for my studies, and I also use it to keep in touch with my friends and family. My cousin is living in Thailand at the moment and he sends me regular emails to let me know how much fun he's having! He's always visiting exciting places.

Interviewer: Yes, the Internet is making it much easier for people to stay in touch with each other. Now, how about team sport?

Pete: Actually, I joined the local football team when I was at school and I still play once a month provided I can get to training. I much prefer playing football to watching it on TV, though I do occasionally watch a match if there's a big final or something.

Interviewer: What about going to watch live matches?

Pete: I'd love to be able to afford to go every week because I support my local team, but students don't generally have much money, you know! I can't remember the last time I went to a live match. Oh, sorry, I can see my friends - I have to go now.

Interviewer: Thank you for your time.

Man: Westfield Sports Centre, can I help you?

Woman: Yes, I hope so. I've recently moved to the area and I want to do some sports activities.

Man: Well, we have excellent facilities, including a new gymnasium and several tennis courts. Our tennis team are always looking for new people.

Woman: Oh, I was never any good at gymnastics and I don't think I've got the time to put into learning tennis. No, I'm more interested in swimming, and I'd also like to take a few yoga classes if I can.

Man: OK, well, we have three swimming pools: an Olympic size 50 metre pool and a 25 metre pool, which are both outdoors, and a heated indoor pool, which is just 15 metres long but is very popular with our members in the winter! Woman: I bet it is! Do members have to pay to use the pools?

Man: Well, members don't pay for the pools if they just want to swim laps on their own. We even offer complimentary classes for beginners, but we do charge a small fee if you want to take part in the advanced training sessions, and there's also a fee for our water-based keep-fit class.

Woman: Right. And would I need to book any of the facilities or can I just come whenever I want?

Man: We don't actually allow anyone to book the swimming lanes or the gym equipment, but for swimming lanes or the gym equipment, but for safety reasons we can only have a maximum of seven people in the sauna at any one time, so you do need to put your name on the list for that.

Woman: Fine. Now, I'd also really like to take a yoga class. Do you have any?

Yes. There are classes on Monday, Tuesday and Man:

Friday in the morning from ten till eleven, and then every Saturday and Sunday in the evening. Those classes are a bit longer, starting at six and finishing at seven thirty.

Right, I'll just make a note of that. So, does Woman:

that mean that if I enrol I can come on each of those days?

Man: No, each day is a different level, so you only come once a week.

Oh, I see. Well, I've been doing yoga for a little Woman:

> while now, but I am still finding it quite difficult. Which level do you think I should choose?

Man: Most people start at the lowest level, and then you can talk to the instructor about changing if you think it's too easy.

OK. How much are the classes? Woman: Man: They're £1.50 an hour for members.

Great. Now, I'd like to come in and look at the Woman:

facilities. Would someone be able to show me around?

Yes, no problem. Man: Woman: Who should I ask for?

Ask for me. My name is John Doherty - that's Man:

DOHERTY.

Woman: And should I just ask for you at the reception? Actually, my office is on a different level. Take Man:

the lift up to level one and you'll see my name on the door right in front of you.

Woman: Great. I'd like to come tomorrow if that's OK.

What time suits you?

Man: Well, I have appointments from nine to ten thirty, so could you make it eleven?

I'm sure that will be fine, but can I just take Woman:

your direct number in case something else crops up?

Man: That's a good idea - my number's 0117 965 478.

Great. I think that's everything, so I'll see you Woman:

tomorrow. Oh, my name's Alison Martin, by the way.

Man: Thanks, Alison. See you tomorrow.

Presenter: Today's guest is Bill Murphy, who worked for the police force for over 17 years until his retirement last week. Welcome to the show. Bill. You're going to tell us how to protect our homes, is that right?

Bill Murphy: Thank you, yes, that's right. As you say, I used to work for the police force and I must have seen hundreds of burglaries during that time. Unfortunately, burglary seems to be on the increase; the number of burglaries in our area rose by 25% last year. What's so frustrating is that it's possible to prevent many burglaries. For example, a few weeks ago a woman called to report a robbery at her house. It happened at five in the afternoon while she was watching the news on TV in a room at the back of the house. Her son was also at home:

he was doing his homework in his bedroom when the burglar came into the house. So, how did the burglar break in without anybody hearing him?

Well, this woman used to keep the front door Bill Murphy:

> locked at all times, but when her son got older he often went out to visit his friends after school, so she would leave the door unlocked whenever she was at home so he could come and go easily. The burglar simply walked in through the front door, which was unlocked, and no one heard a thing. So you see, you do need to be careful to lock your door at all times of the day.

Absolutely. And what did the burglar steal? Presenter: Bill Murphy:

On this occasion, the burglar came in through the front door, picked up the woman's handbag and while she was watching the TV, he emptied it out and stole her purse. The son didn't hear anything because he was listening to music and working on his computer upstairs. Then the burglar went into the front room, opened all the cupboards and took a valuable collection of CDs. But the surprising thing is that after that he went into the kitchen and stole the roast chicken the woman had cooked for dinner! So you see, it really is important to ...

Sue: Hi Carl. Have you written your assignment yet? Carl:

Hi Sue. No, I haven't, but I've been trying to get some ideas together.

Sue: What sorts of things have you been doing? Well, I've worked really hard for the last two Carl:

weeks and I've nearly finished all the books on the reading list. I've made quite a lot of notes but they're not very structured. What about you?

Sue:

I did the reading a few weeks ago, and I made notes on the most important things. I've written a rough plan this morning, and I was going to make a start on writing the assignment today but I've decided I need to read the most important parts of the books again before I do that. I'm actually finding it quite hard. It's the first time I've ever had to write such a long essay so I'm a bit nervous about it.

Carl:

Yes, it's the longest essay I've ever had to write as well. I find all the reading so difficult. I read five books last week, and they all said different things!

(Pause)

Sue:

I find the best approach is to read only the sections that you need in order to answer the question. You don't usually have to read the whole book. I've collected plenty of information for the assignment that way.

Carl:

That's good advice. I've been trying to read the whole of each book, and the more I read, the more confused I get. I probably wasted a lot of time last week.

Sue:

Oh, I'll tell you what other things I found really helpful. When I was in the library last week, I read those leaflets called 'How to get the best out of the library' and 'How to write assignments'. They really helped. Have you read them?

Carl:

No, I haven't even seen them. I'll have to get hold of a copy; they sound very useful. I really need some direction. I find I'm so tired at the moment. I've read six articles this week but I can barely remember what they said! In fact, I've been feeling tired since I started this course!

Sue:

Hmm, I know what you mean. I felt like that as well at the start until one of my tutors told me it was far more important to get enough rest than to stay up late studying. I've gone to bed early every night since then and I manage to concentrate for longer during the day, so in the end I do actually get more done. I went to bed at ten thirty last night and I feel great.

Carl:

Well, I've just got up and I'm already tired. I must try going to bed earlier – at least till I've done this assignment.

Sue:

Yeah, it should help.

Good morning and welcome to today's talk on famous composers. Today we're going to look at the remarkable career of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. Mozart was born in Salzburg on January 27, 1756, the last of seven children. However, when Mozart was born, five of his siblings had already died in infancy or early childhood. His only surviving sibling was his sister, Nannerl, who was five years older. Mozart's father, Leopold, was a composer and his grandfather had also been a musician. Times were hard and the family had been struggling for some time.

When she was eight, Nannerl began keyboard lessons with her father. Mozart's sister was extremely gifted at the keyboard and she had been making excellent progress when her brother, then aged three, demanded to be taught as well. In just 30 minutes Mozart mastered the piece of music, which his father had copied into Nannerl's notebook. Wolfgang's achievement was followed in rapid succession by others. By the time he was six, the little boy had written a composition of his own into the notebook. And by age seven, he had taught himself how to play the violin without ever having received a lesson.

When Leopold Mozart saw how extraordinary his son was, he decided not to waste Wolfgang's precocious talents and took him on a tour across Europe with his sister. At Linz, Wolfgang gave his first public concert. Among the audience were some important statesmen who were astonished and hurried on to Vienna to spread sensational reports of what they had seen. By the time he was 17, Mozart's reputation had already begun to spread through Europe and his family were richer than they had ever been before.

Amanda: Hi Tim, just ringing to see if you've got the details of the hockey team's trip for next month.

Tim: Hi Amanda. Yes, I went to the travel agency this morning. I've got the details right here in front of me.

Amanda: Oh, great. Well, why don't you tell me all about it and I'll pass on the information to the rest of the team.

Tim: Good, well, first of all we're flying to Scotland.

We'll have to get up really early because our flight leaves at six thirty in the morning. We're playing four matches there, which I know sounds like a lot but we'll also have three days free. So, we're going to hire a bus and then drive through the mountains and we'll probably stay in some sort of mountain lodge there.

Amanda: Sounds wonderful. I hope the weather's good.

Tim: Me too, but it'll probably rain every day.

Amanda: Still, not to worry - I'm sure we'll enjoy it whatever the weather. Where to after that?

Tim: From there we fly to Greece. We were > supposed to be playing five matches there but two have been cancelled, so it's only three now. Still, that means there's a bit of free time to do some tourist things as well, as we now have four days free altogether.

Amanda: Great. What about accommodation over there? Tim:

Well, it's more luxurious than last year's camping trip, so I think everyone will be happy with it. This time we're staying in a small hotel near the centre of Athens for a few days, and then we're going to get a boat to a couple of the islands, although we haven't decided which ones yet.

I'm sure we'll have good weather there, Amanda:

anyway, so lots of time for sunbathing on the beach.

Tim: Yes, I think it'll be extremely hot there.

Amanda: You're right - we'll probably end up wishing we were back in Scotland! Well, we're certainly going to have a varied trip.

Tim: Yes. In Scotland we're probably going to do lots > of walking and in Greece we're going to be lying on the beach. I imagine we'll even get a bit of a tan.

Amanda: I think it's going to be a great trip!

Tim: Ha! Just don't forget to concentrate on your game! Oh, and one more thing, don't forget that the manager is having a party just after we get back to celebrate the team's great results last season, and the best player on the tour will get a special trophy.

Amanda: Wow! Don't worry, I'll let everyone know.

Phil: Hey Janet, have you finished the report yet?

Sarah was asking about it.

Janet: I'm afraid not. I'm about to go to Rome for a conference and I won't be able to finish the report before I go.

Phil: Oh. When do you think it will be ready?

The conference only lasts three days, so I'm not in Rome for long - just the weekend. Then

I'll be working on the report all next week.

Phil: Can you do it before we have the departmental meeting at the end of the month?

Janet: Oh, I'll easily have finished it by next Friday.

I've got it in my diary.

Phil: That's great. I'll be seeing Sarah at lunch, so I'll tell her.

Ianet: Thanks.

Phil: Are you giving a talk at the conference? Janet: Yes, the same one I gave last month on plant > diversity and environmental changes. By the end of the year I will have given the same talk at six conferences! Luckily it's a different audience each time, but I'll soon be getting polite requests to do something different! The funny thing is I still get nervous every time before I give it.

Phil: Oh come on, I don't believe that.

Ianet: No, it's true. I'll be feeling really nervous when > I get to Rome. I won't be able to relax until I'm actually giving my talk. Don't you get nervous when you give talks at conferences?

Phil: Not really, although I always make sure I > prepare well. I always practise in front of a mirror. I look a bit of an idiot, but no one can see so I don't mind. I'm giving a talk in London next month and by the time I give the talk I'll have rehearsed it at least ten times. Practising like that makes me feel confident - you should try it.

Janet: That's a good idea. But even practice doesn't seem to help me.

Phil: Well, good luck, I'll be thinking of you in Rome. When are you leaving?

Janet: Well, I was going to leave this morning but > they cancelled my flight, so I'm on the evening flight. Actually, I'd better get a move on, as the train to the airport leaves in 20 minutes.

Sara: Alan! Will you help me write this advertisement for the spare room?

Alan: Yes, we've got so much space. It would be great to get some money to help with the rent.

Sara: Now, we need to make it sound inviting.

Alan: Well, the room might be on the small side but the windows are very big so the natural light is really nice. Few rooms have such good natural

Sara: Yeah, it's a great room for working in during the day, and it's also got a great view of the garden.

Alan: Exactly. What shall we say about the furniture? Sara: Well, it's not luxurious but it is very comfortable. The room has everything you need. Oh, except they will need to bring their own lamp; both of the lights in the ceiling are really old and not very bright.

Alan: That's true. But it has got a nice bed.

Sara: Yes, and it's got a great wardrobe, which has even got a few shelves for clothes as well. They will need to bring their own mirror if they want one, though.

Alan: Yes - there isn't one in the room at the moment. Now, there's no room for a bedside table but there is a good study desk in there.

Sara: Yes, I wouldn't mind a desk like that myself, actually. It's better than mine. It's got three drawers – mine hasn't got any at all.

Alan: Why don't you put it in your study then?
Sara: It's too big. There isn't much room in there.
Alan: I suppose not, because the desk has got shelves on top as well. They're really handy for putting books on. Now, what else?

Sara: What about the location? We could say it's close to transport. We're really lucky because we've got the bus and the train nearby.

Alan: That's true. And what shall we say about the rent? Shall we ask for £50 a week or is that too little?

little?

Sara: Well, let's say it includes electricity and any other household bills and make it £60. Our expenses are bound to go up with an extra person in the house.

Alan: Yes, you're right, I hadn't thought of that! Now, pass me the newspaper.

Sara: I thought you'd already read the news today?
Alan: Yes, I have, but there are lots of advertisements for accommodation and I want to look at them before we finish ours.

Good morning everyone. As part of the conference on environmental awareness I'd like to talk to you this morning about an exciting development in monitoring climate change: Europe's technological showpiece, Envisat. Envisat is a fully-equipped observation satellite and it is the largest, most technologically advanced, and most powerful one that the European Space Agency (the ESA) has ever created.

The satellite was launched in 2002 and is on the trail of climate change, delivering up-to-the-minute information about our changing environment. Seeing the earth from outer space highlights how tiny and fragile this planet of ours is. Envisat helps people to understand that and encourages us to protect our blue planet as our place of birth, and as the ancestral home where our children and grandchildren will live after us.

With its ten instrument systems Envisat is equipped with the best eyes possible and offers everything that scientists could wish for. This unique flying environment station follows in the footsteps of the successful remote sensing satellites ERS1 and ERS2, which were both launched in the 1990s.

Climate protection is a challenge for our entire society. The ESA contributes to such endeavours and has provided impressive scientific results in the field of atmosphere, ozone and climate monitoring, and more. The total cost of the Envisat programme is 2.3 billion euros over 15 years. Included in this sum is the development and construction of the instrument systems as well as the cost of the satellites, the launch and the operational costs. Each European citizen has therefore invested seven euros in the environment or about the cost of two cups of coffee per year. For that, every citizen will have access to precise information about changes in the environment including global warming, ozone depletion and climate change. This information is absolutely essential and long overdue as the basis for political decisions. The gas envelope around the earth is not determined by political boundaries and none of our countries is able to ignore the implications of global warming.

Hello everyone and welcome to today's talk about the current trends in health and fitness. Nowadays, it seems as though everyone in the wealthiest parts of the world is battling with their weight and as a consequence, more and more people are joining local gyms or buying home-exercise machines.

In fact, according to the International Health, Racquet and Sportsclub Association, membership in health clubs in America doubled from a little over 17 million in 1987 to more than 36 million in 2005. While the figures for Europe are harder to come by, evidence over the past decade suggests that health club membership has doubled there as well.

What few people nowadays realize is that the average person in the developed world is now burning 800 fewer calories a day than a generation ago. This means that even if people today ate no more than the previous generation, they would still be getting fatter. Unfortunately, instead of eating less than their parents did, as they should, many people consume a lot more.

So what exactly has brought about this change in fitness levels? Well, people in developed countries are not only eating more but are also doing less exercise. Increased technology has not helped. The car and other such machines designed to help reduce our work load are as much to blame as deep-fried fast food. On top of this, the changes in how and where we work have reduced the amount of daily calories people actually need. Such factors are taking their toll on our health, with health costs soaring.

And this is where exercise machines come in. Walking machines or treadmills and the like may not be the most efficient way of burning off those excess calories and boosting cardiovascular fitness but they are certainly the most common. According to the Sporting Goods Manufacturing Association International, some 45 million Americans used a treadmill in 2003. That's an amazing number of people and an awful lot of treadmills.

Having said that, an exercise machine that did not even exist a decade ago – the elliptical cross trainer – is fast replacing the traditional treadmill. As its name implies, the machine delivers an elliptical or swinging motion, with both the hands and feet tracing semi-circular patterns – the feet on two moving platforms rather than bicycle pedals, and the hands gripping handles that move but are not meant to support any weight, which is important as there is no seat. Since the machine was introduced there, the number of people using elliptical machines in America has tripled to more than 11 million a year.

We have been doing some tests to find out if these machines are actually any better than the previous machines or if they are just another passing trend. Dr John Porcari, a professor of exercise and sport science, believes that ellipticals are at least better than the previous exercisers, but no better than treadmills in terms of increasing cardiovascular fitness. In one set of tests, Dr Porcari measured the oxygen consumption, heart rate and calorific expenditure of 16 volunteers, and found that there was virtually no difference between elliptical machines and treadmills. But elliptical machines have a lower impact on the user than running, claim their manufacturers. True, says Dr Porcari, who measured the 'ground reaction forces' of the test subjects on the various machines. Running on a treadmill results in forces that are roughly two and a half times the subject's body weight. But using an elliptical machine gives forces that are roughly equal to the subject's weight. This is much kinder on the body and makes the impact comparable to that of walking. In that respect, ellipticals are superior.

However, those who do not want to shell out for fancy exercise machines will be heartened by the results of a seminal study in 1969 by Lewis Pugh, a British physiologist, which has been confirmed many times since. Dr Pugh found that, when reaching speeds above 14 kilometres per hour or so, running on firm ground uses up substantially more calories, and therefore leads to a greater reduction in weight, than running on a treadmill or using an elliptical machine. Dr Pugh attributed the difference to air resistance. Manufacturers of exercise machines point out, correctly, that running on firm ground creates a greater force on the body's joints than using machines, in particular the knees and ankles. But, what they don't say is that modern running shoes go a long way to reducing the impact of such forces. So, perhaps the best exercise of all is simply to leave the car at home, and run to the gym - and then right past it. After that, just keep going and going and going ...

Mrs Smith: Hello, you must be Chi Wen. I'm Mrs Smith, but my homestay students all call me Lucy.

Chi Wen: Oh, hello, Lucy. I'm very pleased to meet you. Mrs Smith: So, how long have you been in Australia, Chi Wen?

Chi Wen: Well, I only arrived last month and I'm still finding it all a bit strange, actually.

Mrs Smith: Oh, don't worry. I'm sure it won't take long to settle in. If you like, I can introduce you to a friend of mine, Yi Ling. She's a student from China who stayed with me last year. I know she's really enjoying herself here in Australia.

Chi Wen: Oh, that would be nice.

Mrs Smith: Now, I have had a lot of students staying with me over the years and I do have a few rules.

Chi Wen: Oh, of course.

Mrs Smith: First of all, my husband and I want everyone to feel at home so we treat everyone as if they were a member of our own family.

Chi Wen: That sounds lovely.

Mrs Smith: I cook and serve dinner for everyone at six.

We also make everyone speak English at dinner; it's really important to practise your

English as often as you can.

Chi Wen: I see, that's a very good idea. And what about other meals? Can I cook for myself?

Mrs Smith: Yes, everyone makes their own breakfast. I do the shopping, and I always make sure there is plenty of food in the fridge so you can prepare yourself a packed lunch to take to college if you like.

Chi Wen: Yes, I've noticed that in Australia you often eat sandwiches for lunch.

Mrs Smith: Well, we often eat lunch in a bit of a hurry, so sandwiches are very convenient. Now, do you have any other questions about the house rules?

Chi Wen: What about laundry? Can I use the washing machine?

Mrs Smith: Oh, yes. I expect everyone to wash and iron for themselves, although I can put a load of washing on if you need me to. I will give you clean bed sheets every week. I clean the kitchen and the living areas myself but I expect all my students to help out and clean their own rooms.

Chi Wen: I have one other question. I don't have a mobile phone here yet. Can I use yours to make a couple of local calls?

Mrs Smith: That shouldn't be a problem. Just let me know when you want to use it.

Good evening, everyone. As many of you know I often travel for my job as a rug buyer and this evening I've been asked to give a talk about travelling in Europe and Asia. I'll try to pass on some useful advice for those of you who are planning to travel there yourselves. At the end of my talk, I'll be happy to answer questions.

My first piece of advice is to work hard on your research before you go if you want to make your trip enjoyable and rewarding. I plan my trips very carefully for at least three months before I leave, reading about the places I am going to visit on the Internet and in books.

I had a very memorable trip recently, starting out in Morocco. The city of Marrakech is an absolutely amazing place to visit and well worth adding to your itinerary. Try to stay near the old part of the city. There are so many historical buildings and so much to see. The mosques in particular are very beautiful.

After leaving Morocco I took a long tiring boat ride to Turkey. It was well worth the trip, especially if you like local crafts. I bought a beautiful Turkish carpet in one of the villages while I was there. The man that sold it to me spoke very good English and he told me all about the different styles of carpet. I was fascinated to see the extraordinary range of patterns.

I left the small mountain villages of Turkey to travel to the huge, crowded cities of India. India is a fascinating country, and I have always enjoyed my visits there. Everywhere you go the people are very welcoming and friendly towards visitors. They always seem pleased to see you. It's easy to see why India is such a popular destination for travellers.

One of the highlights for me on this visit was the Gujarati Textile Museum. It was the first time I had been there. If you are interested in textiles, this museum is really impressive, with lots of information and some absolutely stunning examples of Indian silk embroidery, and other fabrics.

If you're interested in seeing wildlife I recommend travelling in the more remote areas of the country. I was amazed at the variety of wonderful animals which I saw on my trip and the most incredible colourful birds with vivid blue and green feathers. I also saw several poisonous spiders, although I have to say that I found the insects rather frightening!

The Olympics is probably the most exciting event in the sports calendar. It's one of the few opportunities we get to see some of the best athletes in the world competing against each other. And amazingly, each year they seem to be getting better and better. So, you might imagine that the Masters Games, which is for athletes aged 30 and over, would be less exciting to watch. Well, this may not be true for long because recent studies have shown that older athletes are getter faster and fitter.

Now, it's true they're not as fast as their younger counterparts, and probably younger runners will always be faster than older runners. However, runners aged 50 and over are actually speeding up more rapidly than younger people. The researchers analysed the finishing times of 415,000 runners in the New York marathon between 1983 and 1999 and discovered that finishers from the older group showed the greatest increases in speed. Interestingly, women aged 60 to 68 improved the most markedly, running on average four minutes faster each year. Men of the same age ran just over one minute faster than previously.

Not only that, a second study proved that older athletes can achieve the same degree of physical improvement as those in their twenties and thirties. In other words, they are just as likely to achieve their peak fitness as younger athletes.

25 years ago few 60-year-old men and even fewer women would have considered it possible to complete a marathon let alone set record running times. The researchers concluded that people grow weaker not simply because of age, but because they don't keep as active as they did when they were younger. It would seem that the longer athletes keep competing, the greater their chances of setting new records are.

Good morning, everyone. What you can see on the screen behind me is Sydney Harbour and it may surprise you to learn that this horrible rubbish lying at the bottom of the harbour was actually put there intentionally as part of a conservation project! Now, the idea of putting rubbish into the harbour instead of cleaning it out may seem absurd to you, but allow me to explain. Two years ago I was involved in a study with the University of Sydney. We were asked to try to calculate the number of fish and different species living in Sydney harbour. During this study, the divers noticed that in the areas cleared of rubbish very little life remained, whereas the old cars and other debris lying on the sea floor actually provided a rich habitat for an abundance of creatures including up to twenty species of fish, crabs and seahorses and amazing plants such as sea tulips with bright red bodies.

We realized that if you remove all of the rubbish contained in the harbour then you also take away the homes of the creatures living there. Earlier this year, with the help of the Sydney Harbour Federation Trust, we reached a decision to expand our study and start putting rubbish back into particular areas of the harbour.

So far we have used things like old car tyres and rope, but we have a plan to carry out a more detailed study to test out a variety of artificial structures and see whether the sea creatures in the harbour find these as attractive a home as the rubble of the past. We'll also catalogue the creatures living there and the data collected from the sites will be analysed to establish whether these artificial reefs have in fact helped to increase the volume of fish in the harbour.

In the meantime, if you have any suggestions of other possible sites with submerged rubbish that would be suitable for our research, please speak to me after the lecture.

Deborah: Hi Joe.

Toe:

loe: Hello Deborah. Listen, have you had much experience dealing with amnesia?

Deborah: Actually, yes I have. It was a patient I had last year when I was working in a hospital in Canada.

Can you remember much about it? Joe:

Deborah: Well, a man was brought to us with some facial and head injuries and he couldn't remember who he was, where he lived or how he came to be in Canada.

Joe: Were there any clues at all?

Deborah: Well, he spoke with a strong British accent so > the police realized he couldn't be Canadian. They took him to a language expert who said that he could have come from Yorkshire, in England. The police also managed to find out that he could speak French and Italian. But he couldn't remember his name, address, age, or anything. Can you imagine what it must be like to have your whole life lost like that?

Yes, it must be awful. But do you think he was genuine? He might have been trying to run away from his past or something. People can do funny things when they've experienced something terrible.

Deborah: Well, if he was, it certainly wasn't the best way to go about it, because his picture was in all the papers and on the news. He wouldn't have been able to fool everybody for so long if it wasn't true, I'm sure. At some point he was bound to have said something to give it away. No, I think he really had genuinely lost his memory and couldn't remember anything.

Toe: He could have had a wife and children waiting for him somewhere wondering what had happened. Do you know if he was married?

Deborah: Well, he can't have been, because if he'd been married, his wife would have reported him

Do you know what happened to him Joe:

afterwards?

Deborah: Well, apparently he's been able to find his parents and now he's back in England living

Joe: That's amazing. Did you ever work out how he had lost his memory?

Deborah: Well, when he arrived at the hospital he had a > head injury and no personal effects - no wallet or phone or anything. We assumed that he had probably been attacked and robbed, and he must have hit his head, resulting in the loss of memory.

It can't be easy for his parents, living with Joe: someone who doesn't remember their past.

They must be having a difficult time adjusting to it all.

Deborah: Well, in my experience of these cases pieces of memory do gradually come back. He may remember some things already, and over a few years he'll probably be able to remember quite a lot. He could make a total recovery one day.

Good afternoon, everyone. Today I am going to tell you about the research I have been conducting into the history of soap. While you may be able to find some information on the origins of soap, it is not a substance which has excited a great deal of study so far. What we do know is that even as long ago as 2500 BC soap was being used. Of course, initially it was only ever used on clothing rather than the body itself. In fact, although soap has existed for so many years, the use of soap for personal hygiene was unheard of until fairly recently and is considered to be a relatively modern notion. So we can only assume that other activities must have provided the basis from which this key concept arose.

To make soap you need to combine three materials in relatively exact proportions. So, how is it that these primitive people from over two thousand years ago could have discovered soap? Well, what these people lacked in technology they certainly made up for in practical skills. I carried out some experiments using basic techniques to try to find out what people without any chemical knowledge might have observed. And I was able to demonstrate that they would indeed have been able to make a soap-like substance that is not dissimilar to the one we know today.

However, it is fair to assume that, as the process requires a certain amount of time and specialization, soap would most likely have only been available in the wealthy communities. Although there are claims that the British Celts and their European counterparts used soap, there is no real evidence that the British colonies of the Iron Age had access to such a product.

Now, the history of soap is not easy to discover. As soap is an organic substance no traces of it remain in archaeological sites, so we have had to rely almost entirely on written texts for our discoveries. Fortunately there are many of these. The first known written mention of soap was on Sumerian clay tablets dating from about 2500 BC. The tablets spoke of the use of soap in the washing of wool. In another incidence, a medical document from about 1500 BC mentions that Egyptians bathed regularly. It also describes how they made soap by combining alkaline salts and oil which they extracted from vegetables.

We also know that the Romans used a mixture of earth, soda and wine to clean their clothes and pots. For the Romans bathing was not just a matter of hygiene; it was a form of relaxation, a social activity. The bather moved from room to room, getting progressively hotter, until they reached a steamy room where dirt was sweated out and scraped away with a metal blade. The Romans used scented bath oils but these were used to moisturize the skin rather than to cleanse it and there is no evidence that they used soap in this way. This is not to say that the Romans did not have soap. During the excavation of Pompeii, a city that was buried under the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in 79 AD, an entire soap factory was revealed, showing that they did in fact have access to soap but that they simply did not use it for personal hygiene.

Claire: Hello Jack. How much longer before you leave for Hong Kong?

Jack: Hi Claire, it's about a month now. Actually I could use a bit of advice. You used to live could use a bit of advice. You used to live there, didn't you?

Claire: That's right. What sorts of things do you need to know?

Jack: Well, I've got to find somewhere to live quite quickly. The company are only paying for me to stay in a hotel for one week. Will that be enough?

Claire: Yes, you should be able to find something by then, but you'll need to allow a bit of extra time to get over the jet lag; there's a big time difference between there and the UK.

Jack: Oh, I hadn't thought of that. What's the accommodation like?

Claire: Well, the rooms tend to be smaller than here but you can get bigger places on one of the other islands. A friend of mine rented a lovely place on Lamma Island. The only problem was he had to get up really early to catch the ferry to work.

Jack: What's the transport like generally?

Claire: Fantastic! The underground system is called the MTR and there are trains every couple of minutes, so you don't have to wait for ages like we do here. You should try to use it whenever you can. The bus system is a bit more complicated because there are normal double decker buses but there are also smaller buses called 'public light buses'. They only stop when you ask them to so you'll have to learn some Cantonese if you want to take one of those.

The Star Ferry is amazing. It's so cheap and you get the best view of the harbour – you really have to see it to believe it. You should always carry plenty of loose change though for the buses and the ferries.

Jack: The company has offered us Cantonese lessons when I get there. Do you think I should take them?

Claire: Oh, definitely, you must have lessons if you want to be able to pronounce things correctly. You don't need to speak Cantonese in the bigger shops but you'll need some basic phrases when you go shopping in the local market.

Jack: Is there anything else I need to know?

Claire: Well, nowadays you have to get a work permit before you go. We didn't have to worry about those when I was there.

Jack: Yes, that's already taken care of.

Claire: And you mustn't dress too casually for work.

Everyone dresses really well in Hong Kong.

Jack: I'll remember that.

Claire: Oh, and you needn't buy lots of guide books before you go. You can get great ones there for a fraction of the price. Also, you ought to take lots of passport photos with you. You'll find you need lots to fill in any application forms.

Jack: Great! I'm getting pretty excited now.
Claire: I'm not surprised. Oh, one last thing ...

Iack: What's that?

Claire: You must invite me to visit you!

Interviewer: So, Mr West, what does the future hold for Angleside?

Mr West: Well, we've just announced our future plans for the company.

Interviewer: And how many jobs will have to go?

Mr West: We'll be losing 100 jobs here in Swindon, and another 50 jobs will go from our Birmingham branch. However, we'll be offering voluntary redundancy and early retirement and hope to cover most of the job losses this way.

Interviewer: And what has led to this situation? Are these cuts a result of Angleside's poor performance over the past five years?

Mr West: No, the company hasn't been doing badly.

This has nothing to do with the figures; it just makes good business sense.

Interviewer: So are you saying that your figures are not the basis for this decision to cut jobs?

Mr West: Absolutely. We decided to change the way we operate our business two years ago.

Interviewer: So are you confident that the company will continue to operate into the future?

Mr West: Yes, of course. We are completely confident about this.

Interviewer: And how are you going to deal with the discontent of your workforce over this announcement?

Mr West: We will do our very best to make things as easy as possible for our employees.

Interviewer: Well, we're out of time. Thank you very much for answering my questions.

Mr West: Thank you.

At local company Angleside, up to 150 employees will lose their jobs. Christopher West, the Managing Director, announced they would be offering voluntary redundancy and early retirement and hoped to cover the job losses in this way. I asked Mr West if these cuts were a result of Angleside's poor performance over the past five years but he denied that the company had not been doing well and said that the job losses have nothing to do with the figures. West claimed that they decided to make changes two years ago. He assured me that the company would continue to operate in the future and promised to do his best for the employees.

Tutor: OK, so it's Millie's turn to give her tutorial today, isn't it?

Millie: That's right. I'm going to talk about renewable energy sources, and specifically solar towers. I'm not sure how much you already know about solar towers, so I thought I'd start with a few questions. First of all, does anyone know how solar towers work?

Tanya: Don't they somehow use the sun's energy to create electricity?

Millie: Yes, in a way. They actually work by using the sun to make columns of hot air that rise upwards through the centre of the tower. Now, do you know how old this idea is?

Luke: I would have thought it was a twentieth-century idea. That's when we've had to start thinking about how to solve energy problems, isn't it?

Tanya: No, I read something about this last week. The first time solar energy was produced was in the seventeenth century, wasn't it?

Millie: That's right, so it's not a modern idea at all.

And Leonardo Da Vinci also made sketches of a solar tower, though he never actually built one. Their recent history starts really with a man called Jorg Schlaich.

Tanya: Yes, I read about him. He's a professor from Germany and he needed a country with plenty of sunshine and land for his research so he chose Spain to build the first tower.

Millie: Correct! Well, everyone seems to know something about these towers.

Luke: Yes, but I still don't really understand how they work.

Millie: Well, I've made a flowchart to help you. Firstly, you have to realize that they are very tall towers. They're constructed out of high-strength concrete and they can be as high as 1,000 feet; there's one being built in Australia that's one kilometre high. Now, all around the base of the tower they have a sunlight collector which is basically a large sheet of plastic. It extends out for as much as seven kilometres, and it is raised off the ground slightly so it heats up the air underneath it.

Luke: So it acts like a greenhouse then?

Millie: That's exactly right. In fact, they plan to try and grow plants underneath it as well.

Tanya: So what happens to the air?

Millie: Well, the sunlight collector heats it to 65°C - that's on average 35° greater than the outside temperature – and the laws of physics mean that this hot air rises up the chimney or the tower and drives the turbines at the top. As the turbines revolve, they generate electricity. In fact, they can generate 200 megawatts of power or enough for 200,000 houses.

Tanya: Wow, that sounds impressive. But it can't all be good news. What are the disadvantages? I'll bet they're really expensive to operate.

Millie: Well, no, not necessarily, because sunlight is free after all, so it's really only the initial outlay that is costly. After that they're very efficient.

Luke: But what about at night when there is no sun?

Millie: Well, they've managed to find a way to store the electricity produced during the day, so it's no problem at night or even on cloudy days.

Tanya: So, there are no drawbacks then?

Millie: I didn't say that. One problem they do have is that a lot of the energy in the sunlight is lost from the collector in the form of heat, and then, of the remaining heat, a large proportion escapes from the top of the tower. But they are still worth the investment because, as I said, sunlight is free!

Luke: Hang on. If these towers are so tall, how do they cope in high winds? Surely they become dangerous then?

Millie: Yes, keeping them stable is another drawback. I believe they anchor the towers to the ground with wires to stabilize them so they're not dangerous, but it is an issue.

Tutor: You have certainly found an interesting topic today, so thanks Millie. Perhaps we can have a look at your pictures now.

Presenter: Good afternoon, and welcome to Education

Today. This afternoon Freya Smith tells us about her diploma course in animal management. Welcome, Freya.

Freya: Thank you.

Presenter: Now, tell me, Freya - was animal care something you always hoped to do?

Freya: Oh, yes, absolutely. I've always been interested in working with animals and during my last year at school I decided to do an animal management course.

Presenter: Right, and was it difficult to find the right course?

Freya: No, not really. I chose to study at Fairfield College because it's got a good range of animals and everyone's really friendly.

Presenter: So, tell us a little about the course.

Freya: Well, we get a lot of practical experience and there's also a lot of theory, but not so much that it's boring. I want to learn to manage the animals and the business side of it. The course is only three days a week, so I've already started working part-time at a pet shop.

Presenter: That must be interesting.

Freya: Yes, it's quite a varied job. My favourite job is feeding the animals. Some people rush through this but I prefer taking time so I can get to know them. In fact, I like having the chance to hold them. I don't even mind cleaning them out.

Presenter: And have you been pleased with the course so far?

Freya: Oh yes, it's been everything I expected it to be and more, really. We've practised handling animals and they've let us treat some minor problems, like removing splinters from paws. They make us handle all kinds of animals including spiders and snakes, even if we don't want to. At first I didn't want to touch the snakes, and I remember feeling really scared, but they let us take it slowly, and taught us exactly how to hold them. As long as you remember to do it the way you've been taught, it's fine. I still don't like holding them, but I'm not scared any more. This course has taught me to respect all animals and overcome my fears.

Presenter: What has been the most useful thing you've learned so far?

Freya: Learning about the behaviour of dogs on the course has helped me understand my own dog better. Before, if I heard him bark, I just told him to be quiet. Now, I stop to think about why he's doing it.

Presenter: And what do you hope to do when you've finished?

Freya: Well, I was thinking about doing another course when I finish, but now I've decided I'm going to stop studying for a while and go out to work. I'd really like to work in either a zoo or a safari park.

Interviewer: Come in Sarah. I do apologize for keeping you waiting. Would you like a cup of tea or coffee?

Sarah: That's very kind of you, but I'm fine thanks.

Interviewer: Now, I just want to run through a few questions with you. Firstly, why have you applied for this course?

Sarah: Well, I've always been interested in teaching and I've just finished my first degree at Stamford University, so I'd like to gain a teaching qualification.

Interviewer: Right, and can you explain your reasons for choosing our college specifically?

Sarah: Well, that's easy. My brother lives in the city and I'm hoping for a place on this course because then I'll be able to share a flat with him.

Interviewer: Oh, I see. So there isn't anything about our course that attracts you?

Sarah: Oh, I didn't mean it like that. I was really impressed with the description of the course in your prospectus. I haven't applied to the other university in the city because their course didn't appeal to me as much.

Interviewer: That's interesting. Can you say a bit more about what interests you about this course?

Sarah: Well, I like the structure of it and the fact that all the focus in the first term is on theory. I like the idea of learning about teaching before being asked to do it. Do you see what I mean?

Interviewer: Yes, and it sounds like a good reason to apply for our course. Have you talked to anyone who has done this course?

Sarah: Yes, my friend did it last year. She warned me about all of the hard work! But that's OK, I expect to work hard.

Interviewer: Excellent! Now, do you have any concerns about the course?

Sarah: Well, I must admit there are some aspects of the course that I'm a bit scared of.

Interviewer: Oh, what are they?

Sarah: Well, you can see from my application form that I'm not very good at maths. Will that cause me any problems?

Interviewer: That's very honest of you, but there is no need to worry about that. It's not important for this course.

Sarah: Oh, that's a relief. But the thing I'm most worried about is the classroom practice.

Interviewer: Well, most people are frightened of being in front of a class for the first time, but the tutors will help you to feel more confident.

Sarah: I haven't had any real experience of teaching and I'm worried about not being able to control a class, and the pupils being rude to me. If they shout at me in class, I'm not sure what I'll do.

Interviewer: That's a common worry but you will be taught how to deal with those things by the tutors on the course. In the end, of course, you have to take responsibility for what happens in your classroom, but you will be much better able to cope after training.

Sarah: Well, that makes me feel a bit better. Thanks.

Interviewer: Right, well, I don't want to make you late for your train. Thank you for coming and we'll be in touch soon by email, if that's okay.

Hello everyone and welcome to Greenville community centre. Today we're going to be talking about what we as a community can do to help each other in severe weather. Our lovely little village is, as you know, quite remote. There may be other similar sized communities only 25 kilometres away but emergency services have to drive 500 kilometres to reach us from the closest large town. That can mean a wait of up to ten hours before help arrives.

Having said that, we are very lucky in that we've always had our own fire service and, thanks to the arrival of Dr Jones earlier this year, we no longer have to drive so far if anyone gets sick. What we don't have, and are unlikely to get in the near future, is a weather station.

Now, the National Weather Bureau can provide a lot of helpful information and even warn us about severe storms, but they can only do this if they build up a database of information and to do that they need local help. That means us. What we'd like to do is set up a group of volunteer storm spotters to pass information on to the Weather Bureau.

So, what do these storm spotters have to do? Well, thankfully you don't have to be particularly skilled at anything. Quite simply, immediately after a storm has passed, the first thing you have to do is call the national weather station to let them know. After that you have to complete a report card, which is very simple and won't take more than a few minutes to do. The only other thing they ask is that we keep an eye out for any reports in the local newspaper of storms or storm damage. You need to cut these out and send them in as well. Damage that makes news here is unlikely to make it into the national papers, so these can be an important source of extra information.

So that's all as far as the duties go. Now, what sort of thing do you need to report? Well, they don't want to hear about every single storm that we have, only the ones that bring some unusual conditions. For example, we don't need to call them just because there is hail, but we should report any hailstones that are two centimetres in diameter or bigger. They also need to know about damage caused by high wind, especially if it uproots large trees. Again, don't contact them every time you see a tree fallen over. You should use your common sense and restrict it to those big enough to cause a problem, especially on our roads. They'd also like to hear about very heavy rainfall and more especially any localized flash floods.

So, what should you do if you care about our community and you want to help? Well, obviously you'll need a bit more information and preparation than I've given you today so we'll be conducting a training session next month. This will only take up a day, so don't worry too much about it. If you do have the time and would like to come along, then you'll need to talk to the police who are coordinating the event. And as our storm season is from November right to the end of January, you'll need to put your name down by the end of October at the very latest, but if you'd like to get in early, Sergeant Phillips is here this afternoon and he's happy to take names now. This really is important for our community, and we're hoping to get a lot of support. Thank you.

Recording 20

Presenter: Good morning, listeners! The holiday season is here and this is the time when many of us plan to get away from it all, but what about the home you're leaving behind? Well, please welcome Mike Bowers, who is going to talk about how to look after your home when you are travelling.

Mike: That's right, Matthew. Whether you're a person whose job involves a lot of travel or whether you travel for pleasure, you really need to consider who will look after your home when you are away.

Now, some people seem to think it's just a matter of locking all the doors and windows, which is fine as long as there are no nasty storms while you are away. If you're going to be away during a stormy or windy season, then you also need to take a good look outside your home. Perhaps you live in an area where there are a lot of tall trees, in which case you will need to cut off any dead branches that overhang your property.

Do you have a garden or, if you live in a block of flats, perhaps you have a balcony or veranda? If so, make sure you store away any objects that could become damaging missiles if picked up by strong wind, things like outdoor furniture or even plants, for example. These can be especially dangerous if you live in a flat which is in a large high-rise building.

Once you've taken care of the outdoors you have to consider what could go wrong inside. Remember this isn't just a house or a flat; this is your home, the place where you keep your most treasured possessions. What would happen to them in a flood, for instance? If you're leaving for an extended period of time, the best idea is to find someone that can check on your home while you're away. Perhaps you have a family member who lives close by, or you may have a neighbour that you can rely on.

Another possible problem is having your home burgled while you are away. Now, there are often very good reasons why one house is burgled and another is not. In the evening, a home that's very dark can really stand out. So why not install lights which have a timer and programme them to come on at times when you would normally be home? Also, make sure you find someone who can collect your mail for you. You'll be amazed how quickly a letterbox can become crammed full of uncollected letters and papers, which is a great help to a burglar looking for homes that are empty!

And do you tend to do the shopping on the Student:

same day of the week?

Yes, actually I always do the food shopping on Woman:

> Thursdays because I work Monday to Wednesday and there are fewer people in the supermarket on Thursday than on Friday.

Great. Finally, would you ever consider using a Student:

computer to buy your shopping online?

Well, I did try it once but I didn't like it. Woman:

Student: Can I ask you why not?

Well, what I like is being able to see the Woman:

> products and walking around the shop, and maybe buying things that aren't on my shopping list, you know. You can't do that on your computer, can you?

No, I suppose not. Student:

Well, firstly, welcome to the university. My Jack: name's Jack Dawson and I'm president of the students' union. I'm here to answer any questions you may have about university life.

Would anyone like to start?

Student 1: Er, yes, I'm not sure how to get a library card.

Ah, yes, that's very important. You need to go lack: to the reception at the library and they'll give you a form to complete. You'll also need to have your photo taken for the card.

Student 1: I've already got a passport photo. Can I use that?

> Yes, in which case just give them your photo with the filled-in form and they will do the rest.

Jack:

Student 1: I'm keen to start using the library as soon as possible. Do they process applications quite quickly?

Oh, yes. All applications are processed on the lack:

spot so they'll be able to issue you a card straight away. Now, are there any other questions?

Student 2: Can you explain a little bit about the students' union? I'm not really sure what it does.

Well, the students' union is a group which Jack: represents your views to the university.

Student 2: So, does the university run the students' union?

No, the union is run by students, seven Jack:

students to be precise, who are called the executive committee.

Student 2: And how do you choose the executive committee?

Well, the executive committee is chosen by the Jack: students through an election process.

Student 2: And what exactly do they do?

Well, the students' union is responsible for many of the extra facilities around the campus that are not related to study. We run the restaurants and entertainment and the sports facilities, which are said to be among the best in the country. So if you think any of these facilities need improving around the campus, or if there are other services you think we need to provide, then please come to one of our union meetings and make a suggestion. Now, any other questions? Yes, at the back ...

Fish has long been a staple food in many cultures, but there has been some controversy recently about the benefits and risks of fish consumption. For example, we know that fish supplies us with polyunsaturated fatty acids, substances that have been found to protect against heart disease. Moreover, because it is beneficial to the development of the brain, in many cultures fish is known as a 'brain food'. However, recent studies have shown that fish can also contain mercury, which is poisonous in large doses and has been linked to lower intelligence. As a result, people are unsure whether to increase or decrease the amount of fish they eat.

We recently undertook a project to evaluate the health advice currently being given about fish consumption. Although this work was supported by grants from the Fisheries Scholarship Fund, this did not affect the research findings or interpretations of the results. We discovered that, in spite of the literature available on the risks and benefits of fish consumption, there are still important gaps in this information. Despite these gaps, however, decisions about how to advise people on fish consumption should be made based on what we know

Firstly, in terms of heart disease, it has been shown that consuming even small quantities of fish can lower your risk of heart disease by 17%. Secondly, consuming fish is known to have a beneficial effect on brain development. Finally, although exposure to mercury through eating fish can have a negative effect on IQ levels, the effects that have been observed are relatively small.

To sum up, it would seem that the health benefits of eating fish outweigh the risks.

Tutor: Well, today's topic for debate is 'home > schooling'. And the question we're asking is, 'Is it better for us to educate our children at home rather than send them to school?" What do you think, Tina?

Tina: Well, I was educated at an ordinary school and I don't have any regrets. Personally, I feel the teachers did a really good job and that I have benefited from the experience.

Tutor: What about you, Nick?

Nick: Well, I'm a bit like you, Tina. I went to a normal school and, fortunately, I had a great experience there. Mind you, I can see that being educated at home would be good for some children. There was a boy in my class who was bullied by some older boys, and I think he must look back at his school days and feel really bad. If he'd been educated at home, he'd probably feel quite differently. But, in general I don't think it is a good idea.

So, do you know of anyone who was home-Tutor:

schooled?

Tina: Yes, a girl on my course was taught at home by her mother.

Nick: Surely her mum can't know enough to teach her everything? She must have missed out on a lot of subjects!

Tina: Actually, she believes that she received a better education as a result.

Nick: Frankly, I'd be totally bored staving at home all day.

Well, according to my friend they did lots of fun Tina:

> things like going out for walks and looking at nature and going to the theatre to see literature in action. I can see the benefits of that.

Nick: Yes, but what about the social aspect. Doesn't your friend feel she missed out on making new friends?

Tina: No, I don't think so. Apparently there's a > network of parents who teach at home, and they have clubs where their children meet and that's how they made friends.

Nick: Yes, but it's likely that those people will be > very similar. I doubt that they met many people from different backgrounds and cultures, which in many schools it is possible to do. In my opinion that's a disadvantage.

Yes, I think that's a good point. But, Tina:

> unfortunately, schools do seem to be more overcrowded and less well-funded these days and I can see the advantages of home education in terms of the quality of education.

That's certainly the way my friend felt. Mind you, I do think she finds it hard to interact in large groups of people. And, interestingly, she doesn't have a great relationship with her parents these days. Perhaps she had enough of them as a child!

Nick:

Well, anyway, I'm glad that my parents didn't educate me at home. Some of my best friends today were friends I met at school.

Julie:

When I was a teenager I was stung by a bee. For most people, that's not much of a problem - it just hurts a lot. But I reacted really badly to it. I ended up having to go to hospital where they gave me an injection to stop the reaction. What happened was that I trod on a bee that was crawling along the floor in the kitchen - it was summer and I was barefoot. My first feeling was, 'Ow - that hurts!' Then really quickly my foot began to go red and swell up. It just got bigger and bigger. It itched a bit too. I was really surprised by how much it hurt. Then it got even scarier because I began to find it difficult to breathe and kept coughing. Luckily my mum was there and she said, 'Right you're going straight to hospital!' It was quite near our house, but she drove really fast. I was given an injection and soon recovered, but I have to be really careful now in case I get stung again.
